Miner Slain, One Shot at Harlan as Troops Enter

Officials Assert Shootings Weren't Connected With Mine Re-openings

By the Associated Press.

Harlan, Ky., May 14.—One miner was killed tonight at Yancey and a man shot on one of the main streets of Harlan.

Although county and military officials declared the shootings had no connection with labor troubles, Brig. Gen. Ellerbee Carter, commanding the National Guard, issued an order for 200 additional troops to move into the county immediately.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Chad Nolan said the man killed was Treed Bates, 35, a motorman for the Harlan Fuel Co. He was shot once through the head in front of the home of his brother-in-law, Walter Rowe, 25.

General to Investigate

Nolan said Rowe was placed in the Harlan County Jail, but so far no warrant had been issued for his arrest. The chief deputy declared the affair had "no connection" with labor troubles.

Brig. Gen. Carter said the shooting was first reported to him as a family row. He said he would make an investigation.

Charles Guthrie, an official of the Harlan Fuel Co., said both men are nonunion miners.

State troops swarmed into "bloody Harlan" late today to face a tense labor situation as coal mines prepared to reopen with soldier protection over strongly voiced opposition of United Mine Workers officials.

A short time before the first contingent of troops moved through the streets, the miners gathered in a mass meeting at Lenarue and were told by William Turnblazer, U. M. W. district president, "You can't dig coal with bayonets or with tin soldiers."

As the detachment—45 men—passed along the quiet street, people stared but there was no audible comment.

Cars Jam Streets

When the soldiers stopped a block from the courthouse at the armory it was only a few moments before a crowd of small boys riding bicycles surrounded the trucks. News spread quickly that the militia had arrived and streets around the armory were jammed with automobiles.

In the business section small groups of men stood and talked in quiet voices.

Forty State policemen, who have been here several weeks, were on duty.

Kentucky Industrial Relations Commissioner W. C. Burrow, who was scheduled to speak at the miners' rally but did not appear, said later:

"In view of the situation of the meeting I thought it advisable not to appear."

Speaking at Lenarue, Turnblazer, George Titler, secretary-treasurer of the Harlan U. M. W. district, and James S. Golden, of Pineville, union attorney, criticized Gov. A. B. Chandler for sending the soldiers to open the mines "for those who want to work."

Attack on U. M. W. Charged

Titler, in a statement, charged the Harlan County operators "are reverting to the law of the jungles with the assistance of the state government" in an effort to "smash John L. Lewis' mine workers union."

He added:

"They can't get more than a thousand men back to work. It will cost them (the operators) more to mine a ton of coal than they get for it.

"After an overwhelming majority of the operators have signed contracts with the assistance of the United States Government and approval of the Department of Labor, then the Governor's action in sending State troops is a violation of public policy and I think ill advised.

"We'll have 6,000 to 8,000 pickets on duty tomorrow. Any mine that opens will be picketed. Our men will stand on the highways and at the edge of company property to induce miners to stay away from work."

At the rally today Golden said that last night he had talked with several National Guardsmen at Barbourville and that they told him "we don't want to go to Harlan."

The attorney said the union had

Cloudy, Warmer Day Is Forecast

With the sun sulky and the temperature acting as if it were late autumn instead of spring, Washingtonians were forced to don topcoats yesterday. At 3:30 p. m. the mercury reached a high point of 59, rising from 45.

Today, however, the weatherman promises it will be warmer, though cloudy.

Boy Gambler Admits Killing Two in Desert

Slew to Get Auto To Flee Debts, Says College Student

By the Associated Press.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 14.—County Attorney Richard Harless said today Robert M. Burgunder, jr., 22-year-old college student, had signed a statement that he shot and killed two automobile salesmen April 29 while they lay bound at his feet in an Arizona desert.

The youth was brought here last night from Johnson City, Tenn., where he was captured last Sunday.

Harless and Sheriff Lon Jordan, who returned Burgunder, said he related the complete story of the crime to them after he had finished eating dinner last night at Globe, Ariz.

"Glad It's Over"

Later he told the same story to a court reporter here and then sighed: "I'm glad it's over."

Burgunder is charged with the slaying of Jack Peterson, 35, and Ellis Koury, 27, with whom he went out in an automobile for a demonstration, and whose bodies were found in a desert gulch.

"I shot Koury first, shot him twice," the officers quoted him as saying. "Then I shot Peterson three times."

Five empty shells from a .25-caliber automatic were found at the scene. The gun still was in the glove compartment of the car when it was recovered at Johnson City.

"I had made Koury tie up Peterson's hands and feet," the statement continued. "Peterson was lying on the ground perhaps 10 yards away. Less than 5 yards away Lay Koury, who had tied his own ankles. He was lying face down with his hands behind his back.

"I shot him and he sort of sighed. I shot again. Then I swung to Peterson."

Young Burgunder, on parole from the Washington State reformatory where he was sentenced for a drug store holdup, was quoted as saying his sole motive was to obtain an automobile in which he could flee from mounting obligations brought on by gambling.

Fire Imperiling Leesburg Does $3,000 Damage

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., May 13.—A fire which threatened to sweep the business district of Leesburg was brought under control tonight.

Starting in the rear of an unoccupied apartment above Flippo's Market, on King street, the blaze spread to the Loudoun County Welfare office and Hess' barber shop, next door. A third apartment over the Leesburg Restaurant also was damaged by smoke and water.

Max Davis, owner of the building, who said the apartments recently had been renovated, estimated damage at $3,000 to $5,000.

Colmar Manor Fire Kills Baby; 4 Men Injured

Flames Bar Mother From Rescue; Smoke Overwhelms Firemen

A 2-month-old baby was killed and four firemen were injured yesterday by a blaze which damaged a Colmar Manor, Md., home to the estimated extent of $6,000.

Ellen Ruth McCrea, granddaughter of a retired District policeman, was suffocated in her crib on the second floor of a two-story frame house at Daniels and Lenox avenues, Colmar Manor. Her mother and her grandfather, W. C. Heslop, strove desperately to reach her from the first floor but were driven back by flames which swept the second story.

4 Firemen Injured

Injured firemen were:

T. Weston Scott, jr., 22, of the Cottage City Fire Department, cuts on the hands.

Andrew C. Tackitt, 43, Cottage City department, smoke in lungs and burns.

Flames Block Rescue

Tackitt and Nevel, who reached the scene before their apparatus arrived, fought their way to the door of the room where the baby lay but could get no farther. Tackitt collapsed on the lawn and, with Nevel, was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Fire Marshal T. Weston Scott, sr., of Cottage City, said the fire apparently started in a second floor bathroom and spread so rapidly the baby's mother and grandfather were unable to reach her before the entire upper half of the home was engulfed in flames.

Five companies, summoned from Cottage City, Brentwood, Mount Rainier, Bladensburg and Hyattsville, fought the blaze more than an hour before it was brought under control. The interior of the building was destroyed.

Scott said apparatus was delayed in reaching the fire when it was necessary to trace a telephone alarm from a boy who merely screamed, "There's a fire!" When firemen arrived the blaze had gained much headway.

Coast Guard Saves 6 As Cruiser Founders

Norfolk, Va., May 14 (AP).—The Coast Guard rescued four men and two children today after the 42-foot cabin cruiser America foundered in the Elizabeth River.

The rescued were W. F. Smith and T. P. Atkins, Norfolk; W. T. Atkins and Charles B. Hann, jr., Richmond; Nancy Atkins, 4, aand Barbara Lee Atkins, 7.

Lewis Urges WPA Base of 3 Million Jobs

Wants Union Living Standard; Request 50% Above President's

Into the many angled relief fight on Capitol Hill, John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain, last night threw an insistent plea for an average of 3,000,000 WPA jobs for the coming fiscal year as "a minimum of safety" both for the unemployed and for business recovery.

Writing to Representative Taylor, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Lewis set forth five "basic points required to make effective the full benefit of full employment on the WPA." They were:

WPA jobs for all unemployed able and willing to work, without the "degrading means test."

Recognition of the right of WPA workers to organize.

WPA jobs fitted to the needs and skills of unemployed workers.

All projects to be socially useful and productive, including housing, slum clearance, flood control, white collar work, and other activities.

50% Above Program

The 3,000,000-job "minimum" set by Lewis is 50 per cent above the program of President Roosevelt in calling for an appropriation of $1,477,000,000 for the coming fiscal year. The President estimated the sum would care for 2,000,000 workers.

In another development of the relief controversy, Howard O. Hunter, deputy WPA administrator, appealed in a radio address last night for continuation of the present system of Federal relief administration instead of the oft-proposed grants-in-aid to the States.

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, has urged State administration of relief, with Federal grants, contending that it would go far to take politics out of relief.

To this contention Hunter declared that "whatever politics may now be in relief will be multiplied by some 3,000 counties and 12,000 townships."

Relief a Federal Problem

He held relief is a Federal problem and the system of granting funds to States had worked badly in the early days of the Roosevelt administration "because of the wide variety of standards of relief and administration."

Meanwhile, the House committee investigating WPA planned to study today conditions in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Toledo and other Ohio cities. Engineers and investigators who have made investigations there will report, to be followed by others who investigated relief conditions in Chicago.

Lewis' letter said he was merely presenting "minimum conditions," adding that "any attempt to establish an effective program fully to meet the need of the unemployed in this country would find itself speaking in terms of vaster figures."

Penal School Transfer to D. C. Urged

Boys' Training Superintendent Asks Reorganization to Serve Local Needs

Transfer of the National Training School for Boys from the Department of Justice, where it has been placed by President Roosevelt's second reorganization plan, to jurisdiction of the District government has been recommended by Penal Superintendent Ray L. Huff, The Post learned yesterday.

Huff's recommendation, it is understood, will go before the penal committee of the Board of Public Welfare Wednesday. If approved in full board session, the proposal then would be referred to the Commissioners. An act of Congress would be necessary to effect the transfer.

Would Aid Segregation

Inclusion of the training school in the District penal system "would mean a great step forward in segregation of various types of offenders," Huff told The Post.

Present population of the school is 400, only 127 of whom are from the District. The remaining inmates have been sent to the institution for Federal offenses committed in a dozen States.

Emphasizing that his proposal would not require the return to their homes of any boys in the school, Huff said he envisaged a reorganization "spread over five or six years." At the end of that period inmates from outside the District would have served their terms, and meanwhile no new offenders would be committed to the school except from Washington.

For First Offenders

During the same period, he said, first offenders who ordinarily would go to Lorton or Occoquan, youths whom Huff classifies as a "highly reformable type," could be sent to the training school. Under the present arrangement no boys over 18 can be committeed to the school. The plan does not contemplate any transfer of inmates now at Lorton to the school, he stated.

Recommended by Survey

Transfer of the training school to the District government has been frequently suggested, Huff recalled, and is the only recommendation in the 1938 Prison Industries Reorganization Administration survey of the Capital's penal system never put into effect.

Although his recommendation eventually would require construction of training schools for youthful Federal offenders in other sections of the country, Huff pointed out that the Justice Department, in a statement by Attorney General Cummings in 1933, is on record in favor of confining young prisoners as near their own homes as possible.

The District pays the school $600 a year for each of its charges.

Girl, 5, Bears Normal Child Before 60 Doctors in Lima

By the Associated Press.

Lima, Peru, May 14.—Dr. Hipolito Larrabure, chief surgeon and director of the Lima Maternity Hospital, said a 5.96-pound boy was born today to an Indian girl 5 years old.

Dr. Larrabure said one of the strangest gynecological cases in the world was witnessed by 60 doctors when Dr. Geraldo Lozada and Dr. Alejandro Busallue performed a Caesarean operation to deliver the child.

The child was declared to be in perfect condition. The mother also was said to be doing well.

"The birth certificate of the mother, Lina Medina, shows she was born in September, 1934," Dr. Larrabure said. "Her age also is corroborated by the fact she still has her first teeth and is not more than 3 feet 1 inch tall. Her features are perfectly childish and her mentality corresponds to that of a child."

"I am sure this is a unique case in world-wide medical history," the doctor added. "Though last year a Colombian, Dr. Retrepo, reported the case of a girl about eight years old who gave birth in a normal way to a child."

Medical authorities had kept strict silence concerning the case until today.

Dr. Larrabure said Lina Medina was brought three days ago from Pisco, a small cotton port south of Lima where the Medina family owns a small plot of land. She was under the care of Dr. Lozada, chief doctor at the Pisco hospital.

Dr. Lozada discovered the case a few weeks ago when the child's mother brought her to the hospital.

Examination, Mr. Larrabure said, proved the child had been criminally assaulted.

Included among the 60 doctors who watched the operation at the Maternity Hospital was a commission of doctors appointed to study and report on the puzzling case.

"She is unable to explain what happened to her," said Dr. Larrabure. "She is shy like most Indian children and talks reluctantly.

War Is Not Necessary To Settle Europe's Problems, Duce Says

Hints at Reluctance To Join Germany in Conflict Over Danzig; Denies Split in Axis

By the Associated Press.

Turin, Italy, May 14.—Hinting strongly at Italy's reluctance to go to war to win the Free City of Danzig for Germany, Premier Mussolini today declared Europe's problems could be solved without recourse to war.

Il Duce, addressing 50,000 cheering black-shirted Fascists, stanchly denied, however, that Italy's internal condition prompted her desire for peace, and bitingly satirized rumors abroad of a possible split in the Rome-Berlin axis.

He warned, however, that, although the sword is not necessary to cut the "knots in European politics"—German-Polish tension and his own colonial claims against France—"there is need that these knots be untied once and for all because sometimes a hard reality is preferable to a long uncertainty."

Points to Military Pact

Mussolini accused "the great democracies" of already having begun a "white war" against Germany and Italy," a war on economic grounds, and warned that now the axis was joined in a military alliance its partners would not allow themselves to be overpowered and would repulse any attack made upon them.

[In Berlin, a spokesman for Propaganda Minister Goebbels said Mussolini's statement that none of Europe's present problems justify war "in no wise touched upon issues confronting Germany," the United Press reported.

["The speech dealt largely with Italian problems and was intended for home consumption," the spokesman added.—Editor's note.]

Mussolini spoke in the broad Piazza Vittorio Veneto, as he opened a week's swing around the Piedmont region which will take him close to the French frontier on an inspection tour of military establishments, troop concentrations and public works.

There was no specific mention of Fascist demands on Paris in Il Duce's address but it was full of scorn for France and of references to French-Italian strife in the past.

The crowd's applause for the Premier was equaled by its boos and jeers for his references to "the democracies," especially for France.

Several times cries of "Tunisia!" and "Savoy!" arose. Both have been mentioned in Fascist clamor since last November for fulfillment of Italian colonial aspirations at France's expense.

Democracies Jeered

There were derisive cries of "Palestine" as Il Duce declared Italians were not fooled about the methods employed by "the great democracies" to build up empires and to maintain them.

Mussolini said, "perhaps hundreds of millions of men" were asking whether there will be war or peace. He thundered this answer:

"According to a cold objective examination of the situation there are not at present in Europe problems big enough or acute enough to justify a war which by logical development would spread from Europe and become a universal event.

"There are knots in European politics but recourse to the sword is, perhaps, not necessary to cut them. Nevertheless, there is need that these knots be united once and for all because sometimes a hard reality is preferable to a long uncertainty.

"This is not only the thought of Italy but also of Germany and thus the axis—of that axis, which after many years of parallel action of the two regimes and of the two revolutions, will become through the Pact of Milan and through the military alliance which will be

Canadians Pray As Fog Further Delays Rulers

Arrival Not Expected Until Wednesday; Schedule Upset

By Edward T. Folliard
A Staff Correspondent.

Quebec, May 14.—As word came today that there would be another delay in the arrival of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, prayers were offered up here in both Protestant and Catholic churches that the liner Empress of Australia would bring Their Majesties safely through the fog and icebergs.

The royal couple are now expected to arrive Wednesday morning.

Perhaps the most agitated man in Quebec is the chef of the luxurious Chateau Frontenac, where the King and the Queen will be tendered an official luncheon after their arrival. He has been planning the luncheon for weeks.

On the menu, among other things, are "snow birds" and speckled trout. The snow birds, which are about the size of sparrows, were snared on the Island of Orleans near here. The trout were obtained from the Laurentides National Park, and the fishermen had to break through two feet of ice to get them.

Refrigeration Saves Menu

The birds and the fish already are in the Chateau Frontenac ice boxes. In years gone by, no doubt, they would have been a total loss after such a delay, but the prospect is now that modern refrigeration will preserve them until the arrival of Their Majesties.

The chef, however, is worried about two other delicacies on the menu, honey dew melons which were flown here from California, and hot-house grapes that were brought from Belgium.

Three parades moved through this gaily decorated city today. The Regiment de Quebec, an outfit corresponding to America's National Guard, marched to the St. Coeur de Marie Church, resplendent in their red tunics and white pitch helmets surmounted by gleaming spikes. The Royal Rifles of Canada, another militia unit, also trooped through the narrow, flag-lined streets. And finally there was the parade of some 500 veterans of the World War wearing sky blue berets.

Separating at the end of the route, the veterans headed for two

Times Reports Roosevelt Has New Peace Plan

Ready to Propose It If New Crisis Comes, Paper Says

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—The New York Times says in a dispatch from Washington that it has been informed President Roosevelt is prepared to issue another appeal for peace at an opportune moment or if a new critical situation develops in Europe.

According to a State Department official who had a part in the President's last appeal, says The Times, the President would suggest a conference to settle economic problems without territorial aggrandizement.

Frank L. Kluckhorn, who wrote the article, says his informant declared that the time and circumstances of the contemplated appeal would depend upon developments.

In Washington, the article adds, it is considered unlikely Premier Mussolini's Turin speech today would alone provide the best opportunity for another Presidential proposal.

The Italian premier rejected President Roosevelt's first proposal for an economic conference last month as "absurd." However, says the Times, Washington noted with interest that Mussolini said today that Europe's problems are not "big enough to justify a war."

Hope persists, says Kluckhorn, that if Chancellor Hitler and Mussolini find their course too dangerous as the result of countermovements they may turn to economic negotiations.

Farley Declares Election All U. S. Need Worry Over

Mexico, Mo., May 14 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley told a group of military school students today they should be proud that in a world terrified at what may happen next "we have nothing more serious to worry about than how the next election is coming off."

"We are one of the few nations on earth where a man's destiny is in his own hands," the Cabinet member said.

Straw Toppers Will Make 1939 Debut in Capital Today; Here's How Some Folk Look in Theirs

HERBERT HOOVER | PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT | SECRETARY ICKES | WALTER JOHNSON | JAMES A. FARLEY | SENATOR HARRISON | SENATOR GLASS | CHARLES E. HUGHES | JOHN N. GARNER

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

OF THEE I SING

Vigor in G. O. P.'s drive for the Presidency may be estimated by the fact that there are 49 men and women on the staff at Republican national headquarters here, in the chaste slender building on Lafayette Square . . . A new story is being added on the roof, to make room for more campaign brains . . . John Hamilton's staff is thus greater by four than the 45 on President Roosevelt's staff at the White House, diagonally across the square.

U&U

Senator Herring . . . new prayer?

* * * *

From a humbler office four blocks away a gentleman who always knows what the New Deal's next move will be (and why) long before it's visible to the naked eye makes the most significant dollars-and-cents prediction of 1939:

That another huge spending program is inevitable—partly because of sluggish business, but more especially because brains and man power are lacking to solve specific problems, like railroads, agriculture, distribution and housing.

* * * *

CAPITAL CAVIAR: Along with its drive for Statehood, Hawaii is plugging new "macadamia nut" as a great invigorator and rejuvenator . . . Several are being mentioned here as the ones who advised Herr Thomsen, the German charge d'affaires, on American domestic politics for the cute insertions in Hitler's speech to embarrass Mr. Roosevelt.

"—another witness for Mr. Dies"

ROYAL GAGS: At Capital cocktail parties the tale that Dies will summon the King and Queen to testify before his committee on alien activities gets a mild laugh . . . As does the "inside tip" that King George will chat informally about what the British owe us . . . And that His Majesty may invest some of the family guineas in a huge American airplane factory in Canada.

* * * *

Right now Jim Farley seems to be the candidate for Vice President on every ticket: Garner and Farley, Wallace and Farley, Hull and Farley, McNutt and Farley . . . At a recent New Dealish dinner, bigshot guests wrote on secret ballots (1) their preferences for 1940 and (2) their expectations for 1940. Several high officials were present. The score was significant.

* * * *

On the preference ballots, Roosevelt got seven votes for President, Farley got five votes for Vice President, out of 11 votes cast.

But on the realistic expectations ballot, Cordell Hull got six votes and Farley got all 11 votes for Vice President! On both ballots the other votes were scattered.

The candidacy of Secretary Wallace is showing new vitality—in the Capital—as a Democratic compromise candidacy next to Hull's.

"—prayer for drought?"

Colleagues of Senator Clyde Herring have greeted with envious admiration a vivid sentence he used in a recent speech in New York.

"We used to pray for rain," said the junior Iowa Senator, "but now we seem to pray for drought."

It has served as the theme for several speeches since he uttered it. It may be the theme of the next campaign.

* * * *

PROPAGANDA: A few lucky economists here, mostly of the New Deal persuasion, witnessed a singular and entrancing spectacle the other evening.

Ezra Pound, the expatriate American poet, attempted to sell a chosen group on the Italian corporate system of controlled currency, returning to his native heath after 29 years of self-exile.

Armed with an Olympian erudition, he lopped before the sympathetic eyes of the hard-boiled young economists who were all too kind to him throughout an evening of dialectic fencing. (Incidentally, he had them defending an American monetary system of which they are none too fond.)

Kindy souls guessed he was doing it spontaneously because he loves Italian culture; cynical observers guessed that Mussolini's boys have hypnotized him.

* * * *

CAPITAL SMALL TALK: Justice Hugo Black's stag party guest list was probably the most complete blue book of the 1939 New Dealers . . . The other day the Treasury Department announced itself in the market for two skeletons and two closets, so help me . . . Maybe they could have found a couple in the White House next door . . . Some of Henry Wallace's agricultural scientists get to work at 7 a. m., a voluntary two hours early, and apologize if they're 10 minutes late.

McNary Puts G.O.P. Behind Tax Revision

Pledge Bolsters Hope For Compromise to Be Handed President Today

By the Associated Press.

A promise of Republican support bolstered yesterday's determination on the part of some members of the Senate Finance Committee, led by Chairman Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, to force a revision in corporation taxes at this session of Congress.

Senator McNary of Oregon, minority leader, said he expected Republican backing to be given to any reasonable proposal by Harrison and his Democratic colleagues on the committee to alter the tax structure in an effort to spur business recovery.

Harrison and others have worked out a tax revision proposal designed to meet President Roosevelt's demand that Federal revenues not be decreased by any changes aimed at eliminating business deterrents.

To President Today

It is expected to be laid before the President today at a conference on tax revision he is to have with Congressional leaders.

The plan is understood to call for elimination of the undistributed profits tax but retention of the capital stock and excess profits levies. The corporation tax would be a flat 18 per cent.

Corporation taxes now run for 16½ per cent to 19 per cent, depending on the amount of profits distributed.

As an incentive to accept the new schedule, business would be permitted to revalue its capital stock this year, so as to cut down the amount of excess profits taxes. Similar revaluations might be allowed on a yearly or biennial basis. The present law fixes a three-year interval.

Other Issues Fade

Also, business firms would be allowed to average profits and losses over three-year periods. The present law allows no carry-over for the firm which loses money one year, but makes a large profit the next year.

Harrison and others who have consulted about the plan are reported to be satisfied business would rather accept a flat 18 per cent tax than be plagued with uncertainties of present imposts.

Because of the impending White House conference, taxes took the spotlight away from other issues which have engaged Congress in the last few weeks, notably possible revision of the neutrality law and final disposition of farm benefit payments.

A three-week moratorium on discussion of the neutrality issue appeared likely, while the Senate Foreign Relations Committee awaits printing of testimony taken at hearings.

Chairman Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, indicated no action would be taken by the committee until this record is available.

Rivers Bill Up Today

There appeared, meanwhile, to be strong determination on the part of some members of the House to block the $383,000,000 addition to the agriculture appropriations bill voted by the Senate.

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia asserted an effort would be made to induce the House to reject Senate amendments which tacked on "parity payments" and export subsidies previously rejected by the House.

Senate and House committees are expected to be appointed this week to try to adjust differences in the measures approved by the two bodies.

The House planned a vote today on the $305,000,000 nonmilitary War Department appropriations bill, carrying funds for rivers and harbors improvements.

Hopkins Reports D. C. Leads States in Per Capita Income

Average Citizen Received $1,259 in 1937 As Compared to $547 for U. S.; Nearest Rival in Prosperity Was Delaware at $923

Relative prosperity of the District of Columbia in the national economic picture is graphically revealed in statistics made public yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, showing a 33 per cent higher income per capita for the Capital than for any State.

The average Washington citizen received $1,259 in 1937, according to the survey, while the national average was $547. The States ranged from Mississippi, with $207, to Delaware's $923.

Including the first official estimates of total income—all wages, dividends, rents and other revenues—in each of the 48 States, the Commerce Department report shows that the District, Virginia and six other States amassed higher incomes in 1937 than in 1929, peak year of post-war prosperity.

Income Up $161,000,000

The District's share of the national income rose from $628,000,000 in 1929 to $789,000,000 in 1937, recovering from a low of $486,000,000 in 1933. Virginia income increased from $955,000,000 in 1929 to $968,000,000 for 1937. The Maryland figure dropped by $26,000,000 over the eight-year period to $1,092,000,000.

Per capita income in Washington and neighboring States declined between 1929 and 1937. The figures for the District are $1,301 and $1,259; for Virginia, $396 and $358, and for Maryland, $691 and $650.

Ten States, according to the report, received approximately 65 per cent of the total national income of $70,645,000,000 in 1937. They were:

New York, 11,138,000,000; Pennsylvania, $5,899,000,000; California, $5,153,000,000; Illinois, $5,063,000,000; Ohio, $4,206,000,000; Michigan, $3,259,000,000; Massachusetts, $2,955,000,000; New Jersey, $2,706,000,000; Texas, $2,538,000,000, and Missouri, $1,839,000,000.

Vermont trailed the State totals with $171,000,000.

The survey furnishes evidence, Secretary Hopkins said, "that States with incomes below the national average showed greater relative improvement from 1929 to 1937 than did the States with incomes above the national average."

It also is apparent that the more densely populated States have the higher average per capita incomes, he stated. The ten States with the highest per capita incomes contained 25.9 per cent of the total population of the country, while the 15 lowest States contained only 29.4 per cent of the population.

Marked differences in income fluctuations from year to year are shown among the various States. In Michigan, Alabama, Mississippi, Montana and North and South Dakota total income declined more than 50 per cent from 1929 to 1932-33, but in the District and several New England States the maximum decline was less than one-third.

Figures Aid Business

Purpose of the report, Hopkins said, is "to help businessmen analyze market areas and opportunities for the sale of specific commodities and for advertising purposes." Additional figures for 1938 and further analysis of the 1929-37 statistics are expected later this year.

Meanwhile, Hopkins warned that because of varying living costs, differences in mode of living and climatic conditions, the per capita income figures "should not be assumed to represent differences in standards of living from one State or region to another."

Marcantonio Asks Lynching Inquiry

Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), New York, asked the Justice Department yesterday to investigate what he described as the lynching of a colored taxi driver at Daytona Beach, Fla., last month.

Marcantonio, acting as president of the International Labor Defense, made his request in a letter to Attorney General Murphy.

A constable told a coroner's jury that Lee Snell, the cab driver, was taken from him by two men and shot to death. Snell had been arrested after a taxi cab struck and killed a 12-year-old white boy.

Bill to Exclude Argentine Beef In Navy Ready

Allen to Ask Purchase Be Held Up Pending Study of Meat's Merits

Halting of the Navy Department's order of 48,000 pounds of Argentine beef, pending a Congressional investigation of President Roosevelt's finding that this beef is cheaper and superior to the American output, is called for in a resolution Representative Leo E. Allen (Republican), of Illinois, last night announced he will introduce today.

"Evidently Mr. Roosevelt, having failed to solve the agricultural problems of the United States, is now turning his talents to the solution of the agricultural problems of the world," Allen told reporters.

His resolution would have Speaker William B. Bankhead appoint a committee of five House members to inquire into the Navy Department's acceptance of a bid from the Argentine Meat Producers' Co-operative, said to be an institution of the government of Argentina. The committee would report at the present session of Congress.

Westerners Wrathful

Specifically, the committee would be called upon to ascertain whether the "buy American" provisions of the Navy appropriation bill for 1940 would be violated by buying beef for the Navy from Argentine in preference to the American product.

President Roosevelt at a recent press conference revealed he wrote a letter to Secretary Hull recommending purchase of 48,000 pounds of Argentine beef, because it is "infinitely superior" to American beef.

Mirroring the wrath of Western Congressmen over the President's statement, Allen said:

"I thought Mr. Roosevelt had gone the limit when he made it a crime to have gold in one's possession, but now he has gone further by making the statement that Argentine beef is superior to American beef.

Charity Begins at Home

"The President stated that the enlisted men of the Navy are entitled to food of the best quality. Are we to take this to mean that the enlisted men of the Navy are entitled to something that the rest of us aren't, or are we to infer that we should all desert the American farmer and help Mr. Roosevelt support Argentina?

"The President should be reminded that being a good neighbor, like charity, should begin at home.

"Many of us believe that American beef has no superior. For that reason I am offering a resolution tomorrow, providing for a committee of five to investigate and determine whether or not Argentine beef is better than American beef."

Villard Protests Sending Leahy To Puerto Rico

A committee of the American Civil Liberties Union protested to President Roosevelt yesterday his appointment of Admiral William D. Leahy as Governor of Puerto Rico.

A telegram, signed by Oswald Garrison Villard, chairman of the "Committee for Fair Play to Puerto Rico," said the protest was not against Leahy personally, but against appointment of a naval officer to handle "civilian problems of extraordinary difficulty.

"We respectfully submit," Villard told the President, "that while the appointment of Admiral Leahy may call further attention in Europe to the decision of the United States to emphasize its military and naval strength in the Caribbean, that has no bearing whatsoever upon the progress, welfare and civil liberties of the desperate and starving Puerto Rican masses, whom Congress has so shamefully neglected."

1,000 Watch Silver Spring Stable Fire

Two Departments Extinguish Blaze; No Horses Injured

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9213 Clark Avenue, Silver Spring, Md. Telephone, Shepherd 4200.

Fire in the one-story frame East-West Riding School Stables in East-West Highway near Sixteenth street, Silver Spring, Md., yesterday brought out more than 1,000 spectators and two fire departments and resulted in loss of three bales of hay.

Two horses ordinarily stabled in the building had been reported missing the night before. The fire was quickly extinguished by the firemen from Silver Spring and Chevy Chase Fire Departments. Traffic was kept moving by the entire force of Montgomery County Policemen at Silver Spring substation.

An 85-foot aerial ladder became entangled in the thick woods surrounding the stables, but finally was extricated after the firemen turned woodchoppers.

Catholic Daughters Breakfast

Forest Glen—The annual breakfast of Court Forest Glen, Catholic Daughters of America, was held yesterday at St. John's Hall following the communion. Mass was said by the Rev. Joseph Kennedy, pastor of St. John's Church. Miss Margaret Buckley, State regent, was the principal speaker. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Gertrude Brennan, regent of the court. Mrs. Catherine Doherty was toastmistress.

Newly elected officers of the court, who will take office next month are Mrs. Charlotte McDermott, grand regent; Miss Betty Euler, vice grand regent; Mrs. Sally Ritter, prophetess; Mrs. Dorothy Shannon, lecturer; Miss Margaret Taugher, financial secretary; Mrs. Louise Barrows, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Eckinrode, historian; Mrs. Kathryn Aud, sentinel, and Mrs. Daisy Hillary, monitor.

Silver Spring—The annual senior class play of Montgomery Blair Senior High School will be given Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p. m. in the school auditorium. A three-act comedy, "Come Out of the Kitchen," will be presented by Marjorie Burke, Jean McCandlish, Mary Ellen Huie, Mary Evelyn Proctor, Marion Martin, Richard Shetterly, Thomas McCeney, Edward Clark, William Groff, Lee Shaver and Curtis Cecil. Miss May Louise Wood is director.

Hold Communion Breakfast

Rockville—At the annual communion breakfast of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Rockville, which followed 8 o'clock mass in St. Mary's Church yesterday, the mothers of the members were guests of honor. John A. Jarboe was master of ceremonies and the speakers were the Rev. William E. Welsh, S. J., president of Georgetown College Preparatory School; J. Francis Reilly, assistant corporation counsel for the District of Columbia; J. Hampton Jones, jr., president of the Holy Name Society, and Rev. James J. Coady, pastor of St. Mary's Church.

The breakfast was served by members of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Mary's Church under direction of Mrs. Leland L. Fisher. The mass which preceded it was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Coady, pastor.

Student Council Elects

Damascus — The Montgomery County Student Council has elected the following new officers: David Baker, Damascus High School, president; Margaret Williams, Richard Montgomery High School, Rockville, vice president; Jean Mines, Montgomery Blair High School, secretary, and Lawrence Mosier, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, treasurer.

1,200 to Dine in Rockville

Rockville.—Plans are under way to serve approximately 1,200 persons at the annual supper for the benefit of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department, which will be held in the fire engine building at Rockville Wednesday and Thursday. Women of Rockville and vicinity will assist members of the department. Clarence E. Anders heads the general committee.

'Mother De Boo' And 'Ma Shack' Are Remembered

Letters and telegrams poured in on the "mothers" of the Army and the Marine Corps yesterday, but the Navy only wrote home.

While "Mother De Boo" at Quantico, Va., and "Ma Shack" at Walter Reed Hospital were deluged with greetings and flowers, a canvas of Navy officials revealed that there was no "Navy Mother."

The Navy is too big for any one mother, according to Comdr. L. P. Lovette. "Who could be the mother of an outfit that's spread all over the world?" he asked.

"Mother De Boo," Mrs. Katherine De Boo, celebrated Mother's Day by witnessing the baptism of her second grandson, 4-month-old Jerry Lawson. "Ma Shack" is Mabel D. Shackelford, Red Cross recreational worker at Walter Reed.

800 Present at Dedication Of Bowie's Firehouse

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 821 Rheems Ave., Hyattsville, Md. Telephone GReenwood 3559.

Nearly 800 persons inspected the new firehouse at Bowie, Md., yesterday afternoon at dedicatory exercises attended by firemen from 12 Prince Georges County companies.

Speakers at the ceremonies were William A. Carson, chairman of the board of county commissioners; Karl H. Young, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association; William Miles, president of the County Volunteer Firemen's Association; Joseph G. Kline, jr., Bowie fire chief; Capt. Vinton D. Cockey, former county commissioner; A. W. Hepburn, county superintendent of police, and Thomas P. Littlepage.

They stressed the growth of the Bowie company and complimented the company upon its raising of $4,000, with which the building was constructed.

Legion Posts Present

Among those present were the Bowie and Laurel American Legion Posts and firemen from Laurel, Branchville, Cottage City, Riverdale, College Park, Glen Dale, Bowie, Forestville, Bladensburg, Mount Rainier, Brentwood and Capitol Heights.

The new building is built of concrete blocks. Cost was $6,800, of which $2,800 was provided through a PWA grant, the remainder being raised by the firemen. Three pieces of fire apparatus can be accommodated while folding doors provide spac in the rear for a club room. The doors can be thrown back, a floor covering removed from the truck room, and the whole building made available for dances and public meetings.

County Towns to Elect

Bowie.—Three Prince Georges County municipalities will elect town officers next month—Bowie, on June 5, and Brentwood and University Park on June 26.

Bowie voters must elect three town commissioners for one-year terms, while Brentwood voters will choose a mayor and two councilmen for two-year terms. Only one office is at stake in University Park, that of Second Ward Councilman William Bowie, whose two-year term is expiring.

William N. Mahaffey, completing his second term as mayor of Brentwood, said last night he would be a candidate to succeed himself. Second Ward Councilman Albert N. Plum has also stated that he will run for re-election. First Ward Councilman J. L. Merkle has not said whether he will be a candidate. Terms of James L. Russell, Third Ward, and Percy Fulton, Fourth Ward, have still a year to run.

Others May Apply

There are as yet no other candidates in the field but nearly a month remains before petitions of candidacy must be filed.

Registrations will be held in the municipal building, June 5 and 19.

No candidacies have been filed in Bowie, where terms of Joseph G. Kline, jr., Aaron Horwitz and William Krietzer are expiring. Deadline for filing is May 27.

Voters may register with J. Lester Paysim, town clerk, until election day, June 5. Polls will be open in the new Bowie firehouse, Lanham-Severn road, from 3 to 7 p. m. on election day.

Stamp Truck Due Today

Hyattsville.—The Post Office Department's new philatelic truck will make its first stop at the postoffice here at 10 a. m. today. The truck, beginning a nation-wide tour, will be greeted by Smith W. Purdum, fourth assistant postmaster general, a resident of Hyattsville; Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, and Egbert F. Tingley, acting Hyattsville postmaster.

The public will be invited to inspect the exhibit in the truck, which includes a copy of every stamp ever issued by the United States. After leaving the postoffice, the truck will be escorted by Tingley to the Hyattsville High School, where the exhibits will be shown to students.

Fairmont Heights Council

Fairmont Heights.—The Fairmont Heights town council at its meeting here Friday night will begin discussion of proposed revisions in town health, police and zoning ordinances, Judge Ulysses Mackall, mayor, said yesterday.

Fairfax 4-H and Home Demonstration Clubs To Celebrate Anniversary of Extension Act

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. BOX 248, Fairfax, Va. Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

Fairfax County Home Demonstration Clubs and 4-H Clubs and other agricultural groups this month will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of the passage of the Smith-Lever act through which funds were provided for co-operative extension work in agriculture and home economics.

Fairfax County was one of the first in the country that had an agriculture agent prior to enactment of the Smith-Lever law. However, the Home Demonstration program was not launched in the county until 1923. County Agricultural Agent J. E. Beard said the first county agricultural agent was J. C. Hunter, of Hunter Station. He was employed in 1910.

Miss Lucy Blake, county home demonstration agent, said that apart from the agriculture program, one of the outstanding accomplishments has been the growth of home demonstration clubs. She states that there are now 450 women in 15 clubs directly participating in home demonstration work, and 600 boys and girls in the 18 4-H clubs. In addition to those actively affiliated with the clubs, there are many more indirectly co-operating. Two of the home demonstration clubs have bought their own property. The Vale Club was the first to acquire community hall, and during the past week the Navy Club has acquired a deed to property that will be developed for a community center.

County Agent Beard said that membership of boys in 4-H Club work, originated here by County Agent H. B.Derr, has increased to more than 200, with an active program.

"The Homemaker, a Handy Man," will be the subject at the meeting of four of the county home demonstration clubs this week. Woodlawn Club will meet today at 2 p. m.; Oakton Club, tomorrow at 2 p. m.; Fairview Club, Wednesday, 2 p. m., and Navy Club, Thursday, 2 p. m.

Miss Blake has scheduled three meetings of 4-H clubs. Centerville Club will meet Friday at 9 a. m. and Franconia Club the same day at 2 p. m. Vale Club will meet Saturday at 1:30 p. m. in Community Hall.

Barkalow Heads P.-T. A.

Cameron Valley.—The Parent-Teacher Association of Lee-Jackson High School has elected Maj. R. H. Barkalow, of New Alexandria, president. Mrs. George Hurd, of Annandale, was named vice president, with Miss Louise Otley, secretary, and Mrs. R. I. Talbott, of Wellington Villa, treasurer.

Miss Josephine Lewis, of Lincolnia, has been elected as valedictorian of the graduating class of the school. Hazel Bunce, of Sherwood Hall, will be salutatorian. Other honor graduates include Ruby King, of Lincolnia; Mary Griffith, of Annandale, and Harvey S. Clapp, of Mount Vernon.

Jane Grubb Rites Tomorrow

Falls Church—Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. for Jane Grubb, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Parry Grubb, who died in her sleep early Sunday morning. Services will be in charge of the Rev. Watkin Leigh Ribble and will be from the Falls Episcopal Church on Lee highway. Burial will follow in Oakwood Cemetery.

Miss Grubb was born in Detroit. She was a student at Washington-Lee High School, Arlington, active in the Falls Church troop of Girl Scouts. She is survived by her parents, her grandmother, Mrs. G. H. Rhodes, a sister Barbara, and two brothers, James and Samuel Parry Grubb, jr.

Theater Meets Tonight

Falls Church—The Falls Church Community Theater will hold a special meeting tonight for election of officers and other business. The next full-length production of the group, the comedy "Three Cornered Moon," will be offered May 22 and 23, the former being the regular date for the business meeting. A surprise entertainment has been planned by two of the members to follow tonight's business session.

President, Hull Are Denounced As 'Unneutral'

Tinkham to Offer Censure Resolution In House Today

Censure of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull for "unneutral actions in the European and Asiatic clashes, is called for in a resolution which Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, announced he will introduce in the House today.

Congress, under terms of the resolution, would "reassert its conviction that the only policy by which the United States can avoid war is the traditional American policy of genuine neutrality, and that refusal of the President and the Secretary of State to pursue such a policy is now leading the United States inevitably to war if and when war comes in Europe."

Charges Bias in Orient

The President and Hull have "plainly and audaciously" violated the United States neutrality law in reference to the Sino-Japanese conflict and have committed unneutral acts in the Far East and "acts of political intervention" in Europe, the resolution reads.

While Tinkham was issuing his blast Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, announced he had sent a letter to the editor of the London Observer, asking for justification of an editorial saying the United States would fight the dictators if they strike again at any independent nation.

"What assurances have been given by any American public official to warrant such a statement?" Fish asked in noting that Congress alone has the power to declare war and it has taken no action with respect to the present situation in Europe.

Holds Britain Is Misled

"A great injustice is being done to the British people by leading them to believe that America intends to police and quarantine the world," the Representative wrote, adding:

"This is addressed to you by the National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars, composed of 50 members and former members of Congress, none of whom knows of any American commitment to substantiate your statement."

A test of sentiment in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the various proposals to repeal or change the neutrality law may be reached this week. Likewise, the House Foreign Affairs Committee seemed moving toward an early showdown.

Villard Protests Sending Leahy To Puerto Rico

A committee of the American Civil Liberties Union protested to President Roosevelt yesterday his appointment of Admiral William D. Leahy as Governor of Puerto Rico.

A telegram, signed by Oswald Garrison Villard, chairman of the "Committee for Fair Play to Puerto Rico," said the protest was not against Leahy personally, but against appointment of a naval officer to handle "civilian problems of extraordinary difficulty.

"We respectfully submit," Villard told the President, "that while the appointment of Admiral Leahy may call further attention in Europe to the decision of the United States to emphasize its military and naval strength in the Caribbean, that has no bearing whatsoever upon the progress, welfare and civil liberties of the desperate and starving Puerto Rican masses, whom Congress has so shamefully neglected."

Franco Newspaper Calls Roosevelts 'Crazy About Reds'

Madrid, May 14 (U.P.).—The Sunday newspaper, Domingo, which is close to the new Nationalist regime, today joined the Nazi-Fascist press in attacks on President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who were described as being "crazy about the Spanish reds."

The newspaper asserted that the United States' policy, like that of Britain, in refusing to give sanctuary to political refugees in the American Embassy in Madrid had encouraged assassination of Franco sympathizers by the Republicans. The article also assailed former United States Ambassador Claude Bowers.

She Lost FAT Husband Pleased

"I am so happy to get rid of that bulky fat. My husband is very pleased with me. My skin is clearer and I feel so much better since I'm not so heavy on my feet. Friends say I look much better." Mrs. N. Spickler, Maugansville, Md.

If you are overweight, try this easy, sensible way to take off fat. No drastic dieting or strenuous exercise; no harmful drugs. Here's all you do: For the next 4 weeks cut out fat meats, butter, cream and rich pastries and go light on potatoes, rice and sugar. (There need never be a hungry moment. You can eat plentifully of lean meats, chicken, fish, salads, green vegetables and fruits. Take one-half a level teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot or cold water every morning, half an hour before breakfast to gently activate liver, bowels and particularly the kidneys—Don't miss a morning. Then weigh yourself again.

Now you'll know one easy, sensible way to take off fat. A way that your doctor should approve of. And remember this, the man or woman who takes Kruschen regularly need have no fear of wastes and excess acids poisoning the system, and which is the cause of many annoying and depressing ills. A 4-oz. bottle of Kruschen lasts 4 weeks and costs but little. You can get Kruschen made in U. S. A. at any drug store in the world. Adv.

different churches. Most of them marched into a chapel on the grounds of Canada's oldest educational institution, Laval University, founded in 1642 by Bishop Laval.

The others went to St. Andrew's Church, a Presbyterian Church founded a few years after the British conquest of Quebec in 1759 by some of Wolfe's Scottish Highlanders.

Officials Get Headache

When it was announced yesterday that King George and Queen Elizabeth would be a day late in arriving, those in charge arranged to offset the delay by cutting out a day in the visit to Ottawa, capital of Canada.

Today, however, when it appeared that Their Majesties would be two days late, responsible officials began to develop a headache.

"We have practically scrapped all our original plans and will not try to reassemble them until we have obtained an audience with the King and learned his pleasure, an official said.

"The entire program had been reduced to minutes—so many minutes here, so many there—and now everything must be rearranged.

"If we can prevail upon His Majesty to delay his departure, say, until June 17 or 18, we can do something. Of course, that would mean delaying the royal party's visit to the United States.

"Inasmuch as the King is to be the guest of the President, that hardly seems feasible."

[The Associated Press said the visit to the United States was expected to be made as scheduled from June 8 to 11.—Editor's note.]

Call for Homage

In connection with the royal visit, Cardinal J. Villeneuve, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, issued instructions to all cures in the Quebec diocese to honor Their Majesties with special prayers. These were said today.

His Eminence also instructed all parish priests on the shores of the lower St. Lawrence to "ring bells in all parish churches as the boat carrying Their Majesties passes." He also called on all the faithful to 'co-operate with the civil authorities in rendering due homage to Their Majesties."

Duce's Speech Lessens Fear In Poland of Danzig Coup

By the United Press.

Warsaw, May 14.—Polish fears of a possible surprise blow by Germany lessened tonight after Premier Mussolini's announcement that there are no European problems justifying war and Nazi denials that Germans are being sent into Danzig for a monster storm troop demonstration.

Polish newspapers reported more than 40,000 young Germans had entered the Free City in the guise of tourists to join a storm troop organization Monday night which might demand an immediate plebiscite on the question of Danzig's return to the Reich.

It also was reported that large quantities of ballots marked "yes" and "no" had been printed in a Danzig newspaper plant, indicating a possible Nazi attempt to stage such a plebiscite.

Mussolini's speech created a profound impression among Polish leaders, who said it undoubtedly would serve as a calming influence on the Nazis.

Despite the more optimistic signs and Nazi denials that any large storm troop demonstration is planned in Danzig, the government kept its 1,300,000 troops under mobilization.

A week ago the German propaganda ministry demanded that Poland give Danzig's population the "right of self-determination"—a plebiscite—to which the Polish government replied immediately that any such attempt would be resisted, by arms if necessary.

Nazi leaders in Danzig denied the reports of the infiltration, and also denied that a "monster storm troop demonstration" was scheduled. About 300 S. S. troops will march through the city after a "routine concert," they said.

Danzig's population of 400,000 is 96 per cent German and a victory for Reichsfuehrer Hitler in any plebiscite would be a foregone conclusion.

[Incidents involving Poland with Germany and the Free City of Danzig have multiplied within the last four days, the Associated Press reported from Danzig.

[Efforts both by the Poles and Nazis to avoid friction appeared to have been relaxed. Shots have been fired but there has been no bloodshed. The incidents have been numerous, although not serious.

[Business is falling off rapidly and merchants say they cannot plan ahead, the dispatch reported, adding that uneasiness in the three Polish provinces bordering on Germany is greater than in the free city. Polish laborers and German land owners alike are nervous.—Editor's note.]

The tension was made more acute by dispatches from Berlin quoting influential Nazis as predicting that Hitler would "liquidate" the dispute with Poland without previous warning and in a totalitarian manner designed to achieve considerably more than the mere return of Danzig to the Reich.

Warsaw, May 14 (AP).—War Minister Gen. Tadeusz Kasprzycki left for Paris today on what was described officially as a "private business" trip, but it was believed he would have important consultations with French military and political leaders.

Admiral Suggests U. S. 'War Game' Off Philippines

Special to The Washington Post

New York, May 14.—The United States must establish a naval base at the Philippine Islands and conduct a "war problem" in that area in order to maintain naval supremacy in the Pacific and "lay the ghost of a perennial war with Japan," Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, U. S. N., retired, declares in his autobiography, "Sea Duty," published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, for release Monday.

Navy May Give Up Dirigible

The Navy may abandon plans for an experimental dirigible due to controversy in Administration and Congressional circles over the projected size and potential military value of lighter-than-air craft, it was learned last night.

A final decision is expected about June 1, when Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, who is ill, returns to duty.

The Navy's original specifications called for a 325-foot ship of 1,000,000 cubic feet capacity but did not bar alternate designs up to 3,000,000 cubic feet as called for in the Congressional authorization.

Meantime, Congressional advocates of lighter-than-air development have renewed clamor for the larger ship, which would be less than half the size of either the ill-fated Macon or Akron. But President Roosevelt, Edison and others in the Navy high command feel that it is preferable to undertake a smaller ship for patrol and training purposes pending further experimentation.

Belgian to Survey Spain for Bankers

Paris, May 14 (U.P.).—Financiers said tonight former Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium had agreed to undertake an economic survey in Spain for European bankers who may make a large reconstruction loan to Gen. Franco, providing he gives pledges of strict neutrality.

Reports of the size of the loan ranged as high as $100,000,000.

Foreign Holdings Up $1,300,000,000 Here in 4 Years

Reflecting unsettled conditions in Europe and apparent foreign confidence in American stability, foreign investors increased their net holdings of American securities by $1,300,000,000 from 1933 to 1937 inclusive, a Securities and Exchange Commission survey disclosed today.

The survey revealed that American investors, chiefly small investors, have decreased their holdings, not only in domestic but in foreign securities, while big insurance companies, banks and trusts have increased their domestic holdings.

Over the five-year period, net issues of domestic corporation securities aggregated only $900,000,000. Thus, the survey pointed out, the $1,300,000,000 purchases by foreign investors "not only were sufficient to account for all the net security issues of domestic corporations, but also to reduce by nearly $400,000,000 the amount of such securities held by domestic investors."

Doctors Weigh Tax-Aided Care Of Indigent Ill

Medical Association Is Holding Annual Session in St. Louis

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 14.—Prospects that 40,000,000 to 60,000,000 Americans may become eligible to tax-paid, or tax-aided, medical service was the main issue discussed informally today by physicians gathering here for the annual meeting of the American Medical Association. Upward of 10,000 doctors are expected.

In the Wagner bill now before Congress some leaders professed to see the opening of the door to a major social revolution.

The bill would appropriate $92,000,000 for 1940 in six classes of Federal aid to States for medical care. In 1941 the money would be $103,000,000 plus "sufficient" to care for indigent and unemployed sick at that time coming under State networks yet to be set up and if they are approved. In 1942, $199,000,000 plus the same kind of "sufficient" funds. States would contribute.

A. M. A. Backs Principle

The principle on which the bill is based has been accepted by the A. M. A., by other groups of physicians and by President Roosevelt's health counselors. The principle is tax money to help indigent sick.

But how to do it is drawing these main criticisms from doctors:

Three Federal officials would control not only the money but directly and indirectly the kind of medical service in each State. Anything, up to a State paying for the sickness of everyone, is possible.

Only local control can be medically efficient and that is not provided for specifically. Care of the sick is for doctors and should not be controlled by public health officials. Administrative personnel is provided for without specification of its medical qualifications.

The Wagner bill would provide new hospitals. Critics declare existing hospitals are not fully used.

Committee Statement

On the less critical side, a printed statement from the Committee of Physicians for the Improvement of Medical Care, a small group within the A. M. A., says that under the Wagner bill competent administration of tax-paid medical care should be possible.

This report estimates the present medically indigent at 40,000,000 and that the per capita expense of caring for really indigent is likely to be $20 to $30 each a year instead of $10, a widely publicized figure. It says that 60 per cent of the population, running up to 60,000,000 or more, receives $1,200 or less a year. It forecasts that partial medical aid from tax or private monies may be necessary for this class of citizens.

Mrs. Berryhill To Retire Today; 41 Years With U. S.

A veteran who came to the Government service at a time when the entire accounts of the Agriculture Department were handled by one person will be retired today after almost 41 years in harness.

Mrs. Berryhill

She is Mrs. Miriam Ballinger Berryhill, Agriculture Department traffic manager since 1928. Now in her seventieth year, she took her first Government job on July 18, 1898. Under Secretary Wilson, Mrs. Berryhill conducted the department's internal fiscal affairs singlehanded.

At 4:15 p. m. today in the Agriculture Building patio she will be bidden farewell by a host of her colleagues, past and present.

Six More Bodies To Be Exhumed For Poison Tests

Philadelphia, May 14 (U.P.).—Coroner Charles H. Hersch tonight ordered exhumation of the bodies of six more suspected victims of the murder for insurance syndicate that is blamed for more than 100 deaths.

Bodies to be disinterred were those of Mrs. Lena Winkleman, Abraham Sherman, Louis La Vecchio, Mrs. Jennie Peno, David Smigel and Anthony Giacobbe.

The alleged "arsenic widows" of four of the men whose bodies are to be exhumed are under arrest. They are Mrs. Rose Smigel Shenkman, 35, remarried last November; Mrs. Rose Davis, who allegedly has confessed poisoning her first husband, La Vecchio, for $1,600 insurance; Mrs. Dora Sherman, 62, proprietor of a live chicken market, charged with conspiracy to kill her husband in 1936, and Mrs. Millie Giacobbe, who twice has attempted suicide.

British Firm In New Policy, Eden Asserts

Only Danger to Peace Now Is in Scoffing At Earnestness, He Says

By Anthony Eden.
Former British Foreign Secretary. By Wireless and Special Wire to The Post.

London, May 14.—For the greater part of last year Europe was engaged in what M. Duhamel, the French writer, has aptly called in a recent book, "The White War of 1938."

The axis objectives of last autumn, like the objectives of last spring and the objectives of this March, were all of them strategic. This is now nowhere in dispute. The entry of German troops into Prague two months ago brought final conviction even to the most reluctant.

To Recreate Security

The spectacle of successive acts of aggression carried through in violation of agreements recently entered into has had its inevitable consequence. The British people are now united, determined to join with other peace-loving nations, whatever their political complexion, in resistance to further aggression.

However, this policy may be christened, it is an effort to re-create a system of collective security. To cry halt to the practice of gangster methods between nations and to restore a measure of international confidence.

It is popular to interpret the present condition of the world as a struggle between contrasting political ideologies in which the democracies and the dictatorships are at odds. But to reason thus is to leave too much out of account.

The fundamental differences which today divide Europe are not wholly nor even mainly concerned with forms of government in any land, but with the conduct of international relations. Nor is it accurate to maintain that all democracies have one conception of how international affairs should be conducted and all dictatorships another which is in sharp antithesis.

Nations Self-Excluded

The great majority of nations, whatever their form of government, are agreed that they form part of an interdependent community and that they have in consequence to accept certain standards of conduct for the regulation of their affairs as any community must do.

Those who have refused to live with other nations on this community basis have thereby excluded themselves. The remaining nations are thereby compelled to combine to protect the collective interest which is the maintenance of certain international standards which alone distinguish civilian from anarchy.

In pursuit of this objective the British people accordingly seek the co-operation of all countries whose aim has been to preserve these standards, whatever their form of government and whatever their political complexion. It is this same conception of international right which unites all the nations, including Soviet Russia, with whom Great Britain has been in negotiation during these last weeks. Whether the form of the government of these nations is democratic or totalitarian has nothing to do with the matter.

British Are in Earnest

The chief danger to peace in the immediate future is that there should be any misunderstanding anywhere of the seriousness of purpose of the British people in pursuing the foreign policy upon which they are now embarked.

There is no lack of propaganda today directed to create a suspicion that the British people are not in earnest. There is in fact not even the flimsiest foundation for any such suspicion, but this knowledge cannot excuse the British people from making use of every influence which they can command to carry conviction.

The acceptance of a measure of compulsory military service in Great Britain where the voluntary tradition is so strong was itself invaluable for this purpose. The conclusion of an early agreement between Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia would carry the process a vital step further. That there are difficulties is admitted. But the British people cannot accept that they are insuperable, for the success of the policy upon which they are now engaged depends in a large measure upon the speed and completeness of the arrangements that can be made.

French Roused By Italian Seizures

Paris, May 14 (AP).—The entire municipal government of the little village of Isolm, on the French-Italian frontier, resigned today in protest against the Italian army's seizure of its inhabitants' homes on the other side of the border south of Turin.

French families who had lived on the Italian side working their farmlands there under the treaty of 1860, by which a slice of French territory was given Italy, completed their enforced evacuation on April 16.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

NOVACHORD JOINS UNION: Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room, is now playing the novachord with his orchestra, as well as using it for concert solo work. This marks a highly significant decision by the Musicians Union, which has hitherto fought the novachord tooth and nail, holding that the remarkably versatile instrument might throw many musicians out of work, and forbidding its use with orchestras.

The new union attitude, promulgated from New York, is that the novachord may be added to orchestras provided that there are no resultant lay-offs. But a novachord may not be brought into any place as a substitute for a previously used musical unit. Thus the causes of both musical progress and unionism are served. Director Davis is elated over the decision. "It's like adding five pieces to the orchestra," he says.

P. S.—The Rainbow Room boys are all togged out in their new summer outfits of tan gabardine.

RIVIERA LADY: Mrs. Fordyce Minnick (known professionally as Evelyn Tyner), wife of Manager Minnick, of 2400 Sixteenth street, often steps up on the Lounge Riviera bandstand and takes over the piano from Pete Macias. As musicians say, she "plays a beautiful piano."

Big news is that Mrs. Minnick and Burrus Williams (he used to play piano at Heigh Ho) will be featured in a double piano act at the Capitol Theater during the week beginning June 9.

SONG FOR OSCAR: Andy Melvin, young Washington song writer (whose "Goodbye, My Heart," is being played all over town, has written a brightly amusing song in honor of that prize host, Oscar of the Hi Hat. It will be sung for the first time at Oscar's third anniversary party on June 1. We can just see the Red Jackets swinging out on the chorus line, "Why not? The music's hot and it's Oscar's third anniversaree!"

FACES AROUND PLACES: Mayflower Lounge: Baroness Cattanei, of Milan and Venice, who is in this country to visit gardens in the East . . . Former Wisconsin Senator F. Ryan Duffy and Mrs. Duffy . . . Mrs. John Lawrence, whose husband is aide to Admiral Merrick, of Bermuda.

In the Carlton: Petite and blonde Mrs. George Allen, wife of the former District Commissioner . . . Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles.

In the Shoreham Blue Room: Representative Sam Rayburn bringing a party to see Marian Wilkons dance . . . J. O. Lampkin, head of the cotton pool of the Department of Agriculture . . . Miss Helen Mark being greeted by a whimsical friend wearing a foot-long stalk of gladioli as a boutonniere.

In Lounge Riviera: Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge hosting a party of six . . . Evelyn McLean, in sports clothes, dancing with John Galliher.

In the Rainbow Room: Hollywood's George Raft, Brian Donlevy and Anthony Quinn all sitting in a corner and sipping . . . Topak and the Reese Brothers from the Capitol Theater all cutting up on the dance floor.

In Lotus: Representative Carl Henshaw, of California, tossing a big party in honor of Tom Keene, star of Western movies. Also there was Dolly Mackay, said to be the most beautiful leading girl in Westerns.

DANCING MAGICOS: Sonya and Romero, comedy dancers, who also do magic and acrobatics, head the new show in the Shoreham Blue Room. Held over are Dancer Marian Wilkons and prize-winning barytone, Jerry Junkin.

MURIEL GIRLS: The luscious Muriel Kretzlow Girls (see picture above) will waltz into the Lotus today. They've come clear from Chicago. New also will be Glenn Mason. All we know about him is that he has a "novelty act." Those rather marvelous dancers, Federico and Jeannette, will remain for another week.

AT ECHO, BY GOLLY! Into Glen Echo's Spanish ballroom tonight will move the much-heralded Cecil Golly Orchestra and its singing stars, Nancy Gay, who warbles a la Martha Raye, and Gene Eyman, "scat" specialist.

P. S.—Sure to be on hand to greet Maestro Cecil will be his old classmate at the University of Iowa, Jack Watson, secretary to Representative Ben F. Jensen, of Iowa.

BAMBOO HOLDOVER: Those clever "Versatiles" will remain at Bamboo for another week. Also those splendid dancers, the Rogers, who were mistakenly referred to as Antoine and Du Barry. There'll be new acts, too. Many specialty numbers.

NEVER MISS: Hearing Mayfair's Leo and Louanna sing "Beer Barrel Polka." It's practically rolling the customers out of their chairs. You know Leo's motto—"Anything for a laugh."

Getting around to the Madrillon at cocktail time. Songs by Adelita and Valencia. A carefree-plus atmosphere. Drinks mixed to a nicety.

Taking in Russ Cullen's (Cafe Caprice) version of "Three Little Fishies." He's doing it with water bubbling effects as well as fish talk.

Attending that midnight supper session at the Neptune Room. Hawaiian rhythm by Johnny De Leon. Hula dancing that is hula dancing by Rita Lopez.

WORST LUCK was that of beauteous Eve Knight (singer of the King Cole Room and Hour Glass) whose nose was broken in a motor accident last week-end. She was just getting ready to go on a vacation. Now she'll have to spend it in the hospital. Jackie Burroughs will pinch-hit for Evie while she's away.

President's Mother, British Peers Heard At New York Rally

New York, May 14.—A campaign for "moral rearmament" which already has spread from the British House of Lords to the bunkhouse of a Montana ranch was inaugurated in the United States tonight at a citizens' meeting in Madison Square Garden.

Messages from three cabinet members—Secretary of State Hull, Attorney General Murphy and Secretary of War Woodring—were sent to the rally, which was sponsored by 150-odd civic and business leaders and 34 sports headliners.

Indorsements also were received from Representative Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, Speaker of the House; Govs. Lehman of New York, and Vanderbilt, of Rhode Island, and Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, majority leader of the Senate, among others.

Speaking from London by radio were the Marquis of Salisbury, former leader of the House of Lords; Louisa, countess of Antrim, and Tod Sloan, labor leader.

Written messages included one from a group of Montana cowboys, who said, "out here moral rearmament means letting God put his brand on you instead of running with the herd."

Additional messages were read from Herbert Hoover, Supreme Court Justice Douglas and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles A. Edison.

Dr. Frank Buchman, leader of the Oxford Group, which originated "MRA," said "moral rearmament is a national necessity if we are to win the war against chaos. It is a race with time to remake men and nations. It must move with lightning speed. MRA is the people's mandate for a change of heart in every land."

Bulgaria Protests 22 Slayings by Rumanian Police

Sofia, May 14 (AP).—The Bulgarian government today ordered its Minister to Rumania to protest vigorously against what it called the "willful slaughter" of 22 Bulgarians by Rumanian gendarmes in Dobruja last Wednesday.

There were violent anti-Rumanian demonstrations in several towns. Angry crowds called for the return of Dobruja, which Rumania took from Bulgaria as a war prize.

Rumania Denies Charges

Bucharest, May 14 (AP).—A Rumanian foreign office communique tonight denied Bulgarian charges of persecution in the Dobruja and reiterated an earlier statement that "20 bandits" were slain in the village of Belitza last Wednesday. (The Bulgarian foreign office said they were "innocent Bulgarian villagers.)

U. S. Mission Reported Bombed

Chungking, China, May 14 (AP).—The United States Embassy heard today that the American Lutheran mission at Tangho, Honan Province, was damaged by Japanese bombs May 3. All Americans at the mission escaped injury.

Hundreds of cases of cholera were reportoed today among Chinese refugees and soldiers following the series of devastating air raids launched by the Japanese on Chungking, May 5, and the Chinese officials redoubled efforts to remove civilians from the city.

Zionists Assail Palestine Plan Before Release

'Catastrophe' Will Follow Concessions To Arabs, They Warn

By the United Press.

London, May 14.—The Zionist Federation of Great Britain and Ireland tonight passed a resolution openly defying the British government's new Palestine plan, to be announced this week, and opened the way for a political storm.

The resolution, warning the government of a "catastrophe," amounted to advance rejection of the government's scheme for ending the Holy Land's religious war. Prime Minister Chamberlain probably will announce the plan in the House of Commons Tuesday, to be followed by publication of a "white paper" setting forth details.

The plan was condemned as a British effort to "buy the friendship of the Arabs."

Connections in Europe

Britain's decision to make vital concessions to the Palestine Arabs—the Jews claim at their expense—appeared to have a direct connection with Europe's struggle between the anti-aggression and totalitarian powers.

Informed neutral observers said that Britain is determined to exert every effort to prevent the Rome-Berlin axis, and particularly Italy, from winning increased sympathy among the Arabs.

Tonight's Zionist resolution said that any solution of the Palestine problem must be based on complete respect for the promise made to the world's Jews of a "national home" in Palestine.

Prof. Selig Brodetzky, head of the political department of the World Jewish Agency, told the federation that "we shall continue to immigrate, settle and build a national home in Palestine despite all obstacles."

The new British plan provides for:

Termination of the Palestine mandate and the creation of an autonomous Palestine eight years hence with the Arabs wielding a three-to-one majority over the Jews in the proposed legislature.

Curtailment of Jewish immigration and the virtual stoppage of Jewish immigration after five years.

Seek to Forestall Plan

Jerusalem, May 14 (AP).—Jewish leaders were reported today to be drafting drastic plans to forestall Britain's expected new policy for Palestine.

Reliable sources expressed belief Britain might put the white paper into effect [illegible] its publication and said Jews would make every effort to prevent what they generally believe will mean the end of Palestine as their national home.

Hitler Inspects Fortifications Near Belgium

Berlin, May 14 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, accompanied by leading military officials, started an inspection today of Germany's fortifications near Aachen on the Belgian border.

It was stated that the object of the Fuehrer's visit was to inspect fortifications which have been finished and "new works which are about to be completed."

The works were so nearly completed last October that Germany regarded herself ready for any eventuality during the crisis over Czecho-Slovakia, and military commanders now are saying that, sheltered by a wall of steel and concrete in the west, Germany can give her "undivided attention to problems of the east."

Snite Leaves in His Iron Lung For French Shrine of Miracles

100 Frineds Cheer Start of Pilgrimage To Our Lady of Lourdes; Father Hopes Visit Will Lead to Cure for Paralyzed Son

By the Associated Press.

Miami Beach, Fla., May 14.—Amid cries of "Good luck, Fred," and "God be with you," Fred Snite, jr., started a 12,000-mile journey in his iron lung today that will lead to the Shrine of Miracles at Lourdes, France.

The 28-year-old infantile paralysis victim, whose life for more than there years has depended upon the constant functioning of a mechanical respirator, was placed aboard a special car shortly before noon for the first part of a trip to Europe and back to his Chicago home.

More than 100 persons were gathered to see the young man, first stricken March 31, 1936, in China, while on a world tour, leave on his latest journey, which will make his total travels in the breathing device about 27,000 miles.

Accompanying him were his parents, a physician, five nurses, a physiotherapist and two orderlies. Dennis Scanlan, of St. Paul, Minn., developer of a small chest respirator; Warren E. Collins, inventor of the larger respirator, and a chauffeur completed the party.

Fred's pilgrimage to the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes has a twofold purpose. Primarily, he seeks spiritual strengthening of his deeply religious philosophy, but his father, a Chicago small-loan financier, has hopes that "a Divine Providence" will reward his son with some physical improvement.

A specially constructed automobile trailer had been sent ahead to New York. In it young Snite will travel May 23 from Le Havre to Tours, Bordeaux and Lourdes.

Britain Expects Soviet Reply to Speed Alliances

London, May 14 (AP).—A Russian reply early this week to Britain's latest plan for collaboration between London and Moscow was expected tonight to advance the British-French front another step toward winning a new ally.

British circles were hopeful that Moscow would give up original demands for a hard and fast military alliance. However, it was regarded as certain in virtually all British political quarters that an agreement would be reached soon.

As a result of political demands, Prime Minister Chamberlain was reported prepared to go to almost any length short of an outright military alliance to bring the Soviet Union into the British-French bloc.

Diplomatic circles, however, saw little likelihood of an agreement before the League of Nations council meeting at Geneva May 22 when the British and French foreign ministers will have an opportunity to talk with Vladimir P. Potemkin, Russian first assistant foreign commissar.

Duce Holds War Unnecessary Now

Sees Economic Duel

Then he asked whether, to "the sincere desire of the totalitarian states" there was a "correspondingly sincere desire of peace of the great democracies' an'd the crowd interrupted with cries of "No!"

"You have already answered," Il Duce went on. "I limit myself to saying that in view of their acts it is proper to doubt it . . .

"That the great democracies are not sincerely devoted to the cause of peace is uncontestably demonstrated in that they have already started what might be called a white war—that is to say, a war on economic ground."

Il Duce declared Italy and Germany would march together "to give Europe that peace with justice which is the profound desire of all peoples." But, he added:

"The formidable, rapidly increasing bloc of 150,000,000 which grows from the Baltic to the Indian Ocean will not permit itself to be overpowered.

"Any attack will be useless, any attack will be repulsed with the greatest decision."

Referring sarcastically to rumors of Italo-German friction, he said:

"Those who, perhaps, with inverted telescopes have at times perceived a possible split or fracture now will be confused and humiliated. Let no one harbor further ridiculous delusions nor abandon himself to superficial casuistry because the doctrine of fascism is clear and my will as inflexible as before and even more so. . . .

"We do not desire peace simply because our internal situation is, as has been said, catastrophic. It is now 17 years that our adversaries have awaited the famous catastrophe in vain, and they will wait a whole lot longer.

"And not because of physical fear of war, for that sentimen tis wholly unknown to us. That is why elucidations of some table strategists beyond the nearby frontier who talk of an easy passage into the Po valley make us laugh. . . . That kind of war longer is conceivable."

Not By Gold Alone

"It is not only with gold that wars are won. Besides gold, and more important, is will, and still more important is courage."

The premier charged that "a system of pistols pointed against Germany and Italy" had been created at Versailles and, having "irreparably collapsed," efforts were being made "to subsitute it with guarantees more or less demanded and more or less plurilateral."

"And after the pistol system," he said, "the system of guarantees also will collapse."

The League of Nations, he said, "lies entombed and unwept in the great mausoleum erected for it on the shore of Lake Geneva."

Mussolini summed up Italy's internal condition with th estatement, "The people and regime in Italy constitute an absolutely indivisible bloc," and concluded:

"Comrades, no matter what happens I declare to you with absolute certainty that all our objectives will be reached."

Paris, May, 14 (AP).—French diplomatic circles today read between the lines of Premier Mussolini's speech an urgent notice to France to open negotiations on Italy's issue with her.

Diplomats called Il Duce's speech moderate on the surface. Some observers also found a studied coincidence in the simultaneous inspection of French frontiers by both Mussolini and his axis partner, Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Reaction in London was that Mussolini's speech was pacific and moderate. His emphasis on the point that there was no need for war was widely regarded as a sign that, as far as Italy was concerned, there was no question Il Duce was not willing to negotiate.

Diplomatic circles in Rome regarded the address as generally moderate.

Observers were of the opinion Mussolini's speech had not altered the European situation materially since it mainly was a reassertion of Italy's stand.

Innitzer Pleads For Strong Church

Vienna, May 14 (AP).—Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, in a message read to all Catholic churches in Austria, appealed to believers today not to leave the fold as the Church faced increased pressure from national socialism.

New financial burdens on the Church, due to imminent discontinuance of subsidies which had been paid by the state, brought Austrian bishops together in a conference today to study the problem.

California Fantasy

In what seems more sorrow than surprise that his story should be questioned, Mr. George Palmer Putnam denies that his recent harrowing experience at the hands of Nazi kidnapers was a publicity stunt. But perhaps it is not extraordinary that such a suspicion should have been raised.

About a month ago the name of Mr. Putnam appeared as publisher on the title page of an anonymous work called "The Man Who Killed Hitler." The book is about an Austrian psychiatrist, who changes identities with a paranoiac patient in order to become an Elite Guard and so obtains an opportunity to slay the Feuhrer. Despite the considerable sum invested by Mr. Putnam in advertising it, this book has had, up to now, no earth-shaking success.

The idea that sales might perk up a bit if something could be done to cause mention of the book on the front pages of nearly all the newspapers in the land seems, of course, a very logical one. But rarely, if ever, does anything occur in the proximity of Hollywood according to the rules of logic.

Thus, by its very illogic, the behaviour of the kidnapers, who lured Mr. Putnam from his home, carried him 100 miles away and left him bound and gagged, but not too tightly, in an abandoned house, but not too far from rescuers, seems credible. Something as magnificently irrational as that is precisely what might be expected of Nazi enthusiasts who come under the mesmeric influence of the Southern California climate.

Mr. Putnam's kidnapers were in fact, so thoroughly assinine that the FBI men, unless they, too, are bewitched by the climate, should have very little difficulty in bringing to light complete details of the case.

Opening Oak Hill

An American visiting Europe for the first time is greatly impressed by the abundance and richness of the legacies inherited from a long vanished past. He visits public buildings in which history was made hundreds of years ago, and he looks at the houses and possessions of great men long dead. These tangible links with the lives of earlier generations have great educational value, emphasizing the fact that the present is rooted in the past. History ceases to be a dull recital of names and dates to those who have seen the intimate surroundings in which great happenings have taken place.

Because this Nation is comparatively young, Americans have too few opportunities to add to their knowledge of the past by the methods of direct observation. But we are keenly and increasingly aware of the educational value as well as the esthetic pleasure to be derived from visits to such historic places as Mount Vernon, Monticello, and the Lee Mansion in Arlington.

Widespread interest will be aroused, therefore, by the announcement that another famous Virginia residence will shortly be open on certain days for the inspection of visitors. It is Oak Hill in Loudoun County, 35 miles from Washington, now the property of Frank C. Littleton. The house was built for President Monroe according to plans drawn by Jefferson and executed by James Hoban, builder of the White House. Here President Monroe drafted the famous document embodying the so-called Monroe Doctrine, and here he spent the last years of his life.

During the past 20 years the present owner of Oak Hill has made many improvements. He has restored and extended the mansion itself, in accord with the original plans. He has also collected many articles of furniture of great historic value, including various pieces that belonged to Monroe himself. Mr. Littleton's public-spirited decision to permit visitors to inspect the treasures of Oak Hill will be deeply appreciated not only by lovers of the beautiful but also by students of history.

President Monroe's name is indissolubly associated with a doctrine that has had a tremendous influence upon the conduct of our foreign relations ever since it was enunciated. He should be much better known than he now is. The opening of Oak Hill may well arouse a new interest in the fifth President and his administration.

Sign Of Confusion

President Roosevelt's controversy with Western cattlemen over the relative merits of Argentine and domestic beef in the diet of the Navy has many aspects of a teapot tempest. Yet the President's remarks carry far-reaching implications in the fields of both agricultural policy and foreign relations.

In approving the purchase of a relatively small order of corned beef from the Argentine, Mr. Roosevelt apparently had in mind two objectives. One was to throw a sop to Buenos Aires where the exclusion of Argentine beef from this country is bitterly resented. The other was doubtless to chide the Senate for its failure to ratify the Argentine sanitary convention. That agreement would permit our Latin-American neighbor to send us beef from those parts of its area which are entirely free of the hoof and mouth disease.

Gestures of good will to friendly foreign countries are always in order. And the Administration certainly has a good case in advocating elimination of the disguised embargo which discriminates against Argentine beef. Whatever protection is given the domestic cattle industry should be openly determined without putting any country at a special disadvantage. In so far as the President was trying to offset the unfortunate reactions which the attitude of the Senate has produced in the leading country of South America, there will be much sympathy with his attitude.

But the President was not satisfied with making a gesture of good will. His comments on the "superiority" of Argentine corned beef and the spread between prices asked for the foreign and domestic products have aroused the ire of many Congressmen as well as cattlemen. Already a move is afoot to compel the Navy to buy it's meat in this country. If passed, such legislation would merely arouse further resentment among the Argentinians.

Moreover, the President's emphasis upon the advantages of buying cheap foreign beef for the Navy seems to cast a shadow over the Administration's entire agricultural policy. The aim of the AAA is to raise farm prices and farmers' income. To accomplish that purpose it has attempted to keep prices of various commodities above the world market level. Just a few weeks ago the President threw his influence behind a move to subsidize cotton exports so that the domestic price could be maintained above prices abroad, without further loss of our foreign trade in this commodity.

Having thus attempted to place American agriculture on a higher economic plane than it occupies in many competing countries, the President now concludes that meat produced under this system is too expensive for the Navy to buy. He might use the same argument for the purchase of cheap uniforms manufactured in Japan from Brazilian cotton. But in either case, the President's attitude seems to add another element of profound confusion to the Administration's farm policy.

In his last annual report Secretary Wallace declared: "It is virtually certain that in one way or another we shall have to limit our production for export and take steps to guard the domestic market from the influence upon it of bargain-counter prices." If the Administration is now ready to scrap the AAA and seek "bargain counter prices" for farm products, some logic may be found in the President's enthusiasm over 9-cent corned beef. But if price-boosting efforts of the AAA are to continue, the least the Administration can do is to pay the prices it has helped to maintain above world market levels.

Not even the President can eat his beef and have it, too.

The Florida Canal

After voting to add nearly $400,000,000 to the farm bill the Senate is currently debating the Sheppard bill authorizing completion of the Florida ship canal. It is conceded that this project would cost at least $200,000,000. Indeed, some opponents of the undertaking assert that this figure would be doubled if relief labor were employed.

Not only is the cost of the canal a subject of controversy, but its usefulness is also open to question. Adverse official reports have been succeeded by others favorable to the project. There are differences of opinion as to the probable effect of the canal upon underground water supplies. There is disagreement as to the amount of ocean-borne shipping that would use this proposed short cut. Hence, no layman can venture to say more than that the entire project seems extremely dubious in view of the conflict of expert testimony.

Moreover, even if the experts were in agreement as to the economic desirability of such a canal, this would be a most inopportune time to authorize its construction. The Senate has already alarmed the country by its prodigal voting of funds for the benefit of farmers. The advocates of economy have failed conspicuously to bring their legislative actions into conformity with their professions. If the Senate now proceeds to approve another costly undertaking of dubious value for which there is no pressing need, it might as well abandon the pretense that it is opposed to extravagant expenditure or seriously concerned about the unbalanced state of the budget.

Utility Profits

The rise in net earnings of the utility industry during the current year is an encouraging sign of recovery. Indeed, advance estimates indicate that the returns for the second quarter of the year may be the largest for any corresponding period since 1931. In face of this showing, one may well wonder why the industry has complained so bitterly of the Administration's power policies, and why it has been so pessimistic about the general outlook.

From whatever source it springs, the pessimism of the utilities appears to be genuine. This is indicated by the fact that the recovery in earnings has not been accompanied by any corresponding upturn in new financing. On the contrary, the volume of new financing during the first three months of the year was at a very low level. Less than $40,000,000 of bonds and stocks were sold by operating companies, or about one-third the total of the same quarter in 1938. Although new financing is now picking up decidedly, it is still very limited by comparison with the amounts of capital that might find profitable investment if conditions were propitious.

That, of course, is the burden of complaint voiced by spokesmen for the utilities. Unlike representatives of many other industries, they do not lack opportunities to make profits. But they lack confidence to risk new developments until assured that their interests will not be threatened by competition from subsidized Government projects.

No doubt many concerns regard the fate of private companies in the Tennessee Valley as a warning to proceed with caution. The fact that private properties in that region were sold to the TVA at good prices helps to allay anxiety, but Federal subsidies for the construction of municipal power systems still threaten private utilities with competition they cannot meet on an even basis. It may be that this industry exaggerates the handicaps confronting it; but so long as its fears persist, something more than points will probably be essential to bring about the needed expansion.

Planetarium for D. C.

Most of the school children who have been invited to participate in an essay contest on Washington's need for a planetarium will probably be at a real disadvantage. For it is reasonable to suppose that few of them have ever seen a planetarium. Should enthusiasm for the contest be lacking it may be simply ascribed to the fact that Washington children do not realize what they have missed.

Children as well as adults can learn more about the universe in which they live in half an hour within a planetarium than in many weeks of plodding through written explanations. They find themselves suddenly in a microcosm where the sun, the moon and the stars move in orderly sequence as natural as their seeming journeys across the sky. They observe the relations between various heavenly bodies and some of the peculiar characteristics of individual stars. They emerge with a new and more accurate concept of the place the earth occupies among the multitudinous worlds known to science.

By all means Washington should have a planetarium. The star-gazing which occurs here because this is the Nation's Capital will never take the place of a dome in which imitation planets can be made to move with scientific precision. Before many decades have passed all large cities will probably operate planetariums as adjuncts to their educational systems. Washington should take a place in the vanguard of this movement. It is gratifying to note that a national planetarium committee is working toward that end.

Jefferson's Statue

Reports indicate that a sculptor to execute the statue to Thomas Jefferson, which will be erected in the memorial now under construction on the south bank of the Tidal Basin, will be selected in a manner worthy of the subject—by an unlimited, national competition.

The result should be the best that America can produce to honor one of our greatest Presidents. No doubt the competition will also help to counteract the ill-feelings aroused by the arbitrary award of the architectural contract. It is pleasing to contemplate that at least one feature of the memorial will reflect the democratic tradition which Jefferson symbolizes in the minds of the people.

"We are now raising a race which from birth looks to others for its bread," declares a United States Senator. A people can't exist if all are politicians.

A man walking around Washington in a daze couldn't tell authorities what his name was or even with what branch of the Government he was connected.

'It Provided Advertisement'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial of May 8 you quote the Singapore Free Press partly as follows: "Marian Anderson . . . cannot sing in Washington as her license has been barred by the D. A. R." You think this description as "fantastic," and suggest that Mr. Ickes might find in this "garble" material for a comment in his battle for a free press.

Frankly, the explanation of the Singapore Free Press was to me essentially correct. It was far more true than many of the editorials and speeches made to explain the attitude or stand of the D. A. R. The power of semi-public or licensed halls to refuse artists on account of race or color can lead in effect to denial of license to perform.

Some of your readers do not believe the Anderson affair was "shamelessly exploited," as you write. In fact it accomplished much good. It provided advertisement for Miss Anderson that would have cost many a more needful singer thousands of dollars. It acquainted thousands of liberal citizens and millions of foreigners that Washington was not a typical free American city. It furnished thousands of patriotic citizens with reason and opportunity for suggesting procedure for amending our laws of mores.

Women's Bets

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A fine "sports writer" Considine has turned out to be! He forgets the old saying, "What is sauce for the ganser is sauce for the goose." True, women do not shoot the whole week's salary when they make a bet; they just cannot go the whole hog like their big-shot mates are prone to do.

If the girls want to have a little fun in a moderate way, poke fun at them if you will, but don't let your columnists get extreme about it; even though some of our husbands do think he was funny in his dissertation of May 12 on the pari-mutuel Paulines. TRAITER D'HAUT.

The Griffenhagen Proposals

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of May 12 gives an account of an address by Mr. Henry I. Quinn, who resigned his membership on the Board of Education to conduct a one-man campaign against the Griffenhagen proposals to reorganize the District government. He is reported to have deplored President Roosevelt's "failure" to appoint a third District Commissioner to succeed George E. Allen and to have further stated that "conditions could not be worse if there had been a deliberate attempt to discredit the present form of District government."

To keep the public record straight, it should be pointed out that Mr. Quinn was a member of the Citizens' Efficiency Committee, appointed by the District Commissioners on March 1, 1937, and headed by Mr. E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel. This committee surveyed the present organization of the District government and submitted a report to the Commissioners in December, 1937, when there were three District Commissioners. And that committee's report was one of the strongest indictments ever made against our local government. Here are the exact words of the committee, of which Mr. Quinn was a member:

"It finds that the District government is in need of a thorough, general reorganization and modernization. The last general overhauling of this government was in the 1870s. Since that time, the nature of the District has completely changed, from a straggling collection of separated communities and agricultural sections to a modern metropolis with a concentrated population throughout its confines. Moreover, Congress has from time to time enacted legislation on special problems of the local government, but unfortunately no comprehensive plan of organization has been developed.

"As existing services have been enlarged or new municipal services have been provided through the years, additional departments, bureaus, boards and commissions have been created, and with them the necessary personnel. Having no definite plan, the machinery of city government has taken on regular and special activities with little or no reference to existing services. Often when a new activity has been provided, it has been thrown wherever it has been most convenient at the time, with little thought of existing services, sound organization, or integration of procedure and method.

"The general results of such rather haphazard development are duplication and overlapping of services, lack of centralized responsibility, unnecessary duplication of overhead, conflicts in authority, inconvenience to citizens and taxpayers, and some waste in public expenditures, not through the fault of public officials but because of the unnecessary complexity of the governmental structure they must administer. Some features of the government are out of date, the functions of many are curiously dispersed and the responsibility of various authorities curiously intermingled."

It was this indictment by the Citizens' Efficiency Committee, of which Mr. Quinn was a member, and similar indictments by other committees established for the same purpose, which no doubt led Representative Kennedy to obtain the assistance of outside municipal experts, having no personal interest in the District government, to provide us with that "thorough, general reorganization and modernization" which the District government needs. And, if recent newspaper accounts are correct, the President's so-called "failure" to appoint a third Commissioner is due, not to his desire to discredit the present form of District government, as Mr. Quinn would have us believe, but because he wished to wait until some degree of order in our local governmental structure could be brought about by Congress to supplant the chaotic conditions which Mr. Quinn, by his membership on the Citizens' Efficiency Committee, has told us are existing here in the District.

No matter what else may be said of the Griffenhagen proposals, they are but an outgrowth, and perhaps an advancement, of the work of the Citizens' Efficiency Committee and of the other committees which have made recommendations concerning the reorganization of our local government. They represent progress in this line of endeavor. If they go too far in some respects, or not far enough in others, I am sure that reasonable changes could be made by constructive criticism and helpful suggestions. But the sniping which has been carried on against these proposals, both publicly and privately, whether well-intentioned or not, can have no effect other than to maintain our governmental status quo, a situation which will continue to retard, as it has done in the past, the District's much needed advancement in the social, economic and political spheres. More On Traffic

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Efforts to "solve the traffic problem" in America, especially in D. C., today, are comparable in results to tossing pebbles in the path of an out-of-control, downhill-racing juggernaut. For this reason, and because I've sounded off myself about this "traffic situation," P. R. Wheeler's letter in The Post of May 12 is down my private lane.

First, more and more parking spaces are a solution to nothing; though less use of cars and fewer cars to use would be.

A few underpasses at traffic-choked intersections? Sure, but don't expect magic solution of the problems this way or by hacking down all the trees and widening every street. The pavement worm's problem is already such as to encourage his emigration to some country menaced only by military aggression, where traffic peace at least exists and walking or bicycling is not a death sentence.

Does it invade sacred ground to suggest a limit be placed on the number of cars rampaging each city, county or country? Or to say that age 21 or at least high school graduation with senior year traffic instruction, be mandatory to obtain permit? Remember, that cheap oil won't last forever.

Must limitation of cabs and their invasion of walkers' rights be left to some future decade?

Why not 10-mile speed limits past loading platforms and "safety zones," as in San Francisco?

Why not speed governors installed as restrictions if people simply won't comply, fail to recognize obligations or lack of common decency to be accorded driving privileges?

Why don't statesmen lay off mention of motor car ownership as evidence of America's standards without first inquiring into what is sacrificed and the effect on relief outlay of efforts to maintain the "essential" car.

We need in Congress some traffic-minded crusader obsessed with his subject, to talk to the country.

I've omitted the effects on national health, of inertia caused by motor car slavery; of adding the "car invalid" to the "desk cripple." And I could bang out 5,000 words on the horrors of the horn, which has been attacked in other places but not in Washington. But what's the use?

Old English

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter by Lila Ripley Barnwell in The Post of May 11, entitled "English in the Carolina Mountains," was a surprise, and a pleasure to me.

The words and phrases which she gives as being peculiar to the mountain country of North Carolina, and surrounding States I heard when I was a child. I was born and reared in Osage County, Missouri, and the majority of the farmers in that region, I think I am safe in saying, used most of these expressions in their daily conversation.

But not until I read the letter did I know that this was the language of the mountaineers of the region in question. I can now see the connection between the fact that my maternal grandparents came from Tennessee, and the fact that they too used many of the expressions and words quoted by Miss Barnwell. The truth is that I myself used some of these expressions when a child, and in spite of my three university degrees, I still sometimes say "skeered" for scared, "a heap" for much or many, and "a sight" for a great deal.

So I am pleased to learn that these "hangovers" from childhood have no lowly origin, but many of them were used by Shakespeare, Milton, Gower, Philip Sidney, and others.

Save My Child!

THE FIRE WHISTLE would roar across the dark sleeping island town. One long and two short—12. That meant the fire was at Porter's Point. Before one blast was out of its hoarse throat the volunteer fireman was half way into his trousers; his slippered wife was peering fearfully into the night sky for the ominous glow of a "big" fire; and the children, their hearts quaking with fright and excitement, were clamoring to go.

Already cars full of volunteers were slamming down the street toward the fire station, barely stopping to pick up some car-less member who sprinted along the sidewalk. Women in kimonos stood in the lighted doorways. "Where is it? What is it?" they would call at a hurrying footstep, and out of the darkness someone, they wouldn't know who, would answer without pausing, "Don't know yet; up at Porter's Point somewhere!"

Pretty soon the waiting women and children would think to call up Reba Ball, the telephone operator. Reba, roused from her cot behind the switchboard, would be handling a thousand calls a minute from the population of 500. Opening all circuits, she would reassure all of them at once, "Just a brush fire." There would be a sigh of relief; and in 15 or 20 minutes the fire engine would return clanging triumphantly to the station; the cars would bang homeward; and the volunteers would return to bed, some with singed eyebrows and all smelling of smoke.

Our fire chief at that time, however, was a blond young man with a yen for the spectacular which was frustrated by the confines of our small town. When we had a fire he made the most of it. He would, of course, do his duty by a brush fire; but the love of his life was a big roof fire. He would run up the ladder as if one of his ancestors had been a mountain goat and dash over the flames and generally risk his quite valuable life even when there was no necessity for it. He was constitutionally unable to pass up a chance of matching skill against the danger of broken bones.

There was a wooden frame house on Southwest Hill. We called it The Castle because the retired "ancient mariner" who lived there had built a lookout tower on the room, which to our small eyes resembled the battlements of a castle as pictured in our history books. That burned one bitter winter night. It was unexpectedly quiet in our section of town. The fire engine having gone up a lane a half mile away. Our volunteer had already gone and Mother, with a premonition of what kind of fire it was going to be, was brewing coffee downstairs.

We children crept to the window, the icy wind sending shivers down our backs, and above the trees on the hill we watched with excitement and awe the terrifying reflection of flames. Then we heard footsteps in the snow along the road beneath us. It was Almira, the spinster piano teacher, from four houses below. We recognized her voice. With her hands clasping her coat around her throat she was making up the sloping street. "Oh, the poor old man; the poor old man," she was repeating over and over again agonizingly to herself as she struggled to get there in time to be of some assistance to him. We shut the window, shaken by our first touch of reality—the sudden realization of what it was for a human being to be in danger and that security was not the general order of things. Sobered, we crept downstairs to be with Mother in the bright, warm kitchen.

That night our fire chief was on The Castle's roof when it and the walls caved in. He had to jump for the ladder which the other volunteers held straight up in the air away from the flames for him. It was no mean feat to descend that perpendicular ladder held more or less steady by a miscellany of townsfolk trying to keep their balance on the slippery crust of snow. But he made it; he always did and still does.

One of our most spectacular fires occurred when a yacht caught fire one summer night. There was nothing we could do, and it burned to the water's edge. I remember the weird, and somehow splendid, reflections in the Bay as flames shot upward from the exploding gasoline tank; the anxiety of other yacht owners whose craft were moored nearby; the regretful impotence of our volunteer firemen; and the sight of some of the town beauties, not so beautiful in curl papers and hastily donned coats over disheveled night clothes. But being abroad in the midnight dark gave even our most commonplace acquaintances something of glamour. It was thrilling to walk amid the knot of turbulent townspeople and come unexpectedly upon the girl who sat next to us in school looking as shiny eyed and elated as ourselves.

When I first began to take some notice of community life our fire engine was a "steamer," i.e., it carried a big shiny boiler. This apparatus was pulled by two huge white horses in the old tradition. The two horses were used for all sorts of town work, but they considered themselves primarily fire horses. They might be hitched to the watering cart a mile from home when the fire whistle sounded, but they and Josh Lewis, their personal guardian, would be half way back before anyone else knew there was a fire. They were a gallant sight, and one which almost everyone has seen—at least in the movies.

Fair Enough

An Open Letter

MR. HENRY MORGENTHAU,
Secretary of the Treasury,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR HENRY:

I have just received your form letter in which you express a desire to borrow some money from me on your United States saving bonds. The proposition sounds interesting, but, as you know, the Government has laws nowadays where promoters and business firms are required to meet certain conditions and conform to certain standards, and I assume that you are willing to set private business a good example.

In the sad days, after the great boom, we learned that some business houses squandered investors' money on frivolous expenditures and that they pyramided issues until they were selling people bonds to pay the interest on previous issues.

They aren't allowed to do that now. In fact, only this morning there was a piece in the paper saying that the Securities and Exchange Commission was demanding information from a gas and electric company as to the services performed by a Mr. Ben Gray in return for a salary of $45,000 a year. A good idea, too, and if a company goes to the public for money the Government should see to it that the pay rolls are not loaded with relatives and fraternity brothers of the management at high salaries or even at medium salaries, because medium salaries mount up, too.

Government Also Needs Investigating

A BIG SHOT who owed somebody $50,000 could make a deal to put that creditor on the company's pay roll a couple of years at $25,000-a-year and make the investors pay off his private debt.

I don't think the SEC would let a big corporation, doing business on money borrowed from the people, maintain one or more company yachts for the pleasure of the executives, even though they pretended to concentrate and work better at sea, away from the telephone and all.

Before I decide whether to lend you some money on these savings bonds suppose you get yourself inspected according to the same requirements that are applied to private operators. Being of the Government yourself you should be the last one to refuse to meet conditions which are held to be correct and ethical for other borrowers, and even if you hold that the Government, by reason of its authority to tax, is in a better position to extend itself, you can't honestly say that a Government has any more right than a private concern to toss investors' money around to its personal and political friends.

Any Nepotism, Mr. Morgenthau?

WELL, WHAT ABOUT the pay rolls of your concern? Are there any employes on the rolls there in Washington and in bureaus around the country who were taken on merely because they were related to somebody or worked for somebody's election or wrote flattering pieces about the Administration? Have you gone over the pay rolls lately and checked each man and woman, to determine what duties they were performing and whether such duties are necessary? It's my money you want to be paying them, you know.

What about your position at the time of proposing this loan? Are you running in the red, and, if so, to what extent, and how long have you been running behind and about when would you say you will be able to turn the corner, and what makes you think so? You know the SEC wouldn't let a private concern borrow money from the public, indefinitely just to pay the interest on past issues and thus make a deceptive appearance of soundness.

What about private yachts for the executives? Have Ickes and Hopkins been vacationing on a Coast Guard cutter off the coast of Florida lately? I don't want to lend you my money to be spent for yachting parties.

The Answer Is No; If For Florida Canal

AND WHAT ABOUT that Florida canal? Here you boys are talking about saving twenty millions by tightening up a few bureaus, but you still insist on this canal thing at two hundred millions, although the southern half of Florida is afraid it will destroy the fresh water supply, and the ditch, when dug, would save only a couple of hours' sailing time from the Atlantic to the Gulf. Do you think the SEC would let a private company borrow from the people for a comparable folly?

Your note to me just said these bonds were the most widely heralded security in America, which may be true, but I notice that you didn't say what you intended to do with the money. A lender always likes to know that, and a borrower usually is willing to tell. If you are intending to spend any money of mine building that ditch for two hundred millions, the answer is no.

Let me hear from you on this, will you, Henry? Sincerely,

GEORGE SPELVIN,
Average American.

Japan's Spy Craze

By Frank H. Hedges

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Tokyo.

HOW THE POLICE of Japan would employ their time if there were no foreigners in this country to watch for suspected spying activities or university students to have their political views and morals "regulated" is a puzzle. Traffic control is almost nonexistent, and the empire has a surprisingly low criminal record. Hence, the great throng of black-clad policemen with toy swords swinging at their belts turn their attention to foreigners and to students.

A complete dossier for every foreign resident and visitor to Japan reposes in the archives of the Metropolitan Police Bureau in Tokyo. The American or European cannot make a move without its being officially recorded, while the police of Japan seem to take an almost morbid interest in such curious information as the maiden name of the foreigner's grandmother on the father's side and where he went to school and why, although how this hodgepodge of miscellaneous information will ever serve to protect the empire from invasion or protect the numerous "military secrets" of the nation remains a mystery.

IF THE FOREIGNER strays from the beaten path in Japan he should make up his mind in advance to allot a certain percentage of his time, and that not an inconsiderable percentage, to answering the questions of police and gendarmes, although the latter are usually more indirect in their methods and extract information from the Japanese with whom the foreigner has come into contact, rather than from the foreigner himself. Certain parts of Japan, notably the northern island of Hokkaido, those areas lying closest to Soviet Russia and wherever there may be fortified zones or munitions factories, are especially "dangerous" for the foreigner to enter. The mere fact that he has done so is sufficient to arouse the darkest of suspicions in the minds of Japanese officialdom, and he would do well indeed to stay far from such regions unless necessity compels his going there.

The great naval port of Yokosuka, near the entrance to Tokyo Bay and only about an hour from the heart of the capital, for instance, was once a favorite day's or week-end's trip for many foreign residents of Tokyo and Yokohama. Not only is the Yokosuka region a place of scenic beauty, but it is also of great historical interest. A few miles beyond the town stands a monument to Commodore Matthew Galbraith Perry, who opened the doors of this empire to the world more than 80 years ago.

Also, the grave of Dill Adams is found here, and Will Adams was a most colorful figure. A shipwrecked English pilot, he was kept in Japan by the Shoguns during the early seventeenth century in order to impart his knowledge of shipbuilding and navigation to the Japanese. He married a Japanese (despite a wife left at home whom he knew he would never again see), became a landed feudal lord and had one of the most picturesque, although nostalgic, careers in all history. No foreigner thinks of venturing to Yokosuka since the war with China started unless necessity compels it. One German correspondent arranged by letter for an interview with the commander of the Yokosuka naval base, but no sooner had he stepped from his train at that town than he was nabbed by the police, hustled off to the police station, and questioned about his business and why he was there until he was two hours late arriving for his interview with the admiral.

UNDOUBTEDLY one reason why the foreigner who strays into the more remote regions is so voluminously questioned is that the local policeman sees a chance to put a feather into his own cap. A foreigner is a rare catch indeed for him, and he entertains the idea, whether illusory or not, that if he sends in an exhaustively long report to headquarters his individual rating will bound upward and he will be in line for promotion. That may be very well for the local policeman, but it is no comfort to the foreigner thus made a victim to the vaulting ambition of a petty official.

The spy mania in Japan is also understandable. All through the feudal ages, which ended in this country less than a century ago, the Shoguns and all minor lords employed spies extensively. Every stranger might well be a spy, it was thought. This extended into trade and craftsmanship. The master swordsmith had certain secrets of his craft which he handed down only to his sons and disciples. Other swordsmiths, less successful, would try by every means to spy out these secrets and so improve their own work. Japanese literature, and particularly the Japanese drama, abounds in spy stories, which take the place of detective tales in the Western world. All of this makes Japan's acute consciousness of spies understandable, but fails to make it any more comfortable to the foreigner subjected to it.

Censorship is legally authorized in Japan, and the government has the right to open, read and if it desires confiscate, all incoming and outgoing mail of whatever nature. Except for magazines and books, this right is not exercised to any great extent. Most letters are never touched. Nearly always there must be some cause for suspicion before first-class mail is tampered with.

THE AMERICAN or European tripper to Japan frequently makes himself ridiculous in the eyes of local foreign residents who know by long experience that the passing visitor's imagination is sadly overworked. Having heard of Japan's spy mania, he fancies he sees detectives lurking in every corner, and if a breeze should blow a piece of paper about his hotel room he rushes into speech or print with a vivid tale of how his room and all his papers have been searched. Such searches do take place now and again, but never unless the police have, or believe they have, just cause to suspect that particular individual.

Papal Delegate Dedicates St. Martin's

1,000 Parishioners Hear Rev. Joseph Buckley Speak at Ceremonies

One thousand parishioners watched yesterday afternoon as the cornerstone of St. Martin's Catholic Church was laid by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States.

At 1900 North Capitol street, site of the present basement church and St. Martin's clubhouse, the exercises opened with a procession, in which the Knights of Columbus band, members of the Father Hurney Post No. 112, Irish War Veterans, and Catholic dignitaries participated.

Has Reached Milestone

Father Charles O'Hara, rector of Holy Comforter Church; Father John Jepson, of the Sulpician Seminary, and the Right Rev. Joseph McShea, attache of the Apostolic delegation, assisted in the service, at which the Rev. Joseph V. Buckley, of St. Xavier, principal speaker, asserted that the parish had reached a major milestone in its career.

Citing the endurance of the Catholic Church, Father Buckley pointed out that it had witnessed every crisis and vicissitude in history, and, like its Master, "has been proscribed, shackled, imprisoned—aye even crucified. But, as its Divine Master, it has come forth from its deluge of suffering and ignominy as from a veritable baptism of blood," he added.

Miss Gauges Organist

Participating priests were the Right Rev. Mgr. Michael J. Riordon, the Rev. Louis F. Miltenberger and the Rev. Stephen McCabe, rector and assistant rectors of St. Martin's; the Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy, of St. John the Evangelist Church, Forest Glen, Md.

Also the Rev. Joseph M. Moran, St. Thomas the Apostle Church; the Rev. J. Maurice King, St. Ann's; the Rev. Patrick Conroy, St. Anthony's; the Very Rev. H. L. Motry, Catholic University; the Rev. Frank J. Laughlin, Upper Marlboro, and the Rev. Edward P. McAdam. Miss Margaret Gauges served as organist.

Murphy's Record

By Ernest K. Lindley

Impressive Work

IT IS TIME to proclaim this: Frank Murphy is not a flash in the pan. While most of the Roosevelt Administration has stood still, gone around in circles, or slipped back, Murphy has moved ahead swiftly and surely. What he has done and begun in a little more than four months as Attorney General adds up to a New Deal of his own. Fortunately for him it is a New Deal uninvolved in economics and social theory, but one directed instead at such generally disapproved vices as corruption and inefficiency.

Murphy has undertaken, first, a cleansing and strengthening of the Federal judiciary. On the one hand he has forced the resignation of judges against whom he found evidence pointing toward corruption—and more resignations are in prospect. On the other, he has advised the President on at least seven high-grade appointments to the appellate courts.

These are the appointments to Federal Circuit Courts of Appeal which have been made on Murphy's recommendation:

Francis Biddle, former chairman, National Labor Relations Board and former counsel to TVA investigating committee.

Herschel W. Arant, dean of the University of Ohio law school.

Walter H. Huxman, former Governor of Kansas.

Wiley B. Rutledge, dean of the University of Iowa law school.

Calvert Magruder, vice dean of the Harvard law school.

Plans To Abolish Fees Of Referees

THE LIST is even more impressive if you add Charles Clark, dean of the Yale law school, but he was appointed on the recommendation of Homer S. Cummings, Frank Murphy's predecessor.

To cap the list are the two newest Supreme Court justices. Murphy had little or nothing to do with the appointment of Felix Frankfurter, but he went down the line for William O. Douglas.

Murphy has directed a blow at the greatest single source of patronage, graft, and corruption in the Federal judiciary—the appointment of receivers, referees, and trustees in bankruptcy. He is about to present to Congress a proposal for abolishing the fee system of compensating referees in bankruptcy, and substituting the payment of salaries. His ultimate purpose is to take this kind of work altogether out of the realm of politics and patronage by putting it on a merit system. To formulate a more complete program for reforming the administration and liquidation of bankrupt estates he has appointed a committee under the chairmanship of Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, with Francis M. Shea, dean of the University of Buffalo law school, as director of research.

Marshals On Docket For Thorough Cleansing

MURPHY HAS begun to clean up and invigorate the United States district attorneys. He brought them all to Washington four weeks ago to receive instructions, and he has visited several of the most important offices. The United States marshals are on the docket for a thorough cleansing. In Washington, Murphy has installed the best personal director he could find, William Brownrigg, to weed out and reclassify the personnel of the whole Department of Justice.

Murphy's other activities include the creation of a new division to protect civil liberties and the convening, at the direction of the President, of the National Parole Conference, to strengthen one of the weak links in the control of crime.

The most sensational of Murphy's activities is the series of income tax prosecutions against such politically powerful figures as Tom Pendergast, Democratic boss of Kansas City; "Nocky" Johnson, Republican boss of Kansas City, and Moses Annenberg. Impending are prosecutions against other persons of importance but less intimately connected with politics.

Credit Due Elsewhere For Income Tax Drive

FOR THE INCOME tax prosecutions, however, Murphy and sundry other persons are receiving more credit than they deserve. The income tax cases are the fruit of the work of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and its Intelligence Unit. The Department of Justice knows nothing about them until the cases are ready for prosecution. The Bureau of Internal Revenue began working on the Pendergast case and others which are now being turned over to Murphy for action, as long ago as 1936.

Murphy's part in the income tax prosecutions is to see that they are not buried or deliberately mishandled because of political influence. That duty he is performing with energy and enthusiasm. If, in consequence, he gets the lion's share of the credit for the final result, few people will complain.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

History Repeats Itself

IT IS A MISTAKE, I think, to talk about whether or not there will be a world war. There is a war going on at this minute. The forces have been conjoined; the struggle is in the open; and the question is what other weapons may eventually be used, and where, and how.

What Hitler has done has been to revive the pre-war pan-German program, plus a system of planned economy making for total industrial mobilization and the greatest possible economic self-sufficiency, plus a revolutionary strategy designed to create international problems like that of the refugees, and internal dissensions in every country.

The economic measures and the revolutionary tactics are only supplements to the central program of pan-Germanism.

They have contributed greatly to confusing the issue, but it is now perfectly plain. What Hitler has done has simply been to resume the war which started in 1914, and to take over in toto the war aims that existed in 1915 and 1916, when Germany was winning that war.

Remember Peace Germans Sought

IN THE LAST 19 years the liberal bad conscience has been so busy attacking the Treaty of Versailles that it has totally forgotten the kind of peace that the German military machine had designed for the world in case of a German victory—a peace which had the backing, incidentally, of the great body of German intellectuals and industrialists.

Inasmuch as the Treaty of Versailles is long since as dead as mutton, while the renaissance of the German military state is the central fact of the era, we may as well forget Versailles and reconsider 1915 and 1916, when the Germans were confident of complete victory.

It was in order to win this total victory that the Germany of the great war rejected the peace overtures of the Pope, the proffered mediation of President Wilson and the attempt of the Hapsburg dynasty to negotiate with France.

Versailles never would have happened and there would have been a genuine "peace without victory"—a peace of general justice—had the German military machine not willfully prolonged the bloody holocaust in the hope of a total realization of all its aims.

Russia, Rumania Forced To Sign

WE HAVE HISTORICAL proof of what their intentions were in the East because they won the war against Russia and Rumania and dictated the peace terms. (Incidentally, then as now, they had no scruples about playing with revolutionary forces, and themselves introduced the revolutionary Bolshevik leaders into Russia.)

The treaties which Russia and Rumania were forced to sign "at the point of a gun" were made invalid by the general Allied victory. But they stand on paper for the world to see what German militarism considers justice and equality to be.

Russia was forced to relinquish Russian Poland and all her Baltic provinces—not in order to give them national emancipation as provided later in the Treaty of Versailles; not at all; they were simply taken over by Germany and Austria. Three other provinces were ceded to Turkey. Ukraine and Georgia were made into puppet states and into economic vassals of Germany.

Russia lost a third of her population, nearly a third of her agricultural land, more than half of all her industries and 89 per cent of her coal mines; her Black Sea ports were wholly lost and she was practically cut off from the Baltic.

Rumania was made into a colony, bound economically hand and foot to Germany.

Aims Known Then As Now

THE AIMS OF GERMANY in the west are known through official documents and speeches and inspired editorials in the German wartime press. To read them again today is to find one's self on highly familiar ground. Apart from the Left Wing Social Democrats and a few distinguished dissenters, the entire nation was regimented behind them.

There was the same talk of necessary life-room, the same talk of racial superiority, the same talk of the German mission to civilize the world that we read in "Mein Kampf."

The 1,341 German intellectuals who set forth the "minimum demands" to the Imperial Chancellor demanded the "enfeebling of France politically and economically without scruple or compunction."

This included "rectifying" the western frontiers, taking over private properties and leaving the indemnification of them to France (vide Czecho-Slovakia), conquering part of the French Channel coast "to increase our strategical security against England," disfranchising any Frenchmen incorporated into the new Reich, imposing the highest possible war indemnity, taking over Belgium and turning the population into helots without "political influence," breaking up the British Empire and establishing "a permanent connection with the world of Islam."

The World Was To Be Germany's

THERE WAS ALSO a consistent plan to re-establish the empire of Charlemagne; to give part of Belgium to Holland, on condition that the Netherlands enter the German Empire "voluntarily," and Italy was also to be fused into the Germanic orbit in a grander reconstitution of the Holy Roman Empire.

Nor was Germany prepared to stop short of the New World, for once she sat in Britain's place, plus ideas of national liberty, the world a hegemony of the European continent and without the decadent would be hers.

It was to prevent this that Europe went to war in 1914 and that we joined in 1917, when but for our intervention the Germans would have won.

To prevent it, aristocratic England joined forces with democratic France and Czarist Russia.

The disillusion which the whole world later suffered does not eradicate the fact that the menace to all national independences really existed.

If Germany had won a complete victory the whole of Europe today would be living on about the same terms as Czecho-Slovakia actually is—or long since there would have been fearful revolutions. And the United States would have been conducting her trade on terms dictated by an all-powerful military economy under conditions with which it would be impossible to compete.

Make no mistake about it: this country is not a nation of morons; we did not go into the last war for altruistic purposes, nor to save the investment of a few bankers. We went into it because we believe on excellent evidence that if Germany won it we would have had to fight her, eventually, all alone—or else get off the map.

Atlantic Squadron Host to House Members, Wives

New York, May 24.—The Navy was host today to members of the lower house of Congress and their wives, a party of 325.

They were welcomed en masse aboard the airplane carrier Ranger and, later in six groups, had luncheon on the New York, Texas, Honolulu, Brooklyn, Savannah and Philadelphia. On the Coast Guard cutter Camel the entire group was taken for a trip around Manhattan Island and then to Jersey City, where they entrained for Washington.

Most of the ships of the Atlantic squadron, here since the opening of the World's Fair, will depart Wednesday on their various operating schedules. On the squadron's visit here the 45 ships have been visited by nearly half a million people.

An influx of foreign ships is scheduled to start immediately and continue until fall. The British cruisers Berwick and Exeter are due Thursday to remain until May 25.

Retailers to Hear President May 24

President Roosevelt will outline New Deal policies on problems facing the business world in his address to the American Retail Federation here May 23, it was revealed in Administration quarters last night.

This federation is considered more friendly toward the Administration than the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Portrait Of A Strong Woman

The strongest-minded woman—
Ah, what a woman she!
Her will is one of iron
With no resiliency.

Her firmness is astounding—
A quality that stirs;
I've never seen will power
As resolute as hers.

Her character's amazing—
She ranks among the great;
To praise such splendid backbone
I do not hesitate.

She doesn't look forbidding—
She's not a flinty dame;
She's charming but her firmness
Astounds me just the same.

She has a side that's weaker—
Milady she can be Quite yielding on some issues,
As any one can see.

She'll weaken on her diet
And wobble at the knees
On any resolution
To count her calories.

She'll make new pledges loudly
On how to run the house
And easily forget 'em
As meekly as a mouse

She'll sternly say, "No cocktails!"
And take a platform dry
But then she'll get the shaker
And be as weak as I.

But all this doesn't matter—
She rates, as you will see,
As quite the strongest woman
In all our history.

Her firmness none can challenge
There's no one even nigh
In what, in my opinion's,
The test of courage high.

Her strong will is colossal,
And here! the proof quite flat:
She never has, and will not PUT ON A SILLY HAT!

The New York State Senate has passed a pari mutuels bill, thus admitting publicly that horses horse racing is going on in New York, that people have been making bets and that the Senate might as well admit it as everybody else.

Mrs. Mary A. McGrath has lived in one house in New York for 70 years. But you know how it is: after 50 years the same house you sort of get settled.

Seventy years in one home will amaze many people, however, so many of whom think they are spending their lives in the same dwelling if asked to extend a two-year lease.

Army Engineers Build Pontoon Bridge

The initial step in building a pontoon bridge is to send a raiding party across the river to protect the workers from snipers who may be hidden along the bank. A squad, armed with rifles, is shown launching an assault boat for guard duty. As they shoot across the river, others unload equipment from a truck

Working without sound or lights at night so that the enemy will not be tipped off, the engineers complete assembly of the first pontoon, carry it to the river and launch it. The section has hardly hit the water before the doughboys are back for another being assembled by comrades ashore

The first section is pushed further out into the stream and the second is lashed to it by two engineers waste deep in water. A sergeant supervises the job. Bridge building is part of regular training at Fort du Pont

Sen. Maloney Asks Spiritual Rearmament

Plea Heard at Police, Firemen's Society Breakfast

"Spiritual rearmament" is needed more today than at any time in the history of civilization, Senator Francis J. Maloney, of Connecticut, asserted yesterday at the Sixth Annual Communion breakfast of the Catholic Police and Firemen's Society.

An important part of the "Mother's Day" spiritual observance, his address was delivered at the Willard following mass at St. Patrick's Church and a procession from the Knights of Columbus Hall on Tenth street. Led by the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club Band, more than 1,000 men marched.

Dade is Honored

The Rev. Thomas B. Dade, who spoke at St. Patrick's, where he serves as assistant rector, was signally honored at the breakfast for his work in the Catholic Police and Firemen's Society, of which he is chaplain and cofounder.

Speaking in behalf of the society, John F. Ryan, toastmaster and president, presented an Elgin watch to the popular priest, who was later given a chaplain's badge on behalf of the Fire Department.

The Most Rev. Paul Yu-Pin, Bishop and Vicar Apostolic of Nanking; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, of the Metropolitan Police Department, and the Rev. John P. Gallagher, S. J., assistant rector of St. Aloysius' Church; Fire Chief Stephen Porter and the Rev. Hirl A. Kester, the latter Protestant chaplain of the departments, were honor guests.

Pastor Receives Badge

"If there is a message that our mothers would have us hear today, it would be to 'speak a good word for Jesus Christ,'" said the Rev. Mr. Kester, pastor of the Congress Street Methodist Church, where Maj. Brown is first vice president and Chief Porter is second vice president of the Harrison Bible Class. Firemen attended services there last night, presenting the pastor with a chaplain's badge.

Justice Douglas May Deliver Decisions Today

Justice William O. Douglas, the Supreme Court's youngest member in 127 years, will have his first opportunity today to deliver an opinion.

If he follows the example set by recent appointees, the 40-year-old jurist will read the decision in one or more cases.

One of the cases he probably may decide involves whether a State which one rejected the pending constitutional amendment to abolish child labor may later ratify it.

Another ruling possible today involves the constitutionality of Jersey City ordinances under which Mayor Frank Hague refused permits for C. I. O. meetings.

1937 pneumonia death rate in District per 100,000 estimated population

This is ninth in a series of articles on social and health conditions in the Capital. The tenth will appear tomorrow.

By Eugene Pharo.

Neighborhood studies of Washington by the research department of the Council of Social Agencies this week will show pneumonia, tuberculosis, illegitimate births, insanity, juvenile delinquency, and crime putting their black stamps on the map exactly where last week's reports showed inadequate housing, bad sanitation, overcrowding and poverty.

Today's report shows a death rate from pneumonia that is 42 per cent higher than the national average, etching the first details of the grim picture. That disease ranks third as cause of death in the District. It is exceeded only by heart disease and cancer. It is followed, in fourth place, by tuberculosis.

In 1937 Washingtonians who died of pneumonia numbered 761, or 121.4 per 100,000 estimated population. That year in the whole United States 85.1 died of pneumonia per 100,000 population.

More white persons died of pneumonia in Washington than colored, but the rate per 100,000 of the latter was 206.2, as compared with a rate for the whites of 89.5. There were 408 deaths of whites and 353 deaths of Negroes.

Rates of more than 250, and mounting in one case as high as 297.4, are found in four residential tracts completely blacked out on the accompanying map. In every one of these areas the deaths from pneumonia were more than three times the national rate. A fifth blacked out tract is St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and another heavily-shaded area is the U. S. Soldiers Home. In the hospital, insanity, and in the home, old age, make these special cases.

Census tracts 47, 48, 60, 63, in the northwest and southwest, near North and South Capitol streets, and running right up to the Capitol itself, where the triple rates exist, have become familiar to those who have followed this series of articles. They have a density of population of more than 40 persons per residential acre.

This compares with a density for the city as a whole of 13.4. In tracts 47 and 48 in the northwest, one-third of the homes are reported to be without toilet and bath. In tracts 60 and 63, running south from the Capitol, two-thirds of the homes are without them.

Economists Urge Silver Act Repeal

By the Associated Press.

Repeal of the Silver Purchase act of 1934 was urged upon Congress yesterday by 63 members of the Economists' National Committee on monetary policy.

The members issued a statement indorsing with possible amandments as to detail, a repeal bill introduced by Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware.

The statement contended that the country had paid more than $1,100,000,000 for silver for which it had no monetary need.

"Although the cost of the program does not appear as an expense in the Federal Government," the economist said, . . . "the full realization of the heavy cost of the silver program will appear when it becomes necessary to liquidate our enormous hoard of silver."

5 Army Families Join To Give Party at Club

Second Group Gathers At Chevy Chase Home Of Maj. G.J.B. Fisher

By Elizabeth Henney.

"You take the high road, and I'll take the low road, and we'll all go places in the sunshine," seemed to be the theme song in town yesterday. Anyone with wings over Washington might have looked down at the traffic situation and thought the city was swarming with ants.

Some of that black mass of moving cars were wending their way out to the Army-Navy Country Club, where five Army officers and their wives were joint hists and hostesses at a grand and gay party. Still another queue was winding up and down, over the hills to Chevy Chase to partake of the warm hospitality of Maj. and Mrs. George J. B. Fisher's home on McKinley street.

Five Hosts and Hostesses At Country Club Party

Hosts and hostesses were Maj. and Mrs. Frank Gano, Maj. and Mrs. John Silkman, Capt. and Mrs. Arthur Sheridan, Capt. and Mrs. Vere Beers and Capt. and Mrs. John Noyes.

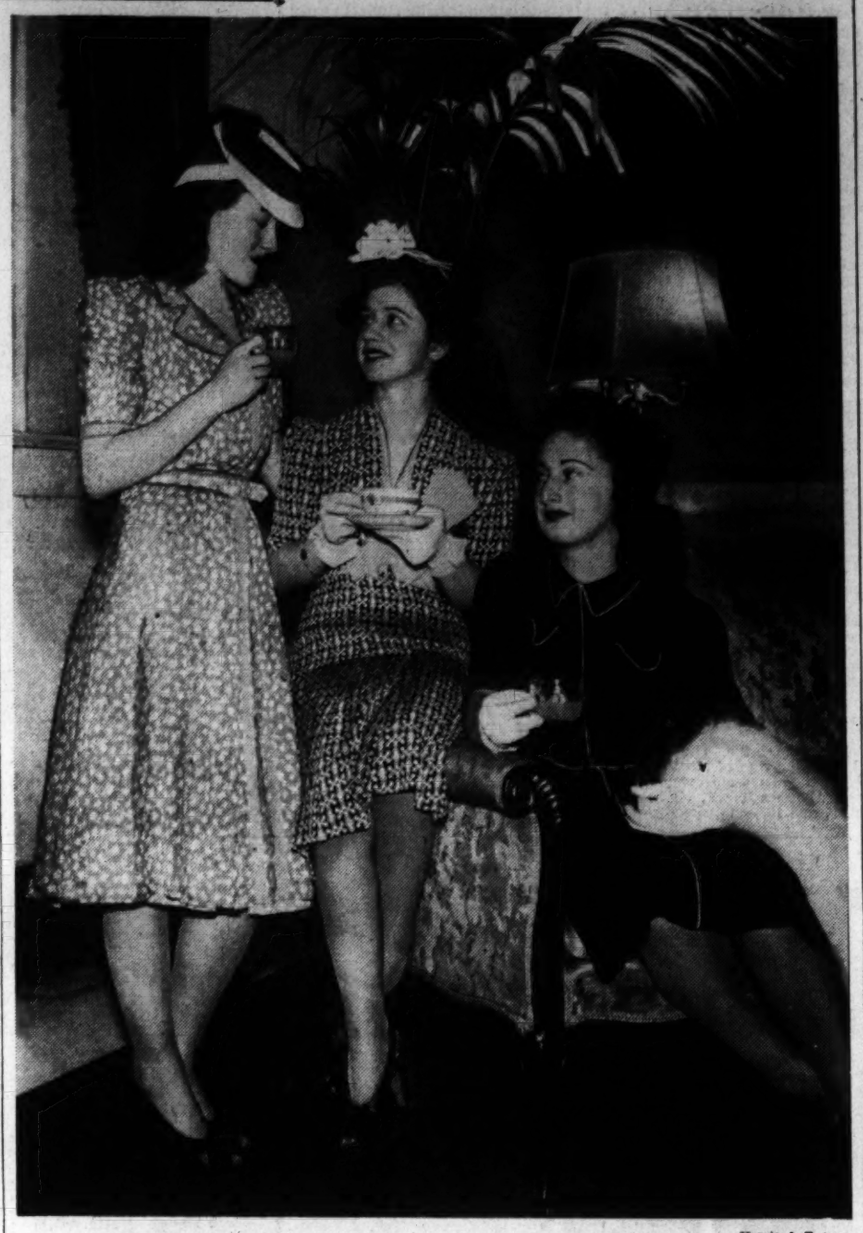
Generally assisting were Miss Marie Stewart, Miss Margaret Ann Walkley, Miss Shirley Cowan, Miss Eleanor Hamilton and Miss Margaret Logan.

Noted among guests were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Claude E. Brigham, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Miss Carol Fries, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Walter C. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke, Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Ball, Maj. and Mrs. Paul Logan, Col. and Mrs. J. E. Lewis, Capt. and Mrs. Kenneth Brewer, Col. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, Maj. and Mrs. Edward Bettleheim and Maj. and Mrs. Hugh B. Hester.

Committee Members Talk Over Country Fair



Harris & Ewing.

Tea time is talk time and these three are deep in a discussion of plans for the country fair which the Guild of St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts is holding on the spacious lawn of the school on Saturday afternoon, May 27. Left to right, they are Miss Suzanne Slingluff, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Frank J. Slingluff; Senorita Laura Margarita Recinos, daughter of the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, and Miss Margaret Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Carter

Medical Men Among Guests Of the Benets

Dr. Wiliam Bainbridge, Gen. Iliescu Attend Sunday 'At Home'

It's not exactly news when Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Benet are "at home" on Sunday after 6 p. m., but yesterday their weekly reception was highlighted by the attendance of several distinguished out-of-towners. Dr. and Mrs. William S. Bainbridge, of New York, were among those arriving early, as were Gen. and Mme. Illiescu, of Bucharest, Rumania.

Both Dr. Bainbridge and Gen. Iliescu are in town attending the International Association of Military Medicine and Pharmacy, and both are being widely feted during the time they are not attending meetings. Gen. Iliescu is head of the Rumanian delegation to the medical congress.

Many Guests Call During Afternoon

Around forty guests yesterday called on Mr. and Mrs. Benet, whose "at homes" are among the mot delightful in the Capital. For more than three decades when they were living in Paris, they received their friends each Sunday afternoon after 6 o'clock, and this pleasant custom has been continued since they have returned to Wahington to make their home.

The spacious rooms of the Benet apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue are admirably suited to uch a party as that given yesterday. But, as usual at their informal 'a't home," the host and hostess entertained most of their guests in the long drawing room, which was decorated with tall bouquets of gladioli and roses.

Mrs. Benet Wears Figured Frock

Mrs. Benet wore a figured frock of black and yellow, the latter shade being carried out in a design featuring a trio of fish on a black background. Somebody suggeted that the President, being such a skillful sportman, might throw his line out some day and hook one of the fish swimming about on the black "ocean" of her dress.

Mr. Benet, as gracious a host as you will find in Washington, patiently answered the frequently-voiced question as to what his relationship is to the famous Benet brothers—Stephen Vincent Beet and William Rose Benet. "Well," he answered, when they were boys I used to say they were my nephews; now that they're both grown and both famous, I say I am their uncle!"

To Be Wed in June

Brooks Photo.

Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Shelton, of Washington, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dee Loy Shelton, of Lawton, Okla., announce her engagement to Capt. John Battle Horton, U. S. Army, son of Mrs. Eugenia W. Horton, of Washington. The wedding will take place the latter part of June, in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Lawton. Miss Shelton, who has recently been connected with the office of the Secretary of Agriculture, will leave Washington on Saturday. She has made Washington her home for the past two years, coming here as a member of the staff of the office of Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma. Capt. Horton, who is a graduate of West Point of the class of 1923, is at present a student at the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He will be stationed next year at Fort Bliss, Tex., where the couple will be at home after August 20. Capt. Horton's brother-in-law and sister, Capt. W. J. Klepinger, U. S. Army, and Mrs. Klepinger, are now stationed at Auburn, Ala. Mrs. Klepinger is the former Miss Martha Horton

Patricia Henry Is Married to Edgar Yeomans

Sen. and Mrs. Phipps Attend Ceremony In Los Angeles

Of interest in Washington was the marriage yesterday in Los Angeles, Calif., of Miss Patricia Corinne Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Henry, of Los Angeles, and Edgar Dawson Yeomans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Yeomans, of Washington. Th eceremony took place at 4:30 p. m. at the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Frank B. Fagerburg officiated. Walter Hartley, professor of music at Occidental College, played the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional bridal gown of white satin, fashioned princess style. Her rose point and Brussels lace veil was held to her hair by a coronet of seed pearls. She carried hyacinths and lilies of the valley.

Sisters of Bride Are Wedding Attendants

Mrs. Robert McHargue, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She was gowned in delphinium blue lace with a garden hat trimmed with daisies. She carried a daisy bouquet.

The maid of honor and only other attendant was Miss Mary Virginia Henry, another sister of the bride. She was gowned in powder blue lace, with a garden hat trimmed with daisies, and also carried a daisy bouquet.

Foster Buckner was best man. Ushers were Charles Church and Max Kolliner. The bride's mother was gowned in dusty pink and dubonnet, with dusty pink accessories and a pink rose corsage. There was no reception after the ceremony.

When the couple left for their wedding trip, the bride was wearing imported blue tweed with cyclamen accessories. They will make their home in Los Angeles.

Former Sen., Mrs. Phipps Attend Ceremony

Among the out-of-town guests were former Senator and Mrs. Laurence Phipps, of Denver; Miss Virginia Murphy, of St. Louis; William Lewis Stanton, of Lancaster, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Foley and their daughter, Miss Margaret Foley, of Winnipeg, Canada, and the Rev. and Mrs. DeQ. Graybill, of Madison, Wis.

The bride is a graduate of Occidental College, of Los Angeles, and the California Graduate School of Design. She is a granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. J. Q. A. Henry and the late Mr. and Mrs. William L. Stanton, of Atlanta, Ga.

In 1935, the former Miss Henry won the national junior tennis singles championship. She also won the national intercollegiate teenis singles and doubles for 1936 and 1937. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Mr. eYomans is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and of the Harvard Law School. He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yeomans, of New Brunswick, N. J., and of Mr. and Mrs. George Dawson, of Scotsville, Va.

Miss Martin Is Married

At a quiet morning ceremony yesterday in the Chapel of the Resurrection at the Washington Cathedral, Miss Louise Broy Martin, daughter of Mrs. Augustus H. Martin and the late Mr. Martin, of Denver, became the bride of Carl David Schlachter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Schlachter, of Montclair, N. J. Canon William M. Bradner, of the Cathedral, officiated at the 10:30 ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white marquisette, fashioned with a tight bodice, and a very full skirt, and wore a small white pancake hat with a short veil. She wore a corsage of sweetheart roses, and had no attendants.

Wedding Breakfast Follows Ceremony

Foallowing the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast for the immediate members of the two families in the Queen Elizabeth Room of the Raleigh Hotel. The bride's mother was gowned in a black and white ensemble and wore a corsage of gardenias. The mother of the bridegroom wore gray chiffon, with accessories to match and a gardenia corsage.

Couple to Reside In Washington

When the couple left for their wedding trip, the bride was wearing a beige ensemble of light wool with violet accessories. They traveled by plane to New York and will continue their journey from there by motor, after which they will make their home in Washington.

The bride attended the University of Colorado and is a graduate of Denver University. Mr. Schlachter was graduated from Cornell University, and studied architecture in Rome and Sweden.

Soroptimists Of Region Meet

Changes in membership classification proposed oby the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs were the subject of recommendations yesterday at the spring conference of the South Atlantic Region, held at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Miss Viola Almony, of Baltimore, regional director, presided.

The conference recommended that classification remain the same with only one active and one associate member permitted from each profession, and that the member's community interest should decide the place of her membership in case her business was in one locality and her residence in another.

Miss Mary Bourke, of Washington, chairman of the committee on Venture Clubs, organizations of young business womoeon sponsored by the Soroptimists, reported that new Venture groups had been started in Arlington and Montgomery counties, in addition to those already established in Washington, Alexandria and Baltimore.

Club presidents attending the meeting were Mrs. Hazel Van Middlesworth, of Alexandria; Dr. Verlin Miles, of Arlington; Miss Helen Garvin, of Baltimore; Mrs. Anna Peck, of Montgomery County; Mrs. Jean Bennett, of Washington, and Miss Adeline Hoffman, of Westminster, Md. Mary Haworth's Mail

Adoption Often Breaks the Spell of Childlessness, Bringing Fertility in Its Wake, Readers Say

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please advise "Heartbroken" (your correspondent of May 11, who longs in vain for children) to be of good courage. There are many of us who were once in the same predicament—but who now have so many children that we don't know what to do! I consulted the most famous specialists in this country (not just in Washington), and had various interesting experiments performed upon me, with no results.

Finally, I struck a wise old physician who told me that it was the USUAL (not the occasional) thing for a couple who were organically sound, but sterile, to have children a-plenty of their own after having adopted one as a starter. My husband (like "Heartbroken's" husband) objected to the suggestion—as husbands generally do. He has since volunteered the information that his objections were primarily selfish, although he would not have admitted that, even to himself, at the time.

Husbands of devoted wives are badly spoiled, and they adore having their wives bestow countless attentions upon them, which they well know she couldn't find time for if there were babies in the home. The wife must use considerable ingenuity in surmounting such objections, and it may be weeks after the baby is in the home before the husband will admit that he isn't disgusted with the arrangement. But then he grows just plain silly about the child!

Foster fathers are prouder pests than natural papas, I do believe. Furthermore, the foster parents become so well satisfied with their "chosen child" (or children) that they are sometimes more surprised than pleased when they learn that Heaven is sending them one or more of their own. They seldom have to wait more than two or three years before the tide turns, either. There is nothing to worry about if they find the stork trailing them when the mother is well over 30.

Most women ARE past 30 by the time they get desperate enough to adopt a baby. But at that age we have better sense than the flappers and take more intelligent care of ourselves (as expectant mothers), and experience no peculiar difficulty because of mature years. After the baby comes, we feel no resentment at being "tied down." In fact, we rejoice in such a good excuse for staying home of nights.

The above has been my experience and that of several of my acquaintances. In addition, there are other similar cases that I know of through hearsay. I have received several letters from foster mothers, thanking me for giving them the courage to adopt a child (and it does take courage!), who has since become the pride and joy of their existence. So, tell the lonely lady that she and her husband may yet have a happy home full of children, plenty of excitement and the satisfaction of feeling that they have a purpose in life and a very important role to play—if she follows the example set by some of the rest of us. Good luck to her, and Godspeed!

P. S.—Further details, if desired, will be gladly supplied—concerning doctors, adoption homes, etc.

MRS. E. J. M.

Interesting Suggestion

DEAR MRS. E. J. M.: I am very glad to have this opportunity of re-opening the discussion, since you make a point which was brought to my attention, in casual conversation, after my reply (of May 11) to "Heartbroken" had had already appeared in print. It was a registered nurse, as a matter of fact, who suggested: "Why didn't you tell her to adopt a child? It seems that formerly childless couples very often have children of their own, after they have started an 'adopted family.'"

It is true that I did say, in passing, that "it seems to me that any humane, informed and conscientious specialist who was confronted by (this woman's) balked longing to have a child—and who recognized the devastation which that frustration was bound to visit upon the marriage—would, as his least contribution to the situation, undertake to deliver the husband from his prejudiced opposition to the proposition of adopting 'a strange child (or children') . . . if he were convinced that this procedure represented the only possible alleviation of (her) 'almost unbearable' childlessness."

But I did not emphasize adoption as a possible means of invoking fertility—because, frankly, such a possibility had never before been called to my attention. If such a possibility exists, and has been factually demonstrated time and again, and is a phenomenon with which "wise old physicians" and registered nurses are familiar, then I am happy to be able to pass the suggestion along to "Heartbroken" for what it may be worth.

Very Much 'At Home'

The amusing designer who thought up this lingerie mode will have to create a new name for it. It is not exactly a nightgown, nor is it quite formal enough for dinners or receiving. It is a two-piece boudoir costume, worn more properly "at home" than anywhere else. Flowered silk crepe in a delicious shade of baby blue has been employed for both the gown and the brassiere top. Coy lace ruffles and ribbons, stolen from baby's cradle, finish off this outfit, which was applauded at a recent fashion show

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Miss Hughes Learns How to Use Subway From Girl From D. C.

IT IS PROBABLE that no one in the United States really believes any more that the citizen of New York is a slicker who always knows what time it is and which way is north. This notion has been thoroughly, if you will pardon the archaic word, debunked. The truth is that the resident of Manhattan Island, once he gets across the Harlem River into the Bronx, or over the Hudson to Jersey, is often as helpless as a blind man in a coal mine. He usually hollers for a cop, or a St. Bernard dog, or a Boy Scout, to show him how to get home again.

ALICE HUGHES

The oddest experience of this kind that has ever befallen me occurred on the opening day of our Fair. After hearing the President and witnessing other dedicatory didoes, I decided to go on home and rest the old bones. So I went into one of the Fair subway stations and my troubles began. There I was, out there in Flushing, and all the signs seemed to read "Jamaica, Corona and Great Neck." None said "Murray Hill," where I live. I was lost and lorn, like a stray pup. Finally, noting two nice looking men and a very nice looking girl, I sidled up and said, "Please, Miss, do the trains on this track go to New York?"

After inspecting the simple signs she said that yes, they did. Then she looked at me very hard, and said, "Aren't you Alice Hughes?" I told my benefactress that I was.

"I thought so," said the pretty girl. "My name is Eleanor Pearson, and I come from Washington, D. C. I see your picture in The Post all the time. This is my husband and this is my father." So the train came, and we all got aboard and it actually did go to Manhattan Island. So thanks to the kindly offices of Eleanor Pearson, I got home safely. Otherwise I might still be out in Flushing, sobbing. And that's the sort of woman who presumes to write about the antics of the world's greatest city. Faugh! She shouldn't be allowed at large!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The bangtails are galloping again out at beautiful Belmont Park on Long Island, which means that the spring social season for Gotham's sportin' swells is officially open. The nobs sit in the boxes, and the rest of us trudge around and gape at the beautiful ladies.

Your Figure Madam

Lack of Vitamin BI in Diet Is General Whole Grain Bread and Cereals Supply It

WHAT YOUR grandfather didn't know about vitamin B1 never hurt him because he got about three times as much as you are likely to get in the course of the day's three square meals. So instead of taking a high-handed attitude on account of your grandfather's health, go ahead and eat the whole wheat bread your wife places before you. She is only trying to save you from beriberi!

If you think beriberi is a calamity reserved for people living in the Orient, your eyes would open at the latest bulletins from Dr. Norman Jolliffe, assistant professor of clinical medicine at New York University, and chief of the medical service of the psychiatric division at Bellevue Hospital.

Dr. Jolliffe's extensive studies of this very important vitamin have convinced him that the dietary deficiency in this country is much more prevalent than generally recognized—and all because we do not get enough of the whole grains which are the richest and most economical source.

You Aren't Doomed

Your dietary deficiency might not be so acute as to result in beriberi—and if it were, your condition would probably be called some kind of neuritis instead of beriberi! But if you suffer from such minor but unpleasant manifestations as lack of appetite, fatigue and nervous and circulatory disturbances, it is possible that they are caused by a B1 deficiency.

In a recent lecture before the New York Academy of Medicine, Dr. Jolliffe asserted that deficiency of this vitamin should be suspected, not only in the low income groups, but among all groups with pronounced likes and dislikes as to food and among alcohol addicts. That would include a large majority of the people in this country!

With all the readily available knowledge of nutrition, it is possible for the housewife to plan a dietary supplying adequate amounts of Vitamin B1 for less than $2 per person per week. But it is not easy! It is not nearly as easy today to get whole grain bread and cereals as it was back in 1840, and the reason, as pointed out by Dr. Jolliffe, is the improvement made in the milling. Back in those good old days most of the Vitamin B remained in the flour after it was milled. Also, the milling was done locally and a good thing it was! This highly important vitamin has a serious commercial drawback in that it attracts moulds and this causes the rapid spoilage of the flour. Evidently, the bugs know what's good for them!

B1 for All

But in spite of this difficulty and any objection you may have, whole grains are still the best source of vitamin B1 for the average person. As a dietary deficiency preventive for the population in general, Dr. Jolliffe suggests the substitution of whole grain bread and cereals for white bread and refined cereals, plus a reduction in our annual per capita consumption of sugar, which is vitamin-free.

Grandfather took most of his calories in grain products and averaged only about 25 calories a day in sugar. Therefore, Dr. Jolliffe has estimated that if he followed the average diet of those days he took about 1,000 international units of vitamin B1 per day in comparison to your probable 300 international units.

King, Queen to Eat Birds From Arctic

Island of Orleans, Quebec, May 14.—The rarest morsel that will be served tomorrow night to their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth at the dinner in Quebec, tendered by the provincial government, is "Oiseaux blancs de l'Ile d'Orleans." Although known and enjoyed for several centuries by residents of this old settled island, this delicacy is said to be practically unknown elsewhere in the world. This small, plump bird of delicate flavor is served "en aspic."

"Oiseaux blancs" are really snow buntings, resemble medium-sized sparrows. Each spring these Arctic birds fly south to this vicinity. Here they take on their breeding plumage of immaculate snow white with black saddle.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay,

Girls From Down On the Farm

THE RADIO ARTIST:

"Good morning, friends. You know this perfectly heavenly May morning—and I do hope all of you are enjoying heavenly May mornings—fills me with such a longing for my dear old home back in Potato Ridge, Ark., that I find it difficult to think of anything else, even Bloke's Magic Rejuvenating Night Cream.

"I just wonder how many of my listeners have ever had the experience of being on a farm in summer . . . of helping milk the cows . . . curry the horses . . . dress the chickens for Sunday dinner . . . turn the grindstone . . . pick the worms off the tomato plants—all of those homely happy tasks that make rural life so beautiful and so genuine. Now we didn't have many things back in Potato Ridge—we always went barefoot from the first of March to the last of November—but we did have a wondeful time.

"May, I believe, was the happiest month of all for that was when the weeds were just coming up fast enough to keep us busy hoeing in the garden. I was thinking of those happy days last night when I went to the opera—but I am getting ahead of my story. Now before I continue let me take just a minute to explain why Bloke's Magic Rejuvenating Night Cream is guaranteed to make any woman glamorous . . ."

THE BUTTERFLY:

"Why you've simply been EVERYWHERE, Mr. Tripp! You make me feel so provincial . . . Oh, but really I am! No, I've just never been anywhere—outside of New York and Atlantic City and a few places like that. What I mean is I've simply never been to Europe—or anywhere.

"I'm terribly unsophisticated, I suppose . . . really countrified . . . Oh, but I am . . . No, I don't suppose I'll ever get all the hayseeds out of my hair . . . Oh, well, it's nice of you to say that, but I recognize that essentially I am a rural type.

"No, I don't think I would ever really fit into city life—that is, really cosmopolitan life. And then anyway it all seems so sort of . . . well artificial and insincere. Besides, I love the outdoors, don't you? . . . I'm crazy about horses . . . and dogs . . . and cows—oh yes and buttermilk. Say Mr. Puffer did you EVER taste buttermilk—real cow's buttermilk, just as it comes from the churn? . . . Well, I really think the thing I miss here more than anything else is buttermilk!

"Oh yes of course I have a good time here but . . . well I guess it's a little beyond my speed . . . No, you see I had a very simple upbringing—really it was a Victorian childhood—what? Oh thanks, I believe I will . . . Well, make it a double Martini."

THE POLITICIAN:

"Ladies and gentlemen: Facing this audience of intelligent, stalwart American is to me most inspiring. It reminds me—if I may digress for a personal reference—of an experience I had on the plane coming out from New York. Now, of course, as you know, plane facilities are still somewhat limited and on retiring—although I was quite dusty—I had to go without my bawth.

"Now that brought so vividly to mind the idyllic, never to be forgotten days of my childhood when I lived on a remote farm in western Iowa—and where we all took a Saturday night bawth. I wonder how many of you have ever had the experience of taking a Saturday night bawth in the old tin galvanized wash tub? What fun it used to be as we children would wait our turn in the kitchen while our mother heated great kettles of water on the old cook stove! How beautifully red and scrubbed we would come from the tub, all fresh and clean to go to Sunday school the next morning!

"Now, I just want to say to you before I go any further that the Saturday night bawth was a truly great American institution. Friends, what this country needs is more Saturday night bathers! And now that brings me to what I believe is the supreme issue in this campaign—democracy! . . ."

Learn New Tap Steps at Home

THE TRY-OUT for the school revue—and what a surprise Elsie gives everyone who thought her a shy violet type. She wows 'em with a snappy tap routine!

All because she discovered that lively tap dances are based mainly on six simple steps, combined in different ways.

Why, in one evening's practice you can learn those six basic steps from diagrams! And after that you go right on to dazzling routines that get you a big hand when the show's on.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, "Self-Instruction in to Tap Dancing." The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Kidney-Mushroom Casserole Makes Gratifying Meal

By Martha Ellyn

The Post Food Editor.

A DIRECT descendant of the famus English beef and kidney pie is kidney mushroom casserole. Served with potato balls and cauliflower polanaise, a spring salad, and vanilla ice cream with ginger sauce, you have a meal that's hard to beat.

Kidney and Mushroom Casserole

Split 6 lamb kidneys, skin and soak in cold water for 30 minutes. Slice and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Saute kidneys and 1 cup mushroom caps and 1 tablespoon minced onion in 6 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons flour and blend. Add 1 cup hot canned consomme and bring to boil. Simmer until thick. Season and add 2 tablespoons sherry, if desired. Turn in casserole. When ready to serve garnish with potato balls. Serves four.

Are You Homesick for Someplace Else?

OFTEN the underlying motivation of a vacation is that vague feeling which the French speak of as "a homesickness for someplace else."

Maybe it's most often weariness, at bottom; or it may be boredom. But always it's a crying-out for a change.

That's why The Homestead is here. In a changing world, amid changing ways of life, there are human needs which are unchanging—and often, as in this case, the manner of their satisfaction changes little from generation to generation.

For a century and a half The Homestead has been administering to this need, in scores or hundreds of its manifestations; and civilization has evolved, on the whole, no better panacea for this need for luxurious rest and change than is exemplified in The Homestead.

Whether you're athletic or sedentary, young or middle-aged, gay or quiet, we've known and ministered to thousands of your own sort. And you'll be tempted to believe, when you get here, that The Homestead and its recreations and its luxuries must have been created with you in mind.

The Washington booking office of THE HOMESTEAD is in the Mayflower Hotel, in charge of Miss Frances Curtis. Make inquiry there and you'll find interested, helpful assistance

60 Antialien Bills Hit as Parley Closes

Emergency Conference Told Rep. Smith's Plan Might Deport All Aliens

Attacking what Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, called "One of the greatest threats to the liberties of the American people that has faced us in the past 140 years," the National Emergency Conference on antialien legislation yesterday condemned more than 60 pending pieces of legislation which "foster a fascistic sentiment . . . and set man against man."

The hastily convened conference, which adjourned yesterday after two-day session at the Raleigh Hotel, declared that there is no substantial alien problem in our country and that antialien legislation is injurious to American citizens.

Bills objected to would require aliens to be registered and fingerprinted, would bar them from advocating changes in the American Government or from membership in organizations advocating changes.

Fight Concentration Camps

Specifically the conference condemned the Dempsey and Hobbs bills, passed recently by the House, the latter providing for "setting up concentration camps for alien criinals and radicals whose deportation cannot be effected."

These bills "will constitute an entering wedge for legislation that would deprive aliens and citizens alike of those fundamental liberties guaranteed not only by the Bill of Rights but also by the most sacred traditions of American democracy," the unanimously adopted report of the resolutions committee said.

The conference members agreed to remain here to carry to their Congressmen the conference conclusions and to set up a permanent organization to watch antialien legislation.

Held Aimed at Unions

Arguing that the anti-alien bills were merely a blind to hide Fascist legislation directed primarily at labor organizations, Senator Murray said that the language of many of the bills would subject aliens to deportation if they merely advocated amendments to the Constitution.

Mgr. John A. Ryan, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said he believed that Americans would not be stampeded by "red scares" in passage of the legislation.

Smith's Bill Cited

Carol King, secretary of the International Juridical Association, told the conference that under a bill introduced by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, no non-naturalized alien now in America would escape deportation.

Other speakers at yesterday's meeting included the explorer Vilhjalmur Steffansson; Nobel Prize-winning Physicist Dr. Harold C. Urey, the Rev. Thomas Harris and Isaac Shorr.

Funeral Services To Be Tomorrow For H. P. White

Funeral services for Harry P. White, 54, assistant treasurer of the American Security & Trust Co., will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary C. White, 907 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. White died at his mother's home Saturday night. He lived at the Westchester Apartments.

He was an active member of the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, and the Board of Trade. He belonged to the New Jerusalem Lodge No. 9 of Masons, the Northeast Businessmen's Association, the Society of Natives, and the board of directors of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

Besides his mother, he leaves his wife, Mrs. Blanche Dalton White, and a sister, Miss Mabel S. White, of this city.

Union Miners Entertained

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

This quartet, featuring the jug blower, yesterday entertained union miners while they awaited speakers at a meeting in Harlan, Ky. Kentucky troops last night patroled Harlan area mines following the Governor's order that all miners wishing to return to work today be protected

Troops, Pickets Move on Harlan

"brought peace and quiet to Harlan County," and urged the miners that if a contract was signed "let's make the mines hum and make money for the operators."

He asserted "one union miner can do more work than a dozen scabs."

Turnblazer, a red-faced, heavy-set, gray-haired man, charged the sending of troops in Harlan County was a political move on the part of Gov. Chandler.

"Happy Chandler has dreams of being Vice President . . . and even President . . . but the stigma of sending troops into Harlan County to force open the mines will go with him to his grave," he declared.

While the crowd assembled, string bands from various locals played. Automobiles jammed the highway and through traffic was delayed until a narrow passageway could be cleared.

Many Shout Approval

Many in the crowd shouted encouragement to the speakers and shouted their approval of remarks.

Several thousand miners and their families, dressed in their Sunday best, stood for two hours under a broiling sun to hear the union chieftains exhort them not to return to the mines tomorrow morning. The miners have been idle since April 1, when the contracts for the soft coal industry expired.

Turnblazer said the union had a "big war chest and no miner or miner's family in Harlan County is going to starve."

The district president said the union had behind it the "millions of members of the C. I. O." in its fight to obtain a contract in Harlan County.

Referring to the Harlan anti-labor conspiracy trials at London, Ken., last summer, which resulted in a hung jury, Turnblazer declared:

"Either the operators sign the coal contract or we will take them down to London for six or eight more weeks."

Turnblazer said Federal agents are now in Harlan investigating alleged violations of the Federal labor laws by the operators.

Titler told the crowd the union had spent "$20,000, $30,000, $40,000 in relief" for the miners since the contract expired last month.

Titler criticized Harlan County officials who had asked for State militia and denied that "75 per cent" of the miners in Harlan County wanted to return to work as alleged by operators.

After conferring with Turnblazer and other union chiefs, Titler said he would give pickets instructions as to their deportment. He predicted "no violence."

Gov. Chandler, in ordering troops here and replying to a warning by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, that the mines should stay closed and "soldiers will not operate those mines," said:

"No one can tell our people to work or not to work and no one can come into this State and cause trouble."

Lewis said he personally was handling developments in Harlan County.

"The adjutant general understands there is to be no violence allowed," said the Governor. "No restraint of men who want to work and nothing done to force men to work. If the union wants to carry on peaceful picketing, they can do so."

Gen. Custer's Civil War Hero Is Near Death

By the Associated Press.

Richwood, W. Va., May 14.—A 95-year-old Civil War veteran, whose general commended him for "indomitable courage," was apparently surrendering at last tonight—to pneumonia.

Relatives said Peter Hamilton Craig, ill for two days, was dying.

He rode with Custer in war days, and a citation from the later-renowned Indian fighter said of Craig:

"The record established by your indomitable courage is unparalleled in the annals of war."

Craig was with Grant at Appomattox. It was during those last few days of conflicts, he said, that he performed an astonishing feat.

His horse bolted. The animal carried him, he related, into the ranks of two platoons of Confederate soldiers, who began firing.

Craig said he called out for the entire company of about 60 men to surrender, and—when they did—went to the Union forces with all as prisoners.

He served also under Sheridan.

Custer asked him, Craig said, to go West with his command to the Indian Territories. The West Virginian declined, and came home. Custer and his command were killed.

Belgian to Survey Spain for Bankers

Paris, May 14 (U.P.).—Financiers said tonight former Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium had agreed to undertake an economic survey in Spain for European bankers who may make a large reconstruction loan to Gen. Franco, providing he gives pledges of strict neutrality.

Reports of the size of the loan ranged as high as $100,000,000 but banking circles indicated that the first lending, if it is agreed upon, may be nearer $50,000,000 to rebuild the war-torn country.

LaGuardia Host To Adm. Johnson Of Atlantic Fleet

New York, May 13 (INS).—Mayor LaGuardia and more than 1,000 of the city's businessmen were hosts tonight at a farewell dinner for Rear Admiral Alfred W. Johnson and officers of the Navy's Atlantic squadron which has been in New York on an official visit.

Joseph V. Connolly, member of the public relations division of the mayor's naval committee, presented Admiral Johnson with an original painting by James Montgomery Flagg as a farewell memento.

The dinner was sponsored by a group of New York civic and business organizations as a tribute to the Navy before the fleet weighs anchor Wednesday and sets out to sea again.

Ringling Brothers 'Big Top' Raised for Circus Opening This Afternoon

Post Staff Photos.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's Circus arrived in town yesterday for three days, with the opening performance this afternoon on the grounds at Twenty-first and C streets northeast. Thousands of youngsters, plus almost as many adults were on hand for the "big top" raising. Chef Van Kirk (top left) prepares supper for the 1,300 performers and workers. A few husky pulls (center) and the tent rises another few inches. Strong arms (right) drive the stakes that hold the tent erect. Directly above, ponderous elephant and two pigmy pachyderms are being unloaded from a car as wondrous young eyes look on

1,200 Lutherans Here Celebrate Centennial of Missouri Synod

Dr. Walter Maier, of St. Louis, Tells Throng At 3-Church Joint Observance That America Must Retain Founders' Ideals in These Times

America's destiny rests upon adherence to its founders' ideals of home, church, Christian education and true Americanism, Dr. Walter Maier, of St. Louis, preacher-professor, last night at First Congregational Church, told 1,200 Missouri Synod Lutherans at a joint centennial service commemorating the landing of refugee Lutherans in this country.

Colleges Create Skeptics

Never before in the history of this country has there been such an attempt to move these "landmarks," warned Dr. Maier, citing the "pernicious elements" which have crept into America's educational system. These "elements" have been responsible for sending once-Christian young people home from college as infidels and skeptics, he pointed out.

A massed choir furnished music for the service, in which the participating congregations and pastors were Trinity, Washington, the Rev. H. M. Hennig; Christ, the Rev. J. Frederic Wenchel; Trinity, Mount Rainier, the Rev. E. E. Pieplow; Mount Olivet, the Rev. William Schiebel, and Immanuel, the Rev. E. Leonhardt. G. Kortzenborn directed the choir.

Came to U. S. in 1838

Oppressed in Germany, some 700 Lutherans sailed from Bremen in the fall of 1838 in five chartered ships, one of which was lost at sea.

Landing in New Orleans, they sailed up the Mississippi to St. Louis, settling nearby and establishing the Log Cabin College for training teachers and ministers, forerunner of the present Concordia Seminary.

4,000 Acres Improved for Maryland Park

Elk Neck Area To Open Soon for Summer Vacationists

By the Associated Press.

North East, Md., May 14.—A 4,000-acre improved section of Elk Neck State Park, ideally situated between the North East and Elk rivers in Cecil County, will give Marylanders a new playground this summer.

When completed by Civilian Conservation Camp workers who started the project in May, 1937, the park will cover more than 12,000 acres, threaded by trails and roadways and spotted with cabins, fire places and other conveniences for vacationists.

There will be swimming beaches on both rivers, and bathhouses are to be erected.

Eight or ten of the projected 40 cabins will be completed by July 1, CCC officials reported. Also to be erected are dining halls, kitchens, lunch counters and recreation rooms. Rental rates will be fixed by the State Department of Forestry.

Fire places and drinking fountains already have been built in the 4,000 acres now open to the public. Along the two miles of roadway parking areas have been built similar to those on the Sky Line drive in Virginia.

For the last two years an average of 175 CCC enrollees have worked on the project, directed by a technical staff of seven men.

Preacher Declines To Sign Somerset Ad Against Liquor

Princess Anne, Md., May 14 (AP).—Thirty-four ministers, all but one of Somerset County's clergymen, signed a lengthy advertisement against the establishment of liquor dispensaries in the county, a proposal to be voted on June 6.

The lone nonsigner was the Rev. J. Randolph Field, of the St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. He had this to say about the ministers' advice on the proposal, which has given Somerset a red-hot controversy:

"I thoroughly respect the opinions of the other minister and all men must be accorded the right to their own convictions and beliefs. If the premises of the petition are sound—if, for instance, the liquor business as they say does damn souls, then their argument is very good. For myself, I find other social, moral and religious questions of much more pressing importance."

Army Reservist Sought in CCC Loss of $20,600

Camp Dix, N. J., May 14 (INS).—Missing from his post here since last Sunday night, Capt. Alfred P. Barnard, a reserve officer in charge of the CCC finance department, was sought tonight for questioning in disappearance of $20,600 of camp funds.

An eight-State alarm was broadcast by police.

Capt. Barnard, 37, is married and has several children. His wife lives at Binghamton, N. Y.

He left Camp Dix on a three-day furlough on May 4 and failed to report for duty last Sunday night when his leave expired. In view of his continued absence, an investigation was made of the camp funds and the loss discovered.

Filipinos Mark Mother's Day Here

More than 150 Washington Filipinos, gathered to observe Mother's Day at the Y. M. C. A., last night heard Miss Agnes G. Regan, assistant director of the National Catholic School of Social Service, tell them that "through your country the message of Christianity will come to the whole Orient."

Remember Mother," an original playlet written and directed by Pilar N. Ravelo, was presented by a cast of young Filipinos.

Frostburg Rallies

Frostburg, Md., May 13.—Trailing by two runs going into the last half of the ninth inning, Frostburg State baseball team staged a rally to defeat Mount St. Mary's nine of Emmitsburg, here, 5-4.

Livestock Prizes Given in Maryland

By the Associated Press.

College Park, Md., May 13.—James A. McGregory, of Worton, won the livestock sweepstakes trophy at the annual fitting and judging contest at the University of Maryland yesterday. Jacob C. Siegrist, of Baltimore, received the Maryland Co-operative Milk Producers Association sweepstakes trophy, and Robert L. Stevens, of Street, won the dairy cattle reserve sweepstakes trophy presented by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

But the applause of the day went to Milbrey Downey, member of Alpha Xi Delta, who won first place in the inter-sorority milking contest, the contest's annual sidelight feature. Peggy Kibler, of Kappa Kappa Gamma, was second.

Stevens scored again in the sheep-shearing contest, which he won. McGregor was second and Whiting B. Lee, Hyattsville, was third.

J. M. Johnson to Speak

20,000 Watch 80-Car Circus Unload for Three-Day Stand

1,600 People, 1,009 Menagerie Animals Arrive in Four Trains as Crowd Forces Special Duty for 100 Police

Eighty freight car loads of circus were unloaded in Washington yesterday under the critical supervision of more than 20,000 "big top" fans.

The first section of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus arrived at the Benning siding at 11 a. m., followed by three others at two-hour intervals. Unloaded by the proverbial ponderous pachyderms, an endless stream of wagons trekked over to the new show grounds at Twenty-first and C streets northeast, where the first performance will begin at 2:15 p. m. today. Another will start at 8:15 p. m. There will be two performances a day at the same time tomorrow and Wednesday.

100 Police on Duty

By 5 p. m. the big top had been raised to the stentorian chanty of the rope caller, whose original words were "heave it—heavy—shake it—break it—shove it down." By the time he had coxswained the 250th guy rope, however, his calls had settled into rhythmic gibberish.

More than 100 extra police were called out to handle crowds at the freight siding and the circus lot. Traffic, doubled by the fine Sunday afternoon and circus fans inched along Benning road for several hours.

First up was the cook tent, where a score of chefs set about feeding 1,300 members of the crew. As the day wore on the 1,009—count 'em—1,009 menagerie animals, hidden in canvas covered wagons, set up a chorus of protest and anticipation, accompanied by the symphony of pounding sledge hammers, hard-talking elephant drivers and adjective-dripping publicity agents.

Circus Has 1,600 People

With the superlatives strained out of the latter's harangues, this year's circus inventory stacks up like this:

Sixteen hundred people, 50 elephants, 500 performers, 41 tents, 70 Kentucky thoroughbred horses, Gargantua the Great, 50 lions and tigers to be terrorized single handed by Animal Trainer Terrell Jacobs, a horse-fair tent adjoining the menagerie, and what threatens to be modernistic decor for the big top, with a surrealist inaugural pageant entitled "The World Comes to the World's Fair."

In addition are newly imported European features including trapeze performers, the Pilade family, members of which turn somersaults over elephant hurdles, springboard somersaulting troupes, tight-wire clowns, jugglers, aerial bar artists, equestrians, bareback riders and the perennial favorites on the flying trapeze, high wire and aerial ballet.

Virginia Retailers Plan Convention

Newport News, Va., May 14 (AP).—Arrangements for the thirty-fourth annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association of Virginia, to be held at the Chamberlin Hotel June 20-21, are nearing completion, it was announced today by Mrs. Aurella S. Iverson, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of the Virginia Peninsula, host organization.

Among speakers at the two-day meeting will be Maj. Raymond B. Bottom, Newport News publisher and president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce; C. H. Morrissette, Richmond, Virginia State tax commissioner; Dr. David R. Craig, Washington, president of the American Retail Federation; Dr. Paul C. Kelly, Washington, vice president; Walter M. Evans, Richmond, attorney for the State association; B. P. Carter, Richmond, of the Virginia Association of Insurance Agents, and others.

Lutherans Again Elect Linggle

Shepherdstown, W. Va., May 14. The Rev. F. P. Lingle, of Strasburg, Va., was re-elected president of the Northern Virginia Conference of the Lutheran Church in the Synod of Virginia. This was concluded yesterday at the Uvilla Lutheran Church, this county, of which the Rev. John Fray, Lutheran pastor here, is the pastor.

The Rev. C. J. Rice, of Mount Jackson, Va., was named secretary; and F. B. Hepner, of Woodstock, Va., treasurer.

In addition to discussion of routine matters by the conference the delegates heard two principal addresses, one by the Rev. Dr. Amos Travers, of Frederick, Md., on promotional work of the general Lutheran conference, and the other by the Rev. Hugh J. Rhyne, of Marion Junior College.

Garden Club Arranges Tour at Berryville

Berryville, Va., May 14.—A garden tour of 13 small and intimate gardens, sponsored by the Jefferson County Garden Club, will be held Tuesday afternoon, May 16, from 2 to 6 p. m. in Charles Town, W. Va. Those who visit the gardens will be guests at tea at the home of Miss Margaret Chew. Listed on the tour are the gardens of Miss Catherine Baylor, Mrs. Milton Rouss, Mrs. W. M. Stanley, Homer Beller, Miss Mary Porterfield, Mrs. F. C. Kleinschmidt, A. B. Mitchell, G. M. Beltzhoover, Mrs. J. M. Trapnell, W. T. Coe and the Misses Ambler. Small green flags will mark the homes to be visited.

Capital News In Brief

30 Tour Synagogue

Climaxing a series of studies on church art, architecture and symbolism, more than 30 members of the Intermediate Department of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church were taken on a tour of the Adas Israel Synogogue yesterday by Rabbi Solomon H. Metz.

The significance of the six-pointed star, the six branched candlestick, and other symbols was explained to the young people, who were led by the Rev. George A. Ackerly, associate pastor at Mount Pleasant, and Thomas Fulton, Mrs. Fred Morgan and Mrs. A. A. Hinrichs, their supervisors, and Mrs. D. R. Wicks, Sunday School superintendent.

Fears for Womanhood

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, in a "Mothers' Day" message here yesterday, asserted:

"God gives to womanhood a sensitiveness, and understanding and an intuitiveness quite different from the qualities granted to men, but I wonder, in this era of rapid change, if women are losing some of these finer things."

"Back of every man of signal accomplishment is generally to be found a woman's influence and most generally that woman is his mother," the Rev. Edward O. Clark told a Chevy Chase Baptist Church congregation that included more than 75 mothers.

Recovers After Plunge

Dr. Robert Lewis Daniel, Columbia, S. C., physician, who was said to be in a critical condition at Gallinger Hospital Saturday following a six-story plunge through a kitchen skylight of the Continental Hotel, was released from the hospital yesterday, it was announced.

Teachers Group Elects

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 13.—At a session last night of the Berkeley County Teachers Association here, attended by 200 teachers and their friends, Paul McKown, principal of Bunker Hill School, was elected president for the ensuing year. Miss Hilda Doggett, of Winchester Avenue School, this city, was re-elected vice president, and George O'Brien, of John Street School, secretary-treasurer.

Papal Delegate to Rededicate Shrine at Spanish Embassy

Mosaic of Virgin and Child Appears to Have Been Profaned by Being Covered With Plaster During Loyalist Occupancy, Cardenas Says

Believing that a shrine at the Spanish Embassy was profaned during the tenure of Loyalist Ambassador Fernando de los Rios, the present occupant, Nationalist Ambassador Juan de Cardenas, has arranged for the chapel's rededication at a mass to be celebrated at 10 a. m. today, the embassy announced yesterday.

The Very Rev. Amleto Cicognani, papal delegate to the United States, will officiate.

Cardenas said a shrine in the embassy patio, consisting of a mosaic image of the Virgin and Child embedded in the wall, appeared to have been blocked up with plaster or cement and the covering later removed.

At present, the mosaic picture is badly faded. Attaches insist that the fading could not have been the result of weathering or natural causes.

Cardenas said when he asked the Apostolic Delegate's permission to celebrate the mass, the delegate volunteered to officiate himself.

A congregation of about 50 officials of Catholic University, Georgetown University and the National Catholic Welfare Conference, as well as prominent Catholic layman, have been invited to the service.

Coin Dated 1700 Found

Luray, Va., May 13.—Melvin Cave, son of Roy Cave, of Luray, unearthed a Spanish coin dated 1700 while working on the Carroll Spitler farm yesterday.

Subscription Drive Is On for Next Season

Advantages and Perils of Guild-Society Plan; Warners Announce Many Managerial Changes News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

A BULLETIN from the indefatigable Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, Washington sales manager for the joint organizations—or are they one and the same?—advises that more than 2,000 patrons already have signed on the dotted line for the 1939-40 subscription season of the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington, at the National Theater.

BELL

Only one week remains in which last year's subscribers may renew their seat locations for next season. After Monday, May 22, all prior options will expire and the reservations involved will be thrown on the open market. All pertinent information relating to this important business may be obtained from Miss Schreiner, in the National Theater, between the hours of 12:15 and 5:30 p. m. daily.

It is, of course, too early to announce with any definiteness what six plays will comprise the bills of the Theater Guild-American Theater Society's next season. As has been intimated here before, it is probable that the Lunts will be coming along early next season in the week of repertoire which illness prevented Mr. Lunt from presenting here this spring, as he had planned. As for the rest, it reposes in the laps of the gods, as the saying goes. It may be taken for granted, however, that next season's subscription plays will represent a judicious selection from among the most vital and most stimulating productions the new season has to offer.

This column is not so much concerned about the plays that will be brought here on the subscription plan as it is about the growing number of Guild-American Society subscribers who crowd the books in increasing numbers.

There is a point in the development of a subscription list beyond which further expansion becomes a liability rather than an asset. This is something, to be sure, about which Manager Edmund Plohn, of the National, should worry instead of me. But the fact remains that too many subscribers can create a distinctly unfavorable reaction in the general public mind, when it discovers that no tickets are available for the given attraction for reasons which are inexplicable to the layman.

Then, too, there is the matter of gross revenue. The subscription tickets are sold at reduced rates and frequently are for the most popular attractions of the year. With the house virtually "sold out" to subscribers and the general public being turned away, with folding money in its hands, there is a very appreciable loss at the box office.

But why am I worrying about these things?

For the third year, the Earle Theater will present an ice carnival as a stage attraction this summer. Production Manager Harry Anger makes it known that he already has completed plans for the skating festival which will be the stage feature at the Earle the week of July 7. Even now, he is busily engaged lining up talent for the frozen frolic and expects to include among his principals some of the most notable figures in the skating world.

Managerial changes that may present new faces in your favorite neighborhood theater have just been announced by Zone Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner Brothers interests in this territory. The shifts are prompted by the prospective opening next month of the new Kennedy Theater, latest addition to the Warner residential circuit.

When the Kennedy opens, Claude Land will fill the managerial post. It will be a promotion from the managership of the Colony. Henry Coon, meanwhile, has been designated acting manager of the Penn Theater, during the illness of Manager Dan Reynolds.

Other changes include: Transfer of James Glennon from the Seco to the Apollo, Sidney Hoffman from the Apollo to the Colony, Theodore Lohmeyer from the York to the Avalon, Fred MacMillan from the Avalon to the Silver, Nelson Smith from the Home to the Avenue Grand, and Lamar Keen from the Silver, in Silver Spring, to the Capitol, in Winchester, Va.

Three assistant managers in Washington have been promoted to managers, including Ernest Wells, from the Earle to the Home; Raymond Burch, from the Tivoli to the Seco, and Earl Heatwole, from the Metropolitan to the York.

So now you know, even if you won't know them for a day or two.

Today at 1 p. m., in the Willard Hotel, the Variety Club of Washington will give its annual "Mother's Day Luncheon," one of the most heart-warming events of its year. Every member of the club is exhorted to escort as many ladies as he feels he can entertain with justice to himself and them. John J. Payette, of the Warner Brothers, and Carter Barron, of Loew's, are co-kings for the day.

Speaking of neighborhood playhouses, as we were somewhere back there, ground was broken last week for the Hyattsville Theater, to be located in Hyattsville, naturally, as a new addition to the Sidney B. Lust chain of houses. The site of the new development is on the Baltimore boulevard at the Riverdale line.

The Hyattsville will have a seating capacity of 1,000 and will conform to all the requirements levied by the public upon amusement places of the most modern type. John Eberson, famous New York theater architect, designed the house, which is being constructed by Max Wertheimer, builder, for the Globe Amusement Co. and one of the most prominent and most beloved of Washington showmen. The Hyattsville will stand as something in the nature of a monument to his memory.

And another thing, E. M. Loew, having met with fine success with his Mount Vernon open-air automobile theater, down on the Richmond highway below Alexandria, is stepping out a bit in this territory. Last night he opened the new Governor Ritchie Theater, of the same type, on the Governor Ritchie highway, 3 miles south of the Baltimore line in Glen Burnie, Md.

So along comes another of those periodic postage cards from Romaine Callender, former popular member of the National Theater Players. Mr. Callender mailed his remembrance from Honolulu, with the notation that he is on his way to Australia to play in "Leaning on Letty," with Charlotte Greenwood. The Australians are in for a lot of laughs. Especially if Miss Greenwood continues to append her brief song recital to the end of the play. You will recall that this item was presented here many months ago. It didn't do nearly so well as it deserved to do. Better luck in the Antipodes.

Belated-Admonition Note

MICKEY ROONEY AND HIS ENSEMBLE,

as they will appear in "The Hardys Fly High," coming soon to a Loew screen. Master Rooney seems to be "stealing a bit of business" from "Idiot's Delight," although, of course, it might be something of his own creation. The juvenile star will be surrounded by the same group of principals who have made the "Hardy" series such notable successes—with Lewis S. Stone, needless to say, continuing as the amiable and understanding Judge Hardy

The New Yorker

New York, May 13.

FASHIONS DEPT.: When President and Mrs. Roosevelt tender their official White House reception to the King and Queen, their son, Elliott, will not wear any formal clothes. Nor will he wear black tie and dinner jacket . . . "This is a democracy," said the gray-suited Elliott Wednesday night, "and I'm coming dressed as I am now. I'm not buying any suit—just for that one reception."

CRIME DEPT.: Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean wearing her Hope Diamond and accompanied by her daughter, visited Fefe's Monte Carlo with two detective bodyguards . . . The guards were seated at another table, ready for action . . . "The papers have had conflicting stories about your duties," the detectives were asked. "Were you assigned to guarding the Hope Diamond or Mrs. McLean's daughter?" . . . "We're doing both," they informed . . . "But suppose," they were asked, "one mob tried to get the diamond while another mob kidnaped the girl—which one would you protect first?" . . . "First, of course," the detectives assured, "we'd go for the diamond."

SCHOOL DEPT.: At the New York Athletic Club these mornings Johnny Weismuller is giving swimming instructions to Peter Fick, America's most promising swimmer . . . Fick has broken almost every record—except Weismuller's 51 seconds for the 100 yards . . . Weismuller is teaching him how to do it.

DRAMA DEPT.: George White, preparing his new Scandals, reminisced of his early revues, during which Caleb Bragg, who is associated with Vincent Bendix, sent his secretary to White with a letter of introduction . . . White decided he was too busy to see her . . . A few years later George needed a girl to sing one of his new "Scandals" songs and paid $5,000 to Aarons & Freedley for the release of Ethel Merman, to whom he then paid $1,500 a week . . . The song was 'Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries" . . . After the deal was consummated Miss Merman said: "Here's a letter I tried to deliver to you a few years ago. I was Caleb Bragg's secretary" . . . That letter suggested White's hiring Ethel Merman, for the sum she had wanted—$50 a week.

ART DEPT.: Louis Slobodkin, whose prize-winning statue of Abe Lincoln disappeared from its exhibition spot at the World's Fair, has brought suit against Commissioner Ed Flynn demanding damages as well as the right to build and exhibit another statue . . . Mr. Flynn will be examined before trial and asked to explain what has become of the Lincoln statue or its pieces. Flynn also will be asked to identify the girl whose dislike for the statue resulted in its removal.

LOCAL NEWS: Stuart Chase, the economist, will testify before the Senate next week, in connection with the Ludlow amendment . . . Cap Pearce, who quit Harcourt-Brace, is organizing his own publishing firm . . . Charles MacArthur will write a foreword for the biography of his wife, Helen Hayes . . . Luise Rainer will bring her British play to Broadway in August. Her husband, Clifford Odets, will return from Mexico next month . . . If Dist. Atty. Geoghan resigns, as expected, his term may be completed by Secretary of State Walsh, as a build-up for the fall campaign . . . Atty. Gen. Frank Murphy will speak here next week, on Civil Liberties.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, ETC.: Mrs. Eddie Cantor was asked about her son-in-law and daughter, who are about to become parents . . . "I think it's wonderful," said Ida, "and Eddie says he won't mind being a grandfather. But he says he will mind spending his nights with a grandmother."

Finance Dept.: Ezra Stone, the star of "What a Life," arranged for Paramount News reel to publicize the show, by screening one performance . . . The Stagehands Union informed that this would cost the show $105 extra . . . Stone then assembled the cast who work on a co-operative basis, took them onstage, and had the ushers, attendants, electricians, etc., all stand in line . . . "We've been losing money," Stone told the group, "and since this is our co-operative show, what'll we do?" . . . A hat was passed, and the actors, ushers, attendants, electricians, etc., contributed the money.

EDUCATION DEPT.: Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh already have settled the education problem for their children . . . The Dwight Morrow estate in Englewood, N. J., will be converted into a private kindergarten—for youngsters of pre-school age. The Lindbergh children will attend, as well as the children of their friends . . . Anne's sister, who is a school teacher, may be induced to supervise the venture.

Eastern Studio Meeting Place Of Stage, Films

Although Hollywood today is the accepted seat of the film industry, the Astoria studios on Long Island in New York still provide a meeting place for Broadway and Hollywood actors.

They were built in 1918 and, before the screen found its voice, saw the productions of countless, notable silent films. Here many of the outstanding stars of today got their start after Broadway was raided by Hollywood.

One was Claudette Colbert, who made her screen debut in "Hole in the Wall." She is now under contract to Paramount, where she recently completed her role in "Midnight."

Others were Herbert Marshall and the late Jeanne Eagles, starred in "The Letter;" Helen Morgan, featured in Rouben Mamoulian's memorable "Applause," and Fredric March, opposite Ina Claire in "The Royal Family of Broadway."

The list also includes Miriam Hopkins, discovered by Ernst Lubitch. It was here, too, that Kay Francis was first seen on the screen. The picture was "Gentlemen of the Press."

Edward G. Robinson, Tallulah Bankhead, John and Lionel Barrymore, Walter Heuston and many others went from Broadway to the Astoria studios and the films.

Wallace Ford, currently portraying the leading male role in "Back Door to Heaven," written, directed and produced by William K. Howard, is another Broadway graduate.

Gayety

"RECORD BREAKERS REVUE." The Independent Burlesque Association presents the musical production in two acts and 24 scenes featuring Zorita, supported by Harry Evanson, Dorothy Darling, Conny Ryon, Jean Carter, Elaine Owens, Lillith Coern, Herbie Faye, Lou Farrell and Herbie Barris. Dance numbers devised by Dorothy Donahoe; staged by James J. Lake. Reviewed Sunday matinee by Art John.

This week marks the closing of Col. Lake's Gayety Theater and it is fitting that the final revue of the season should have Zorita as its star.

Zorita, whose novelty dancing and musical specialities have found real favor with local audiences, has an entirely new cycle of dames since her last appearance here. Incidentally, the current engagement finds this dynamic personality introducing her well-known snake number, in which a live reptile plays an important part.

The comedy portion of the bill is much better than usual. Herbie Faye and Harry Evanson present some of their funniest scenes and lines. There isn't one skit that doesn't prove to be a rib-tickler. In support, and doing a fine job of character acting is Herbie Barris. This lad while adept is the role of straight man, has proved that he can handle comedy equally well.

A trio of pretty damsels, including Jean Carter, Elaine Owens and Dottie Darling add much to the distaff end of the production. Miss Carter proves herself a capable "talking woman."

Completing an excellent farewell week presentation is Conny Ryon singing in his most effective manner; Lillith Coern executing some clever acrobatic numbers, and Lou Farrell, who offers some nifty tap steps.

Movie Director Is Also Auto Wrecker

Frank Miller, head electrician on the "Family Reunion" set, has a new automobile but he had to have his old machine smashed up by the director of the picture to get it.

Miller was driving along the other evening when his car was rammed from the side.

He climbed from the wrecked car and was met by the driver of the other machine. It was his boss, Michael Curtiz, who is directing "Family Reunion."

"Son of a gun!" exclaimed Mike. "When I have a accident who do I smash? My best friend for 14 years. You are not hurt? Good. Never mind, I buy you a better car."

And Mike kept his word.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., May 14.—The year of 1939 will be known as the biggest turnover in new girls this town has ever seen. Each company has under contract at least half a dozen young, fresh faces who aren't shunted in the background, but given leads.

HOPPER

Linda Darnell, who's playing in "Hotel for Women" was sent back to Texas a year ago because she was too young. She's still only 17 but is playing a lead.

Brenda Joyce is another. Imagine getting the part of Fern in "The Rains Came" for your first part. Then the luck to be under Clarence Brown's direction.

Look at Patricia Morison, Ruth Hussey, Alice Eden, Linda Ware, Judith Barrett. And thank heaven they're all young, fresh Americans, instead of European importations.

And don't tell me they haven't got seasoned players like Loretta Young, Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett and even Claudette Colbert plenty worried. Enormous salaries is the prime reason, but there are others too numerous to mention. Dictator trouble, such as difficulty in casting, wanting too much to say about the story, exploitation and publicity.

Yes, 1939 will be known as the American Youth Movement on the motion-picture screens of America!

If you have a voice, whistle or sing while you work. An M.-G.-M. producer while stopping at a drive-in for a cup of coffee, listened to a car hop waitress singing her song. She was promptly chosen as the voice you'll hear when Hedy LaMarr sings in "Lady of the Tropics."

Metro's planing three patriotic, anti-dictator yarns: "Mortal Storm," "I Had a Comrade" and "It Can't Happen Here," the script for which has been ready for a year. But I'll bet the one that does most good isn't even considered propaganda. It's "A Call on the President" by Damon Runyon, and Edgar Selwyn production. It tells how a citizen with a peeve has the privilege and goes straight to Washington for an audience with our President. In what other country do you suppose THAT could happen?

"Grapes of Wrath" has taken on all the high lights of a political campaign. Neither bankers nor California merchants want to reveal the conditions in our labor camps or start what may become a social revolution. But Zanuck, who comes from the Dust Bowl district himself, Wahoo, Nebr., says he's not afraid of dust getting in his eyes. And hopes it will blow where it will do the most good. Come hell or high water, he's going to make it. Atta boy!

Evidently "Some Like It Hot" was made to appease the jitterbug trade with Gene Krupa present for that purpose. The fans tear the house down every time he plays. So, what do they do? Cut him down to five minutes and waste Paramount's white hope. "Bob" sings, dances, acts better in this than all his previous pictures. So it's neither, fish, fowl nor hot.

Speaking of designers, did you know that Omar Kiam, who did those pretties for Sam Goldwyn for five years, has inherited over a million dollars from an uncle in Texas? And just after he'd started a blooming wholesale business in New York, too. The good news reached him in Paris, where he was on a buying spree. He danced a jig instead.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Maq 14.— Edna Best, whose screen career in Hollywood was brief but who is a sensational favorite on the London Stage and screen is on the New Amsterdam headed for New York and Hollywood. With less than two hours notice, Miss Best got herself ready in answer to a cable from David Selznick offering her one of the femme leads in "Intermezzo." The new Swedish charmer, Ingrid Lukn, has the other, with Leslie Howard as the man in the case. Miss Best will play his wife and La Bergman the other woman. Speaking of Garbo's competitor, everyone who has met her likes her very much. She is intelligent and seems definitely to have a future on the American screen.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Seems more than likely that Miss Best and Herbert Marshall will take their matrimonial troubles to court while she is in Hollywood. They have been separated for several years and he has been devoted to Lee Russel who is popular with all his friends.

I don't like to tell tales out of school but the real reason Warners are changing the title "The Knight and the Lady," to "Elizabeth and Essex" is a composite gesture to both Bette Davis and Errol Flynn. It seems there was considerable soothing to do since Bette thought "The Knight and the Lady" didn't get over the Elizabethan idea and Errol didn't like the idea of just plain "Queen Elizabeth." Also I understand there's been some discussion about the billing—whether it is to be Bette or Errol first. When the dust clears I imagine Flynn will be the gallant Irishman and give in to the lady. By the way, the title "Elizabeth and Essex" will have to be specially purchased since it belongs to another story not owned by Warners.

Interesting, isn't it, that Louis Bromfield arrives here Tuesday to take a writing job at Twentieth Century-Fox while his "The Rains Came" is in the midst of production? The job he will do for Darryl Zanuck has nothing to do with his book. On the contrary he never wanted to write the adaptation of his own novel. The thing that really intrigues him is the chance to write the biography of Bingham Young, founder of the Mormon Church. So, my friend Bromfield, who didn't care too much about movies when he left here five years ago, will write the treatment for the original story by Eleanor Harris and James Wooley.

The best break newcomers could get—and some of our big stars, too, for that matter—is the decision of Mme. Ouspenskaya to open her famous New York dramatic school in Hollywood. As you know, this vivacious 51-year-old woman who usually plays frail old ladies of 75 or 80 on the screen, has coached some of our best actors, including John Garfield. In the past Mme. has been flying between Hollywood and New York but now she's made up her mind to settle in Hollywood and the new school is scheduled to open September 15.

Hale, hearty and with the old twinkle in his eye, William Powell was on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot last week renewing old acquaintanceships. He will start work June 15 on "After the Thin Man," as soon as Myrna Loy finishes "The Rains Came." How sensible he was to refuse movie jobs until he felt well again. He will have a pretty steady grind once he gets going for "I Love You Again," Octavus Roy Cohen's magazine yarn is also slated for Bill and Myrna in 1939.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Nope it isn't true that Jean Parker and her nice husband, George MacDonald, have quarreled; Baby Sandy has the measles but promises to get well in time for Mischa Auer's picture; Loretta Young looking so pretty in a gray ensemble, dining tete-a-tete with Jimmy Stewart at the Cafe La Maze; Madeleine Carroll won't get that annual trip to Paree this year because of movie engagements; the supper dance given by Elsa Maxwell and Constance Bennett for the Duchess of Westminster brought out all Hollywood's best clothes. A gay party, it didn't actually get under way until nearly 12 and from then on everyone made merry. Who's Who in Hollywood was well represented with some new frocks that were the last gasp; Garbo in a small hat shop getting all the trade folks to their windows; Addison Randall celebrating his birthday, first with his mother and then by paying his ex, Louise Stanley, a visit in the hospital; Lola Lane, beaued by Chester Halchester, guest of honor at a farewell party given her by Grace Hayes.

The opening of the naughty "Folies Bergere" at Grauman's Chinese brought out many of the film folk, including the Henry Fondas, Eddie Mannix and Toni Lanier, Fanny Brice with her house guest, Bea Lillie; Bruce Cabot, the Sol Wurtzels and many more; Lupe Velez promises Chicago a beeg treat when she opens at the Chez Paree; wonder if Cesar Romero is as smitten with Ann Sheridan as he pretends? They were actually cooing at the Troc; nice to see the Hobart Bosworths at Levy's Tavern after his long illness; Benny Baker and his bride seem to be completely reconciled; they tell me Jean Rogers will be a new sensation in "Hotel for Women;" wonder if Sol Lesser will use Martha Scott in "Our Town?" She'd be good.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

* WASHINGTON: MONDAY, MAY 15, 1939 17

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

That ten-player trade between the Browns and the Detroit Tigers isn't exactly league-rocking, despite the number of players involved. Added up, it amounts to an unimportant swap of second-rate ball players with the Browns getting whatever edge there is in the deal.

POVICH

Buck Newsom was, of course, the excuse for the deal on the part of the Tigers. The Detroit club, hitting St. Louis over the week-end in last place, was panicky. It had to do something, so it swung the deal for Newsom, a deal that could not be swung finally until it took the form of six Tigers and four Browns.

The Tigers gave up six players, but we reiterate that they didn't give up much. And there is very much doubt that they received much when they gained Newsom. The most amazing thing about big Buck is not the fact that he won 20 games with the Browns last season, but that he seems to have a habit of pitching himself onto any club he wants to be with.

When he was serving his first term with the Browns and Clark Griffith was eyeing him, Newsom of course surpassed himself to impress Griffith. He did it by beating the Washington club consistently, and the purchase was made. When the Nats soured on him and Newsom new there was a chance to be traded to the wealthy Red Sox, he bore down against the Boston club. The result was that the Red Sox, impressed, acquired him in a six-player trade.

As usual, once under contract to a club, Newsom flopped with it, and the Red Sox traded him to St. Louis after a year and a half. Big Buck didn't want to pitch for the lowly Browns despite his successful season last year. He wanted to pitch for the Tigers who, with the Indians, were the only two clubs seemingly interested in him. So he bore down particularly against the Tigers, and it is significant that they swung the deal for him only a few hours after he licked 'em, 5-3.

Will He Help Tigers?

There is a question of how much worth Newsom will be to the Tigers. It's historic with him that he has flopped with every good club he has played with. He has earned some sort of a label. With a club like the Browns, which is going nowhere, Newsom is a whizz. But with a team that he could take places, in games in which the pressure is on and the chips are down, big Buck has never had any great success.

Winning 20 games with the Browns last year was something of a feat, but it is remembered also that Buck lost 16, too. It never mattered much whether the Browns won or lost, and Newsom was never under pressure.

In fact, Newsom may not be as successful with the Tigers as he was with the Browns, despite the fact that the Detroit club is supposed to be one of the powers in the American League. The Browns were a bad ball club only because they had dismal pitching. Their infield can give a pitcher better support than most infields in the league, and the Browns last year gave their pitchers plenty of runs to work with, more than the Tigers are apt to give Newsom.

With Newsom a questionable quantity, it seems to this department that the Browns licked the Tigers on the deal. True, they didn't get much when they received Vernon Kennedy and George Gill from the Tigers, and Mark Christman hasn't been able to hit big league pitching. But in Pitcher Roxie Lawson and Outfielder Chet Laabs the Browns may have come up with a potent pair.

Lawson, while with the Tigers, was overshadowed by Bridges and Rowe, but he has always been a consistent performer—a better pitcher than Kennedy. Kennedy, incidentally, like Newsom and Wes Ferrell, has been one of the lucky pitchers of the American League. Almost unfailingly when they were on the mound they were given plenty of runs to work with.

Nats Wanted Laabs

In Chet Laabs the Browns received an outfielder who was in some disrepute with the Tigers, but he was also being frantically sought from the Detroit club by Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris before the Detroit-St. Louis swap was made. The Nats' bosses like Laabs' speed and power, and believe that if given a regular job he will hit consistently.

The Tigers didn't come up with much other than Newsom as their share of the trade. Red Kress, at 32, is three years older than he was when the Nats' released him to the minors—an acceptable fielder, a fair hitter, but the kind of a slow-footed fellow who breaks a manager's heart by hitting into double plays.

Jim Walkup, the pitcher the Tigers received along with Newsom, can be dismissed with a few words. He wasn't good enough even for the Browns. The Tigers got Beau Bell, too. But apparently the league's pitchers learned something about that lumbering outfielder, who can't field very well and throws worse. Bell batted .340 in 1937. In 1938 he hit .262. Two years ago he could be described as a good outfielder—at bat. At this writing even the Browns don't want him.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Baltimore, May 14.—One of the country's outstanding students of racing, a man who has made a career of bearing witness to thoroughbreds in motion, fervently breathed into Clem McCarthy's microphone last Friday night that Johnstown was the greatest colt produced in America in the past ten years. That would make William Woodward's horse the superior of Gallant Fox, Twenty Grand, Mate, Equipoise, Cavalcade, Omaha, Seabiscuit and War Admiral, and Walt Disney's Horace.

CONSIDINE

Yesterday the same expert, a man of really tremendous perception and horse wisdom, and who fools hard, saw Johnstown run a miserable fifth in a field of six Preakness runners. If the race had been any longer than a mile and three-sixteenths he would have finished last.

How are you going to figure 'em, when the blokes who give a lifetime to the study turn out to be babes in the barn?

We're a race of easy enthusiasts. We—particularly the sports writers, who are only super fans at heart—are suckers for a winner. The years teach us little. We build an air of utter invincibility around most of our champions, and then we are stricken and shaken (and bankrupt) when they suffer their inevitable defeat. Perhaps the English have a better system. They cheer for the runner-up almost as much as the victor and experience a milder grief over the passing of champions as a result of that. We die with each champ, and probably always will, suffering his aches, experiencing his pain and frustration.

Challedon's Thumbnail Sketch

Let us be exhumed momentarily, however, to hail Challedon as one son-of-a-gun of a horse. Here's a thumbnail sketch of his career, which perhaps is just really dawning. Trainer Lou Schaefer, the jock who invented the posture used by many of the latter-day jockeys, didn't let him start until July of his 2-year-old life. That was at Delaware Park. He finished third to Birch Road and something called Bud's Bell in an overnight affair.

His next start was at Narragansett last September. He won the six-furlong gallop by four lengths. They sent him to Havre de Grace for the Eastern Shore Handicap after that, but he finished a gawdy twelfth. In October of last year, in Laurel's Maryland Futurity, he won by a nose from War Moon. Two weeks later he took the New England Futurity at Narragansett, winning by two lengths from Impound and Gilded Knight. He won in the mud, even as he did on Saturday.

At the end of his 2-year-old life he won his third futurity in a row. It was at Pimlico. He ran the mile and sixteenth in 1:45 4-5, beating Third Degree and Gilded Knight. Challedon was bred for distance running, which would be a good thing to bear in mind were he entered in the mile-and-a-half Belmont Stakes. His sire was Challenger II, son of Swynford, scion of a great distance strain famous both in England and America. His durable dam was Laurel Gal, by Sir Gallahad III.

Challedon Better—On Record

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons managed a smile after he led the beaten Johnstown back to the barn on Saturday. He said, in effect, "Wait'll we get Challedon on a dry track." And therein, perhaps, is concealed the reason why Johnstown—for all our lusty huzzahing of the past week—will never be a truly renowned colt. He needs the proper kind of underfooting to make him click. And nobody ever had to make excuses for the great horses. Nobody ever had to pick spots for the great nags.

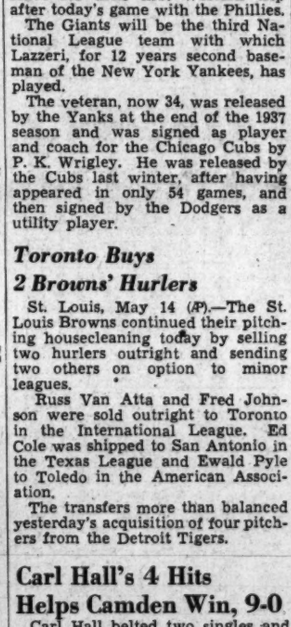
Off his record to date Challedon would appear to be the better colt. He was definitely better as a 2-year-old and in their two meetings as 3-year-olds he has turned in the better account, finishing second in the Derby and first in the Preakness, against Johnstown's first and fifth. Yet he was heartily ignored by press and public up to the moment of his unexpected coronation as Preakness champ. Yet he had the stuff all along.

Johnstown's defeat was not particularly mourned by the pompous paters of Belmont Park. It makes the $50,000 Belmont Stakes a more important race than it would have been if Johnstown had made a show of the field here Saturday, as he did at Churchill Downs. It will cut down on the scratches for the Belmont event, and serve as a "rubber" contest that may indisputably decide the 3-year-old championship.

But then—see?—there we go again . . . looking for a champion, fumbling feebly about in the dark for a winner, trying to fasten an aura of permanence to the most impermanent thing in the world—a thoroughbred's title claims. Probably some flea bag will come along and run both these wonder horses into the loam. But you can be sure that if this does happen, Robert will be there the next day with a tub-thumping eulogy to the new winner and recognize in him all the magnificent and enduring greatnesses.

Cards Rout Reds, 9-5, Hold Lead

Tony Lazzeri Accepts Job With Giants



TONY LAZZERI

Veteran Infielder Is Recovering From a Throat Ailment

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Tony Lazzeri, veteran infielder given his unconditional release yesterday by the Brooklyn Dodgers, today accepted terms to play third base for the New York Giants. He has not yet signed a contract.

Lazzeri, recovering from an attack of tonsilitis, plans to see his doctor either today or tomorrow, and then to join the Giants in St. Louis or Chicago. The Terrymen leave for their first Western trip after today's game with the Phillies.

The Giants will be the third National League team with which Lazzeri, for 12 years second baseman of the New York Yankees, has played.

The veteran, now 34, was released by the Yanks at the end of the 1937 season and was signed as player and coach for the Chicago Cubs by P. K. Wrigley. He was released by the Cubs last winter, after having appeared in only 54 games, and then signed by the Dodgers as a utility player.

Toronto Buys 2 Browns' Hurlers

St. Louis, May 14 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns continued their pitching housecleaning today by selling two hurlers outright and sending two others on option to minor leagues.

Russ Van Atta and Fred Johnson were sold outright to Toronto in the International League. Ed Cole was shipped to San Antonio in the Texas League and Ewald Pyle to Toledo in the American Association.

The transfers more than balanced yesterday's acquisition of four pitchers from the Detroit Tigers.

Carl Hall's 4 Hits Helps Camden Win, 9-0

Carl Hall belted two singles and as many doubles yesterday to lead Camden Tavern to a 9-0 shutout of Bonair, Va.'s, nine at Bonair. Francis Russell was the winning pitcher.

Three Runs For St. Louis Unearned

Warneke Chased in 9th, but Credited With Triumph; Werber's Miscues Aid St. Louis

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, May 14.—The St. Louis Cardinal hitting attack battered five Reds pitchers here today as the National League leaders beat Cincinnati, 9 to 5.

Lon Warneke shut out the Reds for the first four innings but was under the showers when given credit for the victory. The Reds chased him with a ninth-inning two-run rally.

The Cards scored three unearned runs on miscues by Third Baseman Bill Werber and Shortstop Billy Myers.

Pepper Martin scored the first tally in the opening inning when he reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and ran home on Werber's two muff of a pop fly.

The second unearned tally came in the fifth as Don Gutteridge came home on Myers' bobble of a grounder. Frank McCormick singled in the fifth for the Reds' first safety and scored on a single by Myers.

Ray Davis replaced Whitey Moore, who was charged with the loss, in the sixth and pitched to three batters. J. Martin and Ducky Medwick singled and Johnny Mize doubled to start the Card rally that netted three runs. Paul Derringer, knocked off the mound by the Cards Friday, came to the hill and allowed two tallies on a sacrifice fly and Micky Owen's infield single.

Another three-run rally came in the seventh on a double, a batter hit by a pitched ball, single, an error, a walk and a forceout.

Ernie Lombardi hit his third homer of the season in the seventh.

Pete Naktenis came to the mound in the eighth and hit the first two Cards up with pitched balls.

Werber's single and Ival Goodman's triple netted a tally for the Reds in the eighth and they added two more in the ninth when Harry Craft homered with a mate aboard. Curt Davis came to the relief of Warneke at this stage and retired the next three Redlegs.

The defeat dropped the Reds to third place.

Feller's Mother Hurt As He Beats Chisox

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Pitching steadily although his mother was hit by a batted ball, Bob Feller, young Cleveland mound star, held the Chicago White Sox to six hits today while Ben Chapman's booming bat helped him to a 9-to-4 victory. Chapman pounded out two homers and a triple in his first three times at bat to drive in seven runs.

The victory, giving the Indians the series, two games to one, was Feller's sixth against one defeat. He fanned six and walked seven. Three of the hits off him came in the third inning, when Marv Owen, Chicago third baseman, fouled off one of his pitches and the ball lashed back into the boxes along side the first base line and struck his mother, Mrs. William Feller, in the face.

Chapman's one-man slugfest started with a first inning triple off Lefty Lee that scored Rolly Hemsley and Julius Solters. Hemsley having forced Roy Weatherly's opening single and Solters having hit for one base. Next time up, in

Feller's Pitch, Fouled, Strikes Mother Over Eye

By the United Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Mrs. William Feller, mother of Bob Feller, schoolboy pitching ace of the Cleveland Indians, was struck over the right eye by a line-drive foul today as she watched her son pitching against the Chicago White Sox.

Mrs. Feller, who came here with a delegation of Iowa fans to honor the young pitcher in "Feller Day" ceremonies, was sped to a hospital to determine if she had suffered a fracture.

Mrs. Feller was injured when Marv Owen, Chicago third-baseman, fouled one of her son's fast ones into the unscreened portion of the stands near home plate.

With the assistance of Lefty Weisman, Cleveland trainer, Mrs. Feller was able to walk to an automobile and was taken to a hospital. Preliminary examination showed she suffered a long gash extending from above the right eye, down to the bridge of her nose and curving under the eye.

Terp Netmen Win Doubles

Williamsburg, Va., May 14 (AP).—The University of Maryland team of Al Ritzenberg and Nathan Askin won the Southern Conference doubles tennis championship today, ending a four-year North Carolina reign in this event.

The Maryland combination turned back the Tar Heels' favored Carl Rood and Walt Meserole in straight sets, 7—5, 7—5, 6—4, in a finals match postponed from yesterday because of rain.

The victory qualifies Ritzenberg and Askin automatically for the national collegiate tournament in the doubles.

Two North Carolina players, Bill Rawlings and Bill Rood, will meet for the conference singles' title at Chapel Hill, N. C., early this week. Rain prevented playing of the match yesterday.

Big Redhead Allows 4 Hits; Caster Blows Up in Sixth

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 14.—Big Red Ruffing, apparently headed for one of his best years in the American League, shut out the Philadelphia Athletics with four hits today as his New York Yankee teammates pounded out a 10-to-0 triumph before 15,509 at Shibe Park.

Ruffing allowed only five men to reach base, one on a base on balls, and was never in danger. Only two of the five reached second base. The big righthander still to meet defeat this year, struck out five to beat the Athletics for the second time this season.

George Caster kept pace with Ruffing for 5 1-3 innings, but the A's knuckleballer blew up in the sixth after Frank Crosetti singled and was waved to second on Caster's balk.

After that Red Rolfe doubled, Tom Henrich, and Bill Dickey singled in succession to score two runs. When Charley Keller walked to fill the bases Leroy Parmalee replaced Caster and was greeted by George Selkirk's single that drove in two more runs. Keller scored as Joe Gordon grounded out, then Selkirk romped in with the sixth tally of the big inning when Bill Nagel dropped Babe

Alexandra Hurls Well; Mates Fail To Hit in Pinches

Burden of Battling Both Teammates And Opposition Too Much for Venezuelan; Lewis' Error Wrecks Alex

By Shirley Povich.

Because the Nats could score only two runs for him in 11 innings, because they fielded behind him like traitors and because, finally, the strain was too great, Alex Alexandra yielded a 5-4 victory to the Boston club yesterday.

He lost the ball game but he pitched himself solidly into the esteem of 12,000 Washington fans, did this Venezuelan citizen who, in his first big league start, gave gallant battle to no less than Lefty Grove for 11 innings. And then, in the twelfth, the burden of battling both the Red Sox and his teammates was too much. He surrendered three more runs to the Sox.

Encouraged by a cheap single that was the gift of Buddy Lewis, who misplayed a tricky grounder in the twelfth, the Red Sox fell upon Alexandra for three more hits in the inning, broke a 2-2 tie and assumed a 5-2 lead.

In their own half of the twelfth, the Nats had a reply for that Red Sox uprising, but it wasn't sufficient. They did bat Grove out of the box, and they did force Manager Joe Cronin to call on two relief pitchers, but they could come up with only two runs.

With one out, Pinch Hitter Charley Gelbert, batting for Alexandria, drew a walk from Grove and then the 12,000 renewed interest in the proceedings when George Case dropped a luc-anoited single into short centerfield. Buddy Lewis, as if to atone for his fielding, slapped a single into rightfield to score Gelbert and send Case to third and reach base with the tying run. Whereupon, Cronin called for a relief pitcher.

He called on Jack Wilson and Wilson succeeded to the extent of pitching a leftfield fly to Cecil Travis, which scored Case with the second run of the inning, but when he walked Taft Wright to move the tying run to second, Wilson was of no further use in the eyes of Cronin. The Red Sox manager called in Joe Heving.

Buddy Myer wa sthe next Washington batter and the last one. He left the tying run on base with a grounder to Bobby Doerr.

For Alexandria it was a brutal defeat. Barring a misplay by Cecil Travis in the seventh inning, victory would have been the Venezuelan's in the regulation nine innings. Over that distance he allowed the Red Sox only seven hits and one earned run.

He shut out the Sox for six innings with his deceptive side-arm curve and occasional fast ball, steadying after a shaky start in the first inning when he walked two batters. Until the seventh he pitched three-hit ball and one of those hits was a questionable affair.

Alex was nursing a 2-0 lead as he entered the seventh, but with one out he walked DeSautels and committed a balk that moved him to second. With two out, Roger Cramer doubled to center to score DeSautels. Then Alex was betrayed by Travis. On a ground ball that should have been the third out, Travis made a miserable muff and Vosmik was safe. Thereupon Jimmy Foxx singled into leftfield to tie the score at 2-2.

From that point until the twelfth it was a courageous exhibition by the Venezulean who, in his first big league start, heard the cheers of Washington fandom ringing incessantly in his ears. In the eighth after Tabor singled off Travis' glove

Feller Visits Mother After Near-Tragedy

Subscription Drive Is On for Next Season

Advantages and Perils of Guild-Society Plan; Warners Announce Many Managerial Changes News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

A BULLETIN from the indefatigable Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, Washington sales manager for the joint organizations—or are they one and the same?—advises that more than 2,000 patrons already have signed on the dotted line for the 1939-40 subscription season of the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington, at the National Theater.

BELL

Only one week remains in which last year's subscribers may renew their seat locations for next season. After Monday, May 22, all prior options will expire and the reservations involved will be thrown on the open market. All pertinent information relating to this important business may be obtained from Miss Schreiner, in the National Theater, between the hours of 12:15 and 5:30 p. m. daily.

It is, of course, too early to announce with any definiteness what six plays will comprise the bills of the Theater Guild-American Theater Society's next season. As has been intimated here before, it is probable that the Lunts will be coming along early next season in the week of repertoire which illness prevented Mr. Lunt from presenting here this spring, as he had planned. As for the rest, it reposes in the laps of the gods, as the saying goes. It may be taken for granted, however, that next season's subscription plays will represent a judicious selection from among the most vital and most stimulating productions the new season has to offer.

This column is not so much concerned about the plays that will be brought here on the subscription plan as it is about the growing number of Guild-American Society subscribers who crowd the books in increasing numbers.

There is a point in the development of a subscription list beyond which further expansion becomes a liability rather than an asset. This is something, to be sure, about which Manager Edmund Plohn, of the National, should worry instead of me. But the fact remains that too many subscribers can create a distinctly unfavorable reaction in the general public mind, when it discovers that no tickets are available for the given attraction for reasons which are inexplicable to the layman.

Then, too, there is the matter of gross revenue. The subscription tickets are sold at reduced rates and frequently are for the most popular attractions of the year. With the house virtually "sold out" to subscribers and the general public being turned away, with folding money in its hands, there is a very appreciable loss at the box office.

But why am I worrying about these things?

For the third year, the Earle Theater will present an ice carnival as a stage attraction this summer. Production Manager Harry Anger makes it known that he already has completed plans for the skating festival which will be the stage feature at the Earle the week of July 7. Even now, he is busily engaged lining up talent for the frozen frolic and expects to include among his principals some of the most notable figures in the skating world.

Managerial changes that may present new faces in your favorite neighborhood theater have just been announced by Zone Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner Brothers interests in this territory. The shifts are prompted by the prospective opening next month of the new Kennedy Theater, latest addition to the Warner residential circuit.

When the Kennedy opens, Claude Land will fill the managerial post. It will be a promotion from the managership of the Colony. Henry Coon, meanwhile, has been designated acting manager of the Penn Theater, during the illness of Manager Dan Reynolds.

Other changes include: Transfer of James Glennon from the Seco to the Apollo, Sidney Hoffman from the Apollo to the Colony, Theodore Lohmeyer from the York to the Avalon, Fred MacMillan from the Avalon to the Silver, Nelson Smith from the Home to the Avenue Grand, and Lamar Keen from the Silver, in Silver Spring, to the Capitol, in Winchester, Va.

Three assistant managers in Washington have been promoted to managers, including Ernest Wells, from the Earle to the Home; Raymond Burch, from the Tivoli to the Seco, and Earl Heatwole, from the Metropolitan to the York.

So now you know, even if you won't know them for a day or two.

Today at 1 p. m., in the Willard Hotel, the Variety Club of Washington will give its annual "Mother's Day Luncheon," one of the most heart-warming events of its year. Every member of the club is exhorted to escort as many ladies as he feels he can entertain with justice to himself and them. John J. Payette, of the Warner Brothers, and Carter Barron, of Loew's, are co-kings for the day.

Speaking of neighborhood playhouses, as we were somewhere back there, ground was broken last week for the Hyattsville Theater, to be located in Hyattsville, naturally, as a new addition to the Sidney B. Lust chain of houses. The site of the new development is on the Baltimore boulevard at the Riverdale line.

The Hyattsville will have a seating capacity of 1,000 and will conform to all the requirements levied by the public upon amusement places of the most modern type. John Eberson, famous New York theater architect, designed the house, which is being constructed by Max Wertheimer, builder, for the Globe Amusement Co. The contract for this project, by the way, was the last signed by the late Joseph Makover, former president of the Globe Ausement Co. and one of the most prominent and most beloved of Washington showmen. The Hyattsville will stand as something in the nature of a monument to his memory.

And another thing, E. M. Loew, having met with fine success with his Mount Vernon open-air automobile theater, down on the Richmond highway below Alexandria, is stepping out a bit in this territory. Last night he opened the new Governor Ritchie Theater, of the same type, on the Governor Ritchie highway, 3 miles south of the Baltimore line in Glen Burnie, Md.

So along comes another of those periodic postage cards from Romaine Callender, former popular member of the National Theater Players. Mr. Callender mailed his remembrance from Honolulu, with the notation that he is on his way to Australia to play in "Leaning on Letty," with Charlotte Greenwood. The Australians are in for a lot of laughs. Especially if Miss Greenwood continues to append her brief song recital to the end of the play. You will recall that this item was presented here many months ago. It didn't do nearly so well as it deserved to do. Better luck in the Antipodes.

Belated-Admonition Note

Hope you didn't forget what day yesterday was.

FASHIONS DEPT.: When President and Mrs. Roosevelt tender their official White House reception to the King and Queen, their son, Elliott, will not wear any formal clothes. Nor will he wear black tie and dinner jacket . . . "This is a democracy," said the gray-suited Elliott Wednesday night, "and I'm coming dressed as I am now. I'm not buying any suit—just for that one reception."

CRIME DEPT.: Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean wearing her Hope Diamond and accompanied by her daughter, visited Fefe's Monte Carlo with two detective bodyguards . . . The guards were seated at another table, ready for action . . . "The papers have had conflicting stories about your duties," the detectives were asked. "Were you assigned to guarding the Hope Diamond or Mrs. McLean's daughter?" . . . "We're doing both," they informed . . . "But suppose," they were asked, "one mob tried to get the diamond while another mob kidnaped the girl—which one would you protect first?" . . . "First, of course," the detectives assured, "we'd go for the diamond."

SCHOOL DEPT.: At the New York Athletic Club these mornings Johnny Weismuller is giving swimming instructions to Peter Fick, America's most promising swimmer . . . Fick has broken almost every record—except Weismuller's 51 seconds for the 100 yards . . . Weismuller is teaching him how to do it.

DRAMA DEPT.: George White, preparing his new Scandals, reminisced of his early revues, during which Caleb Bragg, who is associated with Vincent Bendix, sent his secretary to White with a letter of introduction . . . White decided he was too busy to see her . . . A few years later George needed a girl to sing one of his new "Scandals" songs and paid $5,000 to Aarons & Freedley for the release of Ethel Merman, to whom he then paid $1,500 a week . . . The song was 'Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries" . . . After the deal was consummated Miss Merman said: "Here's a letter I tried to deliver to you a few years ago. I was Caleb Bragg's secretary" . . . That letter suggested White's hiring Ethel Merman, for the sum she had wanted—$50 a week.

ART DEPT.: Louis Slobodkin, whose prize-winning statue of Abe Lincoln disappeared from its exhibition spot at the World's Fair, has brought suit against Commissioner Ed Flynn demanding damages as well as the right to build and exhibit another statue . . . Mr. Flynn will be examined before trial and asked to explain what has become of the Lincoln statue or its pieces. Flynn also will be asked to identify the girl whose dislike for the statue resulted in its removal.

LOCAL NEWS: Stuart Chase, the economist, will testify before the Senate next week, in connection with the Ludlow amendment . . . Cap Pearce, who quit Harcourt-Brace, is organizing his own publishing firm . . . Charles MacArthur will write a foreword for the biography of his wife, Helen Hayes . . . Luise Rainer will bring her British play to Broadway in August. Her husband, Clifford Odets, will return from Mexico next month . . . If Dist. Atty. Geoghan resigns, as expected, his term may be completed by Secretary of State Walsh, as a build-up for the fall campaign . . . Atty. Gen. Frank Murphy will speak here next week, on Civil Liberties.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, ETC.: Mrs. Eddie Cantor was asked about her son-in-law and daughter, who are about to become parents . . . "I think it's wonderful," said Ida, "and Eddie says he won't mind being a grandfather. But he says he will mind spending his nights with a grandmother."

Finance Dept.: Ezra Stone, the star of "What a Life," arranged for Paramount News reel to publicize the show, by screening one performance . . . The Stagehands Union informed that this would cost the show $105 extra . . . Stone then assembled the cast who work on a co-operative basis, took them onstage, and had the ushers, attendants, electricians, etc., all stand in line . . . "We've been losing money," Stone told the group, "and since this is our co-operative show, what'll we do?" . . . A hat was passed, and the actors, ushers, attendants, electricians, etc., contributed the money.

EDUCATION DEPT.: Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh already have settled the education problem for their children . . . The Dwight Morrow estate in Englewood, N. J., will be converted into a private kindergarten—for youngsters of pre-school age. The Lindbergh children will attend, as well as the children of their friends . . . Anne's sister, who is a school teacher, may be induced to supervise the venture.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Maq 14.— Edna Best, whose screen career in Hollywood was brief but who is a sensational favorite on the London Stage and screen is on the New Amsterdam headed for New York and Hollywood. With less than two hours notice, Miss Best got herself ready in answer to a cable from David Selznick offering her one of the femme leads in "Intermezzo." The new Swedish charmer, Ingrid Lukn, has the other, with Leslie Howard as the man in the case. Miss Best will play his wife and La Bergman the other woman. Speaking of Garbo's competitor, everyone who has met her likes her very much. She is intelligent and seems definitely to have a future on the American screen.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Seems more than likely that Miss Best and Herbert Marshall will take their matrimonial troubles to court while she is in Hollywood. They have been separated for several years and he has been devoted to Lee Russel who is popular with all his friends.

I don't like to tell tales out of school but the real reason Warners are changing the title "The Knight and the Lady," to "Elizabeth and Essex" is a composite gesture to both Bette Davis and Errol Flynn. It seems there was considerable soothing to do since Bette thought "The Knight and the Lady" didn't get over the Elizabethan idea and Errol didn't like the idea of just plain "Queen Elizabeth." Also I understand there's been some discussion about the billing—whether it is to be Bette or Errol first. When the dust clears I imagine Flynn will be the gallant Irishman and give in to the lady. By the way, the title "Elizabeth and Essex" will have to be specially purchased since it belongs to another story not owned by Warners.

Interesting, isn't it, that Louis Bromfield arrives here Tuesday to take a writing job at Twentieth Century-Fox while his "The Rains Came" is in the midst of production? The job he will do for Darryl Zanuck has nothing to do with his book. On the contrary he never wanted to write the adaptation of his own novel. The thing that really intrigues him is the chance to write the biography of Bingham Young, founder of the Mormon Church. So, my friend Bromfield, who didn't care too much about movies when he left here five years ago, will write the treatment for the original story by Eleanor Harris and James Wooley.

The best break newcomers could get—and some of our big stars, too, for that matter—is the decision of Mme. Ouspenskaya to open her famous New York dramatic school in Hollywood. As you know, this vivacious 51-year-old woman who usually plays frail old ladies of 75 or 80 on the screen, has coached some of our best actors, including John Garfield. In the past Mme. has been flying between Hollywood and New York but now she's made up her mind to settle in Hollywood and the new school is scheduled to open September 15.

Hale, hearty and with the old twinkle in his eye, William Powell was on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot last week renewing old acquaintanceships. He will start work June 15 on "After the Thin Man," as soon as Myrna Loy finishes "The Rains Came." How sensible he was to refuse movie jobs until he felt well again. He will have a pretty steady grind once he gets going for "I Love You Again," Octavus Roy Cohen's magazine yarn is also slated for Bill and Myrna in 1939.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Hope it isn't true that Jean Parker and her nice husband, George MacDonald, have quarreled; Baby Sandy has the measles but promises to get well in time for Mischa Auer's picture; Loretta Young looking so pretty in a gray ensemble, dining tete-a-tete with Jimmy Stewart at the Cafe La Maze; Madeleine Carroll won't get that annual trip to Paree this year because of movie engagements; the supper dance given by Elsa Maxwell and Constance Bennett for the Duchess of Westminster brought out all Hollywood's best clothes. A gay party, it didn't actually get under way until nearly 12 and from then on everyone made merry. Who's Who in Hollywood was well represented with some new frocks that were the last gasp; Garbo in a small hat shop getting all the trade folks to their windows; Addison Randall celebrating his birthday, first with his mother and then by paying his ex, Louise Stanley, a visit in the hospital; Lola Lane, beaued by Chester Halchester, guest of honor at a farewell party given her by Grace Hayes.

The opening of the naughty "Folies Bergere" at Grauman's Chinese brought out many of the film folk, including the Henry Fondas, Eddie Mannix and Toni Lanier, Fanny Brice with her house guest, Bea Lillie; Bruce Cabot, the Sol Wurtzels and many more; Lupe Velez promises Chicago a beef treat when she opens at the Chez Paree; wonder if Cesar Romero is as smitten with Ann Sheridan as he pretends? They were actually cooing at the Troc; nice to see the Hobart Bosworths at Levy's Tavern after his long illness; Benny Baker and his bride seem to be completely reconciled; they tell me Jean Rogers will be a new sensation in "Hotel for Women;" wonder if Sol Lesser will use Martha Scott in "Our Town?" She'd be good.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Eastern Studio Meeting Place Of Stage, Films

Although Hollywood today is the accepted seat of the film industry, the Astoria studios on Long Island in New York still provide a meeting place for Broadway and Hollywood actors.

They were built in 1918 and, before the screen found its voice, saw the productions of countless, notable silent films. Here many of the outstanding stars of today got their start after Broadway was raided by Hollywood.

One was Claudette Colbert, who made her screen debut in "Hole in the Wall." She is now under contract to Paramount, where she recently completed her role in "Midnight."

Others were Herbert Marshall and the late Jeanne Eagles, starred in "The Letter;" Helen Morgan, featured in Rouben Mamoulian's memorable "Applause," and Fredric March, opposite Ina Claire in "The Royal Family of Broadway."

The list also includes Miriam Hopkins, discovered by Ernst Lubitch. It was here, too, that Kay Francis was first seen on the screen. The picture was "Gentlemen of the Press."

Edward G. Robinson, Tallulah Bankhead, John and Lionel Barrymore, Walter Heuston and many others went from Broadway to the Astoria studios and the films.

Wallace Ford, currently portraying the leading male role in "Back Door to Heaven," written, directed and produced by William K. Howard, is another Broadway graduate.

Gayety

"RECORD BREAKERS REVUE." The Independent Burlesque Association presents the musical production in two acts and 14 scenes featuring Zorita, supported by Harry Evanson, Dorothy Darling, Conny Ryon, Jean Carter, Elaine Owens, Lillith Coern, Herbie Faye, Lou Farrell and Herbie Barris. Dance numbers devised by Dorothy Donahoe; staged by James J. Lake. Reviewed Sunday matinee by Art John.

This week marks the closing of Col. Lake's Gayety Theater and it is fitting that the final revue of the season should have Zorita as its star.

Zorita, whose novelty dancing and musical specialities have found real favor with local audiences, has an entirely new cycle of dames since her last appearance here. Incidentally, the current engagement finds this dynamic personality introducing her well-known snake number, in which a live reptile plays an important part.

The comedy portion of the bill is much better than usual. Herbie Faye and Harry Evanson present some of their funniest scenes and lines. There isn't one skit that doesn't prove to be a rib-tickler. In support, and doing a fine job of character acting is Herbie Barris. This lad while adept is the role of straight man, has proved that he can handle comedy equally well.

A trio of pretty damsels, including Jean Carter, Elaine Owens and Dottie Darling add much to the distaff end of the production. Miss Carter proves herself a capable "talking woman."

Completing an excellent farewell week presentation is Conny Ryon singing in his most effective manner; Lillith Coern executing some clever acrobatic numbers, and Lou Farrell, who offers some nifty tap steps.

Movie Director Is Also Auto Wrecker

Frank Miller, head electrician on the "Family Reunion" set, has a new automobile but he had to have his old machine smashed up by the director of the picture to get it.

Miller was driving along the other evening when his car was rammed from the side.

He climbed from the wrecked car and was met by the driver of the other machine. It was his boss, Michael Curtiz, who is directing "Family Reunion."

"Son of a gun!" exclaimed Mike. "When I have a accident who do I smash? My best friend for 14 years. You are not hurt? Good. Never mind, I buy you a better car."

And Mike kept his word.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., May 14.—The year of 1939 will be known as the biggest turnover in new girls this town has ever seen. Each company has under contract at least half a dozen young, fresh faces who aren't shunted in the background, but given leads.

HOPPER

Linda Darnell, who's playing in "Hotel for Women" was sent back to Texas a year ago because she was too young. She's still only 17 but is playing a lead.

Brenda Joyce is another. Imagine getting the part of Fern in "The Rains Came" for your first part. Then the luck to be under Clarence Brown's direction.

Look at Patricia Morison, Ruth Hussey, Alice Eden, Linda Ware, Judith Barrett. And thank heaven they're all young, fresh Americans, instead of European importations.

And don't tell me they haven't got seasoned players like Loretta Young, Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett and even Claudette Colbert plenty worried. Enormous salaries is the prime reason, but there are others too numerous to mention. Dictator trouble, such as difficulty in casting, wanting too much to say about the story, exploitation and publicity.

Yes, 1939 will be known as the American Youth Movement on the motion-picture screens of America!

If you have a voice, whistle or sing while you work. An M.-G.-M. producer while stopping at a drive-in for a cup of coffee, listened to a car hop waitress singing her song. She was promptly chosen as the voice you'll hear when Hedy LaMarr sings in "Lady of the Tropics."

Metro's planing three patriotic, anti-dictator yarns: "Mortal Storm," "I Had a Comrade" and "It Can't Happen Here," the script for which has been ready for a year. But I'll bet the one that does most good isn't even considered propaganda. It's "A Call on the President" by Damon Runyon, and Edgar Selwyn production. It tells how a citizen with a peeve has the privilege and goes straight to Washington for an audience with our President. In what other country do you suppose THAT could happen?

"Grapes of Wrath" has taken on all the high lights of a political campaign. Neither bankers nor California merchants want to reveal the conditions in our labor camps or start what may become a social revolution. But Zanuck, who comes from the Dust Bowl district himself, Wahoo, Nebr., says he's not afraid of dust getting in his eyes. And hopes it will blow where it will do the most good. Come hell or high water, he's going to make it. Atta boy!

Evidently "Some Like it Hot" was made to appease the jitterbug trade with Gene Krupa present for that purpose. The fans tear the house down every time he plays. So, what do they do? Cut him down to five minutes and waste Paramount's white hope. "Bob" sings, dances, acts better in this than all his previous pictures. So it's neither, fish, fowl nor hot.

Speaking of designers, did you know that Omar Kiam, who did those pretties for Sam Goldwyn for five years, has inherited over a million dollars from an uncle in Texas? And just after he'd started a blooming wholesale business in New York, too. The good news reached him in Paris, where he was on a buying spree. He danced a jig instead.

* WASHINGTON: MONDAY, MAY 15, 1939 17

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

That ten-player trade between the Browns and the Detroit Tigers isn't exactly league-rocking, despite the number of players involved. Added up, it amounts to an unimportant swap of second-rate ball players with the Browns getting whatever edge there is in the deal.

POVICH

Buck Newsom was, of course, the excuse for the deal on the part of the Tigers. The Detroit club, hitting St. Louis over the week-end in last place, was panicky. It had to do something, so it swung the deal for Newsom, a deal that could not be swung finally until it took the form of six Tigers and four Browns.

The Tigers gave up six players, but we reiterate that they didn't give up much. And there is very much doubt that they received much when they gained Newsom. The most amazing thing about big Buck is not the fact that he won 20 games with the Browns last season, but that he seems to have a habit of pitching himself onto any club he wants to be with.

When he was serving his first term with the Browns and Clark Griffith was eyeing him, Newsom of course surpassed himself to impress Griffith. He did it by beating the Washington club consistently, and the purchase was made. When the Nats soured on him and Newsom new there was a chance to be traded to the wealthy Red Sox, he bore down against the Boston club. The result was that the Red Sox, impressed, acquired him in a six-player trade.

As usual, once under contract to a club, Newsom flopped with it, and the Red Sox traded him to St. Louis after a year and a half. Big Buck didn't want to pitch for the lowly Browns despite his successful season last year. He wanted to pitch for the Tigers who, with the Indians, were the only two clubs seemingly interested in him. So he bore down particularly against the Tigers, and it is significant that they swung the deal for him only a few hours after he licked 'em, 5-3.

Will He Help Tigers?

There is a question of how much worth Newsom will be to the Tigers. It's historic with him that he has flopped with every good club he has played with. He has earned some sort of a label. With a club like the Browns, which is going nowhere, Newsom is a whizz. But with a team that he could take places, in games in which the pressure is on and the chips are down, big Buck has never had any great success.

Winning 20 games with the Browns last year was something of a feat, but it is remembered also that Buck lost 16, too. It never mattered much whether the Browns won or lost, and Newsom was never under pressure.

In fact, Newsom may not be as successful with the Tigers as he was with the Browns, despite the fact that the Detroit club is supposed to be one of the powers in the American League. The Browns were a bad ball club only because they had dismal pitching. Their infield can give a pitcher better support than most infields in the league, and the Browns last year gave their pitchers plenty of runs to work with, more than the Tigers are apt to give Newsom.

With Newsom a questionable quantity, it seems to this department that the Browns licked the Tigers on the deal. True, they didn't get much when they received Vernon Kennedy and George Gill from the Tigers, and Mark Christman hasn't been able to hit big league pitching. But in Pitcher Roxie Lawson and Outfielder Chet Laabs the Browns may have come up with a potent pair.

Lawson, while with the Tigers, was overshadowed by Bridges and Rowe, but he has always been a consistent performer—a better pitcher than Kennedy. Kennedy, incidentally, like Newsom and Wes Ferrell, has been one of the lucky pitchers of the American League. Almost unfailingly when they were on the mound they were given plenty of runs to work with.

Nats Wanted Laabs

In Chet Laabs the Browns received an outfielder who was in some disrepute with the Tigers, but he was also being frantically sought from the Detroit club by Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris before the Detroit-St. Louis swap was made. The Nats' bosses like Laabs' speed and power, and believe that if given a regular job he will hit consistently.

The Tigers didn't come up with much other than Newsom as their share of the trade. Red Kress, at 32, is three years older than he was when the Nats' released him to the minors—an acceptable fielder, a fair hitter, but the kind of a slow-footed fellow who breaks a manager's heart by hitting into double plays.

Jim Walkup, the pitcher the Tigers received along with Newsom, can be dismissed with a few words. He wasn't good enough even for the Browns. The Tigers got Beau Bell, too. But apparently the league's pitchers learned something about that lumbering outfielder, who can't field very well and throws worse. Bell batted .340 in 1937. In 1938 he hit .262. Two years ago he could be described as a good outfielder—at bat. At this writing even the Browns don't want him.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Baltimore, May 14.—One of the country's outstanding students of racing, a man who has made a career of bearing witness to thoroughbreds in motion, fervently breathed into Clem McCarthy's microphone last Friday night that Johnstown was the greatest colt produced in America in the past ten years. That would make William Woodward's horse the superior of Gallant Fox, Twenty Grand, Mate, Equipoise, Cavalcade, Omaha, Seabiscuit and War Admiral, and Walt Disney's Horace.

CONSIDINE

Yesterday the same expert, a man of really tremendous perception and horse wisdom, and who fools hard, saw Johnstown run a miserable fifth in a field of six Preakness runners. If the race had been any longer than a mile and three-sixteenths he would have finished last.

How are you going to figure 'em, when the blokes who give a lifetime to the study turn out to be babes in the barn?

We're a race of easy enthusiasts. We—particularly the sports writers, who are only super fans at heart—are suckers for a winner. The years teach us little. We build an air of utter invincibility around most of our champions, and then we are stricken and shaken (and bankrupt) when they suffer their inevitable defeat. Perhaps the English have a better system. They cheer for the runner-up almost as much as the victor and experience a milder grief over the passing of champions as a result of that. We die with each champ, and probably always will, suffering his aches, experiencing his pain and frustration.

Challedon's Thumbnail Sketch

Let us be exhumed momentarily, however, to hail Challedon as one son-of-a-gun of a horse. Here's a thumbnail sketch of his career, which perhaps is just really dawning. Trainer Lou Schaefer, the jock who invented the posture used by many of the latter-day jockeys, didn't let him start until July of his 2-year-old life. That was at Delaware Park. He finished third to Birch Road and something called Bud's Bell in an overnight affair.

His next start was at Narragansett last September. He won the six-furlong gallop by four lengths. They sent him to Havre de Grace for the Eastern Shore Handicap after that, but he finished a gawdy twelfth. In October of last year, in Laurel's Maryland Futurity, he won by a nose from War Moon. Two weeks later he took the New England Futurity at Narragansett, winning by two lengths from Impound and Gilded Knight. He won in the mud, even as he did on Saturday.

At the end of his 2-year-old life he won his third futurity in a row. It was at Pimlico. He ran the mile and sixteenth in 1:45 4-5, beating Third Degree and Gilded Knight. Challedon was bred for distance running, which would be a good thing to bear in mind were he entered in the mile-and-a-half Belmont Stakes. His sire was Challenger II, son of Swynford, scion of a great distance strain famous both in England and America. His durable dam was Laurel Gal, by Sir Gallahad III.

Challedon Better—On Record

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons managed a smile after he led the beaten Johnstown back to the barn on Saturday. He said, in effect, "Wait'll we get Challedon on a dry track." And therein, perhaps, is concealed the reason why Johnstown—for all our lusty huzzahing of the past week—will never be a truly renowned colt. He needs the proper kind of underfooting to make him click. And nobody ever had to make excuses for the great horses. Nobody ever had to pick spots for the great nags.

Off his record to date Challedon would appear to be the better colt. He was definitely better as a 2-year-old and in their two meetings as 3-year-olds he has turned in the better account, finishing second in the Derby and first in the Preakness, against Johnstown's first and fifth. Yet he was heartily ignored by press and public up to the moment of his unexpected coronation as Preakness champ. Yet he had the stuff all along.

Johnstown's defeat was not particularly mourned by the pompous paters of Belmont Park. It makes the $50,000 Belmont Stakes a more important race than it would have been if Johnstown had made a show of the field here Saturday, as he did at Churchill Downs. It will cut down on the scratches for the Belmont event, and serve as a "rubber" contest that may indisputably decide the 3-year-old championship.

But then—see?—there we go again . . . looking for a champion, fumbling feebly about in the dark for a winner, trying to fasten an aura of permanence to the most impermanent thing in the world—a thoroughbred's title claims. Probably some flea bag will come along and run both these wonder horses into the loam. But you can be sure that if this does happen, Robert will be there the next day with a tub-thumping eulogy to the new winner and recognize in him all the magnificent and enduring greatnesses.

Tony Lazzeri Accepts Job With Giants

TONY LAZZERI

Veteran Infielder Is Recovering From a Throat Ailment

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Tony Lazzeri, veteran infielder given his unconditional release yesterday by the Brooklyn Dodgers, today accepted terms to play third base for the New York Giants. He has not yet signed a contract.

Lazzeri, recovering from an attack of tonsilitis, plans to see his doctor either today or tomorrow, and then to join the Giants in St. Louis or Chicago. The Terrymen leave for their first Western trip after today's game with the Phillies.

The Giants will be the third National League team with which Lazzeri, for 12 years second baseman of the New York Yankees, has played.

The veteran, now 34, was released by the Yanks at the end of the 1937 season and was signed as player and coach for the Chicago Cubs by P. K. Wrigley. He was released by the Cubs last winter, after having appeared in only 54 games, and then signed by the Dodgers as a utility player.

Toronto Buys 2 Browns' Hurlers

St. Louis, May 14 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns continued their pitching housecleaning today by selling two hurlers outright and sending two others on option to minor leagues.

Russ Van Atta and Fred Johnson were sold outright to Toronto in the International League. Ed Cole was shipped to San Antonio in the Texas League and Ewald Pyle to Toledo in the American Association.

Carl Hall's 4 Hits Helps Camden Win, 9-0

Carl Hall belted two singles and as many doubles yesterday to lead Camden Tavern to a 9-0 shutout of Bonair, Va.'s, nine at Bonair. Francis Russell was the winning pitcher.

Three Runs For St. Louis Unearned

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, May 14.—The St. Louis Cardinal hitting attack battered five Reds pitchers here today as the National League leaders beat Cincinnati, 9 to 5.

Lon Warneke shut out the Reds for the first four innings but was under the showers when given credit for the victory. The Reds chased him with a ninth-inning two-run rally.

Pepper Martin scored the first tally in the opening inning when he reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and ran home on Werber's two muff of a pop fly.

The second unearned tally came in the fifth as Don Gutteridge came home on Myers' bobble of a grounder. Frank McCormick singled in the fifth for the Reds' first safety and scored on a single by Myers.

Ray Davis replaced Whitey Moore, who was charged with the loss, in the sixth and pitched to three batters. J. Martin and Ducky Medwick singled and Johnny Mize doubled to start the Card rally that netted three runs. Paul Derringer, knocked off the mound by the Cards Friday, came to the hill and allowed two tallies on a sacrifice fly and Micky Owen's infield single.

Werber's single and Ival Goodman's triple netted a tally for the Reds in the eighth and they added two more in the ninth when Harry Craft homered with a mate aboard. Curt Davis came to the relief of Warneke at this stage and retired the next three Redlegs.

Feller's Mother Hurt As He Beats Chisox

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Pitching steadily although his mother was hit by a batted ball, Bob Feller, young Cleveland mound star, held the Chicago White Sox to six hits today while Ben Chapman's booming bat helped him to a 9-to-4 victory. Chapman pounded out two homers and a triple in his first three times at bat to drive in seven runs.

The victory, giving the Indians the series, two games to one, was Feller's sixth against one defeat. He fanned six and walked seven. Three of the hits off him came in the third inning, when Marv Owen, Chicago third baseman, fouled off one of his pitches and the ball lashed back into the boxes along side the first base line and struck his mother, Mrs. William Feller, in the face.

Chapman's one-man slugfest started with a first inning triple off Lefty Lee that scored Rolly Hemsley and Julius Solters, Hemsley having forced Roy Weatherly's opening single and Solters having hit for one base. Next time up, in

By the United Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Mrs. William Feller, mother of Bob Feller, schoolboy pitching ace of the Cleveland Indians, was struck over the right eye by a line-drive foul today as she watched her son pitching against the Chicago White Sox.

Mrs. Feller, who came here with a delegation of Iowa fans to honor the young pitcher in "Feller Day" ceremonies, was sped to a hospital to determine if she had suffered a fracture.

Mrs. Feller was injured when Marv Owen, Chicago third-baseman, fouled one of her son's fast ones into the unscreened portion of the stands near home plate.

With the assistance of Lefty Weisman, Cleveland trainer, Mrs. Feller was able to walk to an automobile and was taken to a hospital. Preliminary examination showed she suffered a long gash extending from above the right eye, down to the bridge of her nose and curving under the eye.

Terp Netmen Win Doubles

Williamsburg, Va., May 14 (AP).—The University of Maryland team of Al Ritzenberg and Nathan Askin won the Southern Conference doubles tennis championship today, ending a four-year North Carolina reign in this event.

The Maryland combination turned back the Tar Heels' favored Carl Rood and Walt Meserole in straight sets, 7—5, 7—5, 6—4, in a finals match postponed from yesterday because of rain.

Two North Carolina players, Bill Rawlings and Bill Rood, will meet for the conference singles' title at Chapel Hill, N. C., early this week. Rain prevented playing of the match yesterday.

Colvin Wins, 7 to 2

Colvin Run nine opened its Old Dominion League season yesterday with a 7-to-2 victory over Herndon A. C. Cockrill issued only three hits and fanned 13.

Big Redhead Allows 4 Hits; Caster Blows Up in Sixth

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 14.—Big Red Ruffing, apparently headed for one of his best years in the American League, shut out the Philadelphia Athletics with four hits today as his New York Yankee teammates pounded out a 10-to-0 triumph before 15,509 at Shibe Park.

Ruffing allowed only five men to reach base, one on a base on balls, and was never in danger. Only two of the five reached second base. The big righthander, still to meet defeat this year, struck out five to beat the Athletics for the second time this season.

George Caster kept pace with Ruffing for 5 1-3 innings, but the A's knuckleballer blew up in the sixth after Frank Crosetti singled and was waved to second on Caster's balk.

After that Red Rolfe doubled, Tom Henrich, and Bill Dickey singled in succession to score two runs. When Charley Keller walked to fill the bases Leroy Parmalee replaced Caster and was greeted by George Selkirk's single that drove in two more runs. Keller scored as Joe Gordon grounded out, then Selkirk romped in with the sixth tally of the big inning when Bill Nagel dropped Babe

Alexandra Hurls Well; Mates Fail To Hit in Pinches

Burden of Battling Both Teammates And Opposition Too Much for Venezuelan; Lewis' Error Wrecks Alex

By Shirley Povich.

Because the Nats could score only two runs for him in 11 innings, because they fielded behind him like traitors and because, finally, the strain was too great, Alex Alexandra yielded a 5-4 victory to the Boston club yesterday.

He lost the ball game but he pitched himself solidly into the esteem of 12,000 Washington fans, did this Venezuelan citizen who, in his first big league start, gave gallant battle to no less than Lefty Grove for 11 innings. And then, in the twelfth, the burden of battling both the Red Sox and his teammates was too much. He surrendered three more runs to the Sox.

Encouraged by a cheap single that was the gift of Buddy Lewis, who misplayed a tricky grounder in the twelfth, the Red Sox fell upon Alexandra for three more hits in the inning, broke a 2-2 tie and assumed a 5-2 lead.

In their own half of the twelfth, the Nats had a reply for that Red Sox uprising, but it wasn't sufficient. They did bat Grove out of the box, and they did force Manager Joe Cronin to call on two relief pitchers, but they could come up with only two runs.

With one out, Pinch Hitter Charley Gelbert, batting for Alexandria, drew a walk from Grove and then the 12,000 renewed interest in the proceedings when George Case dropped a luc-anoited single into short centerfield. Buddy Lewis, as if to atone for his fielding, slapped a single into rightfield to score Gelbert and send Case to third and reach base with the tying run. Whereupon, Cronin called for a relief pitcher.

He called on Jack Wilson and Wilson succeeded to the extent of pitching a leftfield fly to Cecil Travis, which scored Case with the second run of the inning, but when he walked Taft Wright to move the tying run to second, Wilson was of no further use in the eyes of Cronin. The Red Sox manager called in Joe Heving.

For Alexandria it was a brutal defeat. Barring a misplay by Cecil Travis in the seventh inning, victory would have been the Venezuelan's in the regulation nine innings. Over that distance he allowed the Red Sox only seven hits and one earned run.

He shut out the Sox for six innings with his deceptive side-arm curve and occasional fast ball, steadying after a shaky start in the first inning when he walked two batters. Until the seventh he pitched three-hit ball and one of those hits was a questionable affair.

Alex was nursing a 2-0 lead as he entered the seventh, but with one out he walked DeSautels and committed a balk that moved him to second. With two out, Roger Cramer doubled to center to score DeSautels. Then Alex was betrayed by Travis. On a ground ball that should have been the third out, Travis made a miserable muff and Vosmik was safe. Thereupon Jimmy Foxx singled into leftfield to tie the score at 2-2.

From that point until the twelfth it was a courageous exhibition by the Venezulean who, in his first big league start, heard the cheers of Washington fandom ringing incessantly in his ears. In the eighth after Tabor singled off Travis' glove

Peacock and Sharkey Bow in State Four-Ball Upset, 2 Up

5 Local Teams Bow To Baltimore Duos

Forrest Thompson Wins at Beaver Dam; Spencer, Worsham Top Doerer, Shorey; Greiner, Stinebert Score 4-Ball Upset

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Otto Greiner and Ed Stinebert, of Rodgers Ford, knockde Indian Spring's favored duo of Roger Peacock and Buddy Sharkey out of the running in a second-round surprise in the Maryland State four-ball matches yesterday at Rolling Road, that found Baltimoreans scoring over District representatives in five of seven engagements.

The Baltimoreans, annual victims of the District golfers in amateur, junior, pro and women's competition, had a field day at the expense of the local linksmen. Sharkey and Peacock, favored to succeed their former clubmates, Roy Sasscer and Elliott Spicer as titleholders, lost on the last hole, 2 up.

Greiner and Stinebert played good partners, while Sharkey had an off day and was little help to Peacock. The scores of the entire foursome were well over par, Greiner was out of the tenth hole and hit two out of bounds on the eleventh but Stinebert figured in both holes, and when they came to the eighteenth 1 up, that clinched the victory by winning the hole with pars.

First Defeat in 2 Years

It was the first defeat for an Indian Spring team in the two-year history of the matches, as the Four Corners Club's representatives met in the finals last year, while No. 2 had little trouble in disposing of Larry Holland and Pat Winkler of Congressional yesterday, 5 and 4.

Both Manor teams were eliminated, the host club's top duo of Spencer Overton and E. G. Barnes trouncing Max Taylor and Dick Meyer, 5 and 4, while Harry Pitt and Tommy Bones turned 4-up on Edgar Lucas and W. Eager, of Baltimore C. C., but wasted the lead and lost on the seventeenth, 2 and 1.

Earl McAleer and Louis Fuchs, Congressional, scored one of the District's two intercity victories, over Bonnie View's top team, while John R. Miller and Joe Balestri, Beaver Dam, won by the unexpected one-sided margin of 4 and 3 over Johnny Farrell and Paul Hampshire, of Hillendale.

Conceded Match

Martin McCarthy and George Miller, of Columbia, 1-up and three to play, lost the sixteenth hole to the hosts second team of Ernie Caldwell and Gene Bruning, halved the next and lost the eighteenth to a par as McCarthy was stymied by a tree of the tee, and Miller was short in two, both failing in par attempts. Caldwell, 8 feet from the pin in two, was coceded the match.

Capital's top team of Billy Houghton and George Molloy, trying hard to win so as to get Overton and Barnes in the third round at their home Capital Club next Sunday, lost on the sixteenth to Jess Dowling and Robert Jones, of Hillendale.

Rolling Road was the only club to send two teams to the quarter-finals, while Baltimore qualified five duos to the Capital's three.

Congressional No. 1 (Earl McAleer and Louis Fuchs) defeated Bonnie View No. 1 (Grant and Miller), 4 and 3.

Hillendale No. 1 (Jess Dowling and Robert Jones) defeated Capital No. 1 (Billy Houghton and George Molloy), 3 and 2.

Rolling Road No. 1 (Spencer S. Overton and E. G. Barnes) defeated Manor No. 2 (Max Taylor and Dick Meyer), 5 and 3.

Rolling Road No. 2 (Ernie Caldwell and Gene Bruning) defeated Columbia No. 1 (Martin McCarthy and George Miller), 1 up.

Beaver Dam No. 1 (John R. Miller and Joe Balestri) defeated Hillendale No. 2 (Johnny Farrell and Paul Hampshire), 4 and 3.

EAST POTOMAC

Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam pro, and Lewis Worsham, assistant to Bob Barnett at Chevy Chase, handed East Potomac's pro-manager team of Mel Shorey and Tommy Dierer, jr., a 3 and 2 defeat before several hundred fans yesterday on the public links course.

Worsham was two over par on the long B and D courses, with a 74, while Spencer had 76. Doerer 77 and Shorey was several strokes over hi usual pace with a 79.

WOODMONT

All three first flight winners in the sweepstakes at Woodmont scored gross rounds of 82. Ellis Edlowitz deducting a 15 handicap for first prize with 67, William Ilch taking off a 14 handicap for 68, second, and Ed Melniker deducting a 12 handicap for a net 70. Norlinger's out nine of 41 and back nine of 40 for an 81 captured low gross.

Dr. J. A. Freedman easily topped the second flight winners with 85-21, 64, followed by Leo and Morris Schlossberg with 100-27, 73, and 112-35, 77, respectively, while C. B. Dulcan tied at the latter figure with 100-23, 77. Low gross went to M. Bildman with 97.

BEAVER DAM

Forrest Thompson won the miniature tournament at Beaver Dam, defeating J. F. Childs 2 and 1 in the finals, third match of the day, after winning by default in the first round and defeating L. H. Weisenberger in the second. John R. Miller and Joe Balestri defaulted first-round matches in favor of the State four-ball play at Rolling Road.

C. Hall won the second flight, defeating R. E. Kaufman, 2 up. R. E. Greene won 4 and 2 over E. T. Williams in the third-flight finals, while the fourth went to W. C. Hackman, defeating C. E. Purdy 2 and 1.

Other winners included H. J. Stevens over S. Markowitz in the fifth, 3 and 2; W. L. O'Brien over M. M. McLean in the sixth, 1 up; W. W. Kerr over H. A. Strong in the sixth, 3 and 2, and R. A. Byers over E. Scott in the eigth, 1 up.

CONGRESSIONAL

G. A. Hathaway and C. H. Giroux, the latter with his best round of the year, an 83, won the best-ball sweepstakes at Congressional with a net 60.

J. M. Strajte and R. A. Conn were second with 61, while two teams tied for third, Dr. R. A. Keilty and L. J. Bernard, and G. W. Neville and C. A. Loeffler, each with 63.

KENWOOD

W. O. Woolley and J. W. Harvey, jr., topped the best ball twosome field at Kenwood, pairing for a gross score of 72, minus half the combined handicap, 15, for a net 57.

F. H. McCreery and L. A. Hagerla, 81-22, 59, and Don Miller and Frank Williamson, 74-19, 59, tied for second while two teams tied for fourth prize, Dr. F. S. Bacon and J. A. Thurston, 76-16, 60, and J. W. Harvey, jr., in the prize list again with C. D. Johanson, scoring 75-15, 60.

BELLE HAVEN

The best ball twosome, minus half the combined handicaps, were the most popular affairs of the day, C. C. Brown and W. P. Herring teaming to capture the Belle Haven event with 76-13, 63. Walter Leadbeater and M. Bannerman were second, with 78-14, 64.

CAPITAL

Lee W. Stowe handed old man par one of his few defeats in topping the match play against par tournament at Capital, finishing one up. William Pendergast and John Phelan tied for second, breaking even with perfect figures, while Frank White was one down, and Don Geeson, J. A. White, G. E. Lindsay and Art Bowis all finished two down.

Frank White was in his usual role as low gross winner with 73.

ARGYLE

Maurice Cooper, one of Argyle's leading golfers over a period of years, virtually clinched the top post on the team ladder at the Silver Spring club by playing the course in 36-37, 73, one over par, in the first of his two rounds. Play was continued over another week-end, due to Saturday's inclement weather.

Cooper needs only an 81 or better next week to top the 155 totals of R. C. Jewell and Phil Buscher.

WASHINGTON

Washington Golf and Country Club members opened the competitive season at the club with the usual blind bogey affair, ending in a tie between G. B. Skinner, 93-22, 71; J. R. McGinnis, 86-15, 71; and W. P. Springham, 87-16, 71.

The members are sharpening their games for the club championship, first of the season among the local clubs, that starts with qualifying rounds May 27 and 28 with match play continuing through the next week.

MANOR

Manor Club's Duffers tournament went to B. M. McPherson, with 95-24, 71, three strokes ahead of the 101-27, 74 of M. L. Raedy. H. L. Simcoe was third with 95-17, 78. The event was open to members with handicaps of 20 and over.

Ray Sims and H. L. Simcoe topped the week-end Blind Bogey play, Sims scoring 87-9, 78, and Simcoe 95-17, 78, for a double victory. Two net 72s tied for third, Joseph Matre, 94-22, 72, and H. G. Wood, 80-8, 72, while five deadlocked at the 70 mark, Eugene Meachan, 92-22, 70; D. N. Pratt, 81-11, 70; T. N. Bartlett, 80-10, 70; Burke Edwards, 75-5,70, and J. E. Hughes, 88-18, 70.

BEAVER DAM

Tru-Blu Plays Dixie Tavern In Loop Opener

With one of the gamest and most talented infielders in the city on first base, Tru-Blu softball team officially opens the Metro Night Softball League tomorrow on the Monument Grounds, meeting a powerful Dixie Tavern ten. The game is called for 8 p. m. and will be followed by a clash of Golub's Market and Dr. Pepper at 9:15, and preceded by a game between the girls' National All-Stars and Treasury Independents.

Tucker Woodward, veteran of the local sandlot wars, is Tru-Blu's first baseman, and his reputation for gameness arises from the fact that he plays on one wooden leg. He is a fine fielder and batter, requiring a substitute only for running the bases.

A pitching duel is expected to develop between Tru-Blu's Abe Rosenfield and Oren Shanks, Tavern hurler. Both played with Dr. Pepper last season. The other Metro League game listed for the day is between Arlington Democrats and Standard Linen at the Arlington (Va.) stadium.

INDIAN SPRING

G. M. Price won the handicap event at Indian Spring, played without handicaps with the full-gross scores drawn, with 90. The 85s of Golf Committee Chairman Earl W. Clary and Jack Chipps tied for second.

PRO-AMATEUR

At least ten District pros and some 25 amateur partners will play in the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. pro-amateur tournament today at Rut Coffey's Winchester C. C. course. Play will be from scratch for the simon-pures. Al Jamison, Eddie Stevens, Leo Walper, Al Houghton, Gene Larkin, George Diffenbaugh, Cliff Spencer, Lewis Worsham and Mel Shorey will be among those making the trip.

CHEVY CHASE

A majority of the field of 92 entries in the Chevy Chase Invitation tournament starting Wednesday, plus expected post entries, will test the perfectly conditioned course in practice rounds today and tomorrow.

STATE WOMEN'S

Today is the final day of practice for Baltimore and Washington's topnotch women golfers that start the five-day play in the Maryland State Women's Tournament tomorrow at Congressional. Virtually the entire field is expected to play in trial rounds, while officials are hoping that post entries will swell the entry list past the present total of 51, some 25 players shy of the expected total.

Fette Blanks Dodgers for Boston, 1-0

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 14.—Lou Fette, the Boston Bees' 32-year-old right-hander, became the first pitcher in the National League to attain his fifth victory when he shut out the Brooklyn Dodgers, 1 to 0, today to give the Bees a sweep of the three-game series.

Fette's four-hit victory, gained at the expense of Brooklyn's Tots Press Pressnell, wasn't achieved until the last of the ninth, however, when Debs Garms, the first batter up, trippled over Center Fielder Goody Rosen's head to give the Bees their first real scoring chance of the game.

Tigers Beat Browns Twice, 14-4 and 7-4

York's Homer With Bases Loaded Wins Second for Detroit

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 14.—The Detroit Tigers took a double-header from the St. Louis Browns today, 14 to 4, and 7 to 4, before the largest crowd to witness a Brownie contest since 1927. There were 15,328 cash customers.

The Browns looked like an easy winner in the first game, running up a 4-to-0 lead in the second, but Detroit started rolling in the fifth and scored all the runs in four innings. Hank Greenberg hit his fifth and sixth home runs of the season, each time with a man on base.

In the nightcap the Browns came up to the ninth one run ahead and again looking like a winner. Then Rudy York, pinch hitting for Barney McCosky, parked a homer on the pavilion roof with the bases loaded to settle the issue.

Tobin Beats Jinx, Stops Bruins, 5 to 2

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 14.—Jim Tobin snapped the long spell the Cubs had held over the Pirates—a spell during which the Bucs lost nine consecutive games to Chicago—when he turned back the Cubs, 5 to 2, today before a crowd of 15,397.

The Pirates bunched three of their eight hits in the first inning to score three runs and were never headed, although the Cubs scored Tobin's offerings for 11 hits.

Jimmy Gleeson's double with two out in the first inning scored Billy Herman and Stan Hack tallied in the seventh for the Cubs on his triple and Augie Galan's long fly.

Hubbell Beats Phillies, 2-1, For Giants

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—A pinch home run by Ken O'Dea in the tenth inning today gave the New York Giants a 2-to-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in Carl Hubbell's first starting appearance of the year.

The southpaw ace, who underwent an arm operation during the winter and since had worked only two innings in relief, permitted the Phils 11 hits but tightened in the pinches with such effectiveness that 12 of the visitors were left stranded on the sacks. He struck out five and gave two bases on balls.

This run loomed large while Max Butcher went about shutting out the Giants until the eighth, but singles by Burgess Whitehead and Bill Jurges and passes to Hardy Danning and Mel Ott forced in the tying run.

Man of the Month

(Following each game by The Washington Club, Walter Johnson distributes among the Nats ten points of merit, based on their performances for the day. At the end of each month, the Washington player boasting the greatest number of points is designated as the Nats' "Man of the Month" and receives a trophy from The Washington Post.)

By Walter Johnson,
(WJSV-General Mills Broadcaster.)

Alex Alexxandra was a hero in defeat for the Nats yesterday and to him goes the bulk of the points in the latest Man of the Month award.

To Alexandra, six points, because he allowed the Red Sox only one earned run in 11 innings and deserved a 2-1 victory at the end of nine.

To Taft Wright, two points, because he made two of the Nats' hits, drove in a run and made two clever catches against the rightfield wall.

To George Case, two points, because he scored a run almost single-handedly by beating out a bunt and stealing second, and because he played a brilliant game in the field.

Judge Edrington's Boat Wins 20-Foot Restricted Race

Victory Virtually Clinches First Place For Cricket II in Sailing Series

By Bob Knight.

Judge Prentice E. Edrington, former international Stra class champion, coasted home to victory in a leisurely wind yesterday afternoon to capture first honors in the 20-foot restricted class of the fifth race of Potomac River Sailing Association spring sailing series.

Judge Edrington's victory virtually clinched first place in the series for H. C. Bush, of Alexandria, whose Crickett II placed second. By placing second, Bush's craft registered a total of 16.2 points to lead Dr. Albert E. Pagan's Kan-doo by an even 2 points. Failure to get his boat into condition, cost Judge Edrington a high position in the series.

A fast start gave the sea-going jurist a lead throughout the race. He bumped across the finish line by a comfortable margin of more than two minutes.

William White, at the helm of the Frolic, flashed across the finish line a half-length in front of Charlie Dodge's Nandua to secure a substantial lead in Comet class series. White's victory, the third consecutive of he series, earned him a 2.4 lead over the Nandua. Leslie Wright, last yar's Chesapeake Bay Snipe champion, crossed the line third, retaining a position in the series which might lead the way to the Spring cup when final points are computed next Sunday. Col. H. H. Jacobs fell out of the running when his sloop Litl struck a buoy and was disqualified.

In the Snipe class, Reid A. Dunn skippered Rebel home by less than a minute before Evart Warren's High Lama. Dunn's win put him into the lead in his class by a mere 0.2 of a point over High Lama.

Top honors in the Class A handicap—including certain victory in the series—were handily taken by Charles Murphy's Eight Ball. Murphy's fast windjammer nipped first place from Harry Humfield's Spray by 50 seconds.

Fadeley Jumpers Dominate at Marlboro Show

Headrock And Skippy Win, Place

R. Patton's Whaihou Takes Hunter Title, With Lurline 2d; Black Caddy Wins

By Anne Hagner

It was a great day for Fenton Fadeley and his 13-year-old son, Mercer, at the annual Marlboro Horse Show which wound up yesterday at the fair grounds in Upper Marlboro, Md. The Fadeley stables won ribbon after ribbon in the open jumping division Saturday and yesterday to garner the jumping championhip with their big brown mare, Headrock, and the reserve ribbon with Skippy, a 4-year-old grey which is just rounding into top form.

The Fadeley contingent almost completely dominated the jumping classes, except for the first class on the card, for open horses, which Fred Hughes, jr., won with his Black Caddy, after a faultless performance over eight 4-foot fences.

Grey Stone Ties

Another win that Fadeleys missed was in the scurry class, over the outside course, where the lowest time, plus two seconds for each knockdown, determined the winner. The class saw every horse tear around the course at top speed, with Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho and Roland Hartman' Grey Stone tieing for first with 35 seconds each.

In a jump-off that had the spectators roaring, Miss Stieg's game little mare turned in a performance that beat Grey Stone's by several seconds, thus awarding her the blue.

In the hunter division, Ruth Ellen Patten, daughter of the commanding officer at Fort Myer, Col. George Patton, turned in some smooth performances both days of the show with her Hawaiian-bred chestnut, Whaihou, who took in six blue ribbons and several minor awards to win the tricolor.

Reserve Winner

Reserve went to Katherine Smyser's well-mannered mare, Lurline, piloted alternately by her owner and Will Washburn. Lurline did not win a blue either day, but piled up enough points with seconds and thirds to place second to Whaihou.

One of the best classes of the day was the touch and out, always a thriller from the spectators' point of view. It was finally won by Will Washburn on Mrs. "Chip" Robert's flashy John the Baptist, who defeated Fadeley's Skippy and Elinor Leh's King Rock.

Another event that brought out some keen competition was the triple bar sweepstake, which was won by a newcomer to local show circuits, Maurice Ogle's Howdy, ridden by Bill Shawn.

Second to Howdy was Arnold Lusby on Gay Challenge, and third place went to Washburn's greatly improved bay mare, The Jitterbug, ridden by young Happy Christmas. The Jitterbug, who is scarcely bigger than a good-sized pony, triumphed over horses several hands larger than herself, and her steady performances indicate that she will be a potent factor in shows to come.

Fire Chief Sets Record in Class B Outboard Race

Goes Clean on Stiff Course in Amateur Show at Rock Creek

The bridle path riders came into their own at theamateur horse show staged at the Equitation Field in Rock Creek Park yesterday morning. Attended by more than a thousand enthusiastic spectators who came to see their friends perform, the show drew around 200 riders and averaged from 30 to 40 horses in most of the classes on the card.

In spite of the fact that most of the riders were mounted on riding academy horses, there was just as much competition as is seen in much larger events. Spills and near-spills were numerous, but no one was hurt and the spectators loved it.

One of the nicest performances of the day was chalked up in the 3½-foot jumping class by red-headed Jimmy Dugan on Peggy Osterman's big gray mare, Sue Anna, which went clean over the stiff course to defeat Ellie Wood Keith, well-known Virginia horsewoman, on George Walker's Metope.

Another hotly contested class was for open jumpers, over 4-foot fences, which was won by Jane Wells, Gunston Hall student, on Lumberjack. Second place went to the Potomac Riding School's Fred, ridden by Guy Cunkleman, which defeated Col. R. S. Standley's flashy chestnut, Gangway, the third place winner.

He Loses Pants But Wins Relay For Alma Mater

Fresno, Calif., May 14 (AP).—Barney Willis, University of Southern California runner, failed to hear the gun starting the 440-relay in the West Coast Relays last night.

When he learned the event was under way he didn't have time to remove his sweat suit. But he took the baton anyway on the last lap and dashed away. Somehow his sweat trousers worked loose. Lower and lower they dropped.

The crowd of 11,000 laughed then it cheered, for Willis won the race and came to a halt with the trousers draped around his ankles.

The Trojans scored 56 9-10 points to win the relays. Stanford was second with 53¼.

Night Softball Opens Tonight

Tomorrow night marks the opening of night softball in the District of Columbia and surrounding territory when the Ballston Ball Park turns on the floodlights introducing the 1939 night softball season with a double-header attraction. The first game of the evening will be a girls' game between the Arlington Aces and the Internal Revenue girls beginning sharply at 8 p. m. Carolyn Ray, manager of the Arlington Aces, has organized a fast girls' team capable of overcoming the best the District has to offer and threatens to begin the season with a win over the strong Internal Revenue ten.

The men's Arlington Democrats team will open the Metro Night League at 9 p. m. against the fast Standard Linen aggregation. Both teams are well fortified in all positions, with the Democrats having the edge in the pitching department, with such well-known hurlers as Dick Barber, Jack Greenberg and Glen Leyde. Vic Barrattee says he will not use Dick Barber, nationally known curve ball specialist, unless he is definitely needed.

Mass. Driver Wins Albany Outboard Race

Clayton Bishop Breaks Own Record in Albany Handicap Marathon

By the United Press.

New York, May 14.—Buzzing through the blue haze like an angry hornet, Clayton Bishop, of Onset, Mass., drove his Class B outboard job, Humarock Baby, to a sparkling victory in the twelfth annual Albany-to-New York Handicap motorboat marathon today.

Bishop, winner in 1936 and the only driver ever to repeat with a first-place performance, finished the 130-mile grind down the Hudson River in 3 hours 11 minutes and 22 seconds.

The Bay State professional, a fire chief, using a motor presented to him by his department, registered a better than 40-mile-an-hour performance to shatter his own Class B record.

Second place went to Arthur Wullschleger, of Larchmont, N. Y., Cornell's intercollegiate champion, and theonly amateur to finish within the first five. Wullschleger, at the wheel of his Class B outboard "Inch," bulleted home in 3 hours 15 minutes and 35 seconds, for a 29-mile-per-hour performance. Wullschleger also broke the three-year-old Class B mile-per-hour record of 37.1 set by Bishop in 1936.

Charles Mack, New Milford, N. J., professional, took third place in Blue Rhapsody, a Class F outboard boat which roared over the route in 2 hours 44 minutes and 13 seconds. Mack's 47.4 miles per hour speed was the best turned in by an outboard driver in the 12-year history of the race.

Zalmon Simmons, Greenwich, Conn., piloted his 225 cubic inch hydroplane, Baby, to victory in its class and to the fastest time performance—53.35 miles per hour—ever recorded in the race's history.

Pennsylvania Boys Take 4 Gymnast Titles

George Wheeler Star in A. A. U. Meet at Navy; Giallombardo Wins

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., May 14.—George Wheeler, 24-year-old school teacher from Washington, Pa., took four firsts and one third in the N. A. A. U. championship gymnasium meet at the Naval Academy to retain his hold on the national all-around title.

Wheeler, defending champion in five events and holder of the all-around crown for his third consecutive year, took first in long horse, side horse, parallel bars and free-exercise. Last year's winner of the horizontal bars event, Wheeler yielded first place to C. M. Phillips, of Philadelphia Turnverein, and placed third behind Kenneth Dale, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Team trophy was taken by the Swiss Turnverein, from Union City, N. J., with 39½ points.

Joe Giallombardo, University of Illinois star, retained his title as the country's best tumbler.

Midshipman Stan Ellison, defending champion, scrambled up the 25-foot rope in 5 seconds flat for a new world's record. His teammate, Bill Sawyer, placed second, three-tenths of a second behind him, and Cadet Ray Belardi, of West Point, was third.

E. A. Hennig, Cleveland Germania Turnverein, took the Indian club swinging title.

Gala Opening Of Arlington Field Tonight

Lou Blue's Semipros Meet House of David To Dedicate Stadium

Arlington County's most picturesque baseball opening is scheduled at 8:15 o'clock tonight when Lou Blue's Boys' Republic semipros dedicate their new Arlington (Va.) stadium against the Lakehurst (N. J.) International House of David professionals.

A distinguished turnout, expected to test the 3,500 seating capacity of the new bailiwick, will include United States Senators Rush D. Holt, of West Virginia, and Arthur Capper, of Kansas, and Representatives Albert L. Vreeland, of New Jersey; Thomas McMillan, of South Carolina, and Larry Bach, popular member of Little Congress.

A baseball parade is to form in lower Clarendon, Va., at 6 p. m. today and will proceed to the stadium, where the gates will be opened at 7 p. m. The Boys' Kiwanis Band and diversified entertainment will vie for favor prior to 8:15 p. m., when Clark C. Griffith, Washington Club president, will throw the first ball, which will be received by Representative McMillan behind home plate.

We make our Bard's Town Whisky the good old "COUNTRY WAY"

by the genuine Sour Mash method ... just as used here for 119 years

Nobody is ever able to interest us in any other way of making whisky. You see, since as far back as 1820, the limestone water of our Bourbon Springs has made whisky that earned a reputation.

We make our whisky now by the same Old Fashioned Sour Mash method...using this same "magical" water and selected grains. It's slow...but when folks tell us our whisky has character all its own—a mellow smoothness, a rich, full flavor and bouquet that are unforgettable—we're not surprised.

For a really fine drinking whisky, ask for Bard's Town . . . in the Fiddle Bottle. We believe you'll thank us for suggesting it.

Racing Scene Shifts to Charles Town Today for Long Meet

Field of Six In Inaugural Stake Event

Dizzy Dame Faces Royal Business and Others; Post Time 2:30 P. M. at Plant

By Walter Haight

With an eight-race program, featured by the Inaugural Handicap, the racing scene in this section shifts to Charles Town today. The sporty 6-furlong track has been all brushed up to carry on where Pimlico left off on the turf front. Charles Town will not offer a War Admiral-Seabiscuit race, but it always has provided plenty of entertainment and this time there will be 48 days of the sport in a row.

Racing Secretary Freddie Burton has matched six better-than-ordinary sprinters to compete for the first stake of the year over the 6½-furlong course. He has distributed weights in a manner that should provide the expected customers a bang-up first-day feature.

Capt. Ewart Johnston's Royal Business is the likely favorite despite an impost of 116 pounds. This filly, always highly regarded at Charles Town, defeated $2,500 horses at Pimlico last week and is in the best form of her career. She will oppose Herbert Kerr's Dizzy Dame, a surprise winner over good sprinters at the Maryland Jockey Club play last week. Tuleyries Linn, a winner during the spring on the major tracks, Cornwallis, possessed of plenty of speed, and Lynx Eye will be in the field seeking the $800 purse.

Seven Limit Fields

With the exception of the feature, limit fields are assured in all the events. Six sprints and two races at a mile and a sixteenth make up a well-balanced program.

President-General Manager Al J. Boyle has set a 2:30 p. m. post time to allow the Washington fans plenty of time to get to the track. He also has kept the daily double on the second and third races in order that late arrivals can participate. Charles Town is one of the few tracks hereabouts which encourages the daily double.

The big Maryland ovals would like to rid themselves of the twin wager. However, Charles Town's "double" has been built up until it is one of the track's main attractions.

Charles Town has a better grade of horses than ever before. The closing of Agawam Park this year has allowed the West Virginia course to select from an army of racers. In addition, Charles Town will run for the next two weeks without opposition hereabouts and, with 48 days in which to shoot at purses, many horsemen shipped from Maryland to West Virginia to stay put for the long session.

$205,000 in Purses

During this year's racing, the sum of $205,000 will be distributed to horsemen as purses compared with $170,360 last year.

The racing will be supervised again this year by Stewards Thomas C. Bradley, J. J. Graddy and Kenneth N. Gilpin. Bradley is the man who suspended nine jockeys in ten days a few years back. He has promised to rule with an iron hand. In addition, all winners and any "suspects" will be given the saliva test. While stimulating cases have cropped up from time to time, Charles Town has been quick to give them publicity and any one connected in any way has been ruled off the track.

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Charles Town, W. Va., May 14.

Dear Al:

Good time Pimlico, better time Charlesburg. Yes, it's on to the mountain country for a long stay that we hope will bring the hay. We kept pretty quiet in the back-slapping department during Pimlico, but it's time we let the Benningites know that they got the best handicapping service to come out of the Baltimore track. We piled winner on winner and there was always enough for dinner, Clocker Mike is plenty jealous, too. I tossed him out of the morning conferences and used the figures of Furlong Pole Smith. He came up with a lot of new ones over there and he's going to be right here with me during the marathon meeting. Somehow it feels good to be back at Charles Town. Brother Boyle is here to take care of the general managing. Brother Bradley is here to make the jocks stay put and keep the horsemen trying. Don Hay is here to keep the mutuel department rolling. And I'm here trying to keep the Benningites well supplied with winners. There's no Preakness and no Derby in the Charles Town book, but, somehow, I can get just as much kick out of a close finish between Ocean Roll, Royal Business and Buck Langhorne as I can looking at the so-called classics. After all, a buck is a buck, whether you get it in pennies or a crisp bill. The stuff looks and feels the same when it gets in your pocket. Clocker Mike has been up here for three days and he claims he has some horses that are ripe and mellow. I'm going to pass them along as fast as they appear in the entries. Yes, the 1939 Battle of Charles Town is on. Don't bet until you see the whites of their eyes. When you get a hunch, bet a bunch. Art Brown, of WOL, won't be his old self until he finds his binoculars. Art used the glasses, a present from Mamma Brown, at the Preakness yesterday. They were lost or strayed from his car. Art says if anybody comes across them, please return to him at Station WOL. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Lyde was outmatched when racing on the milers but has displayed flashes of speed. He falls into a spot in this maiden field and should get down in front. Redfoot is highly regarded by the stable and can better poor recent races. Bet Wick should show improvement after his one heat on the milers.

Second race—Sister Reigh has plenty of early speed. Her race at Havre will have her fit. Flag Etta likes the Charles Town course and is always a threat in this company. Suneen won two out of three starts last year and rates best of the others.

Third race—Shanteb raced well behind Maewhisk at Havre after breaking tardily. That heat will have him on edge and he should get up in the final drive. Brooke Herod turned in a poor performance in his race at Havre but he performed well at Charles Town last year. Cautious Bo gets a good figure and likes the track.

Fourth race—Ruth Lerner was a consistent winner at Oaklawn and was outclassed in her only start on the milers. She is in form and will be hard to beat. Waugh Pop was beaten a neck by Jadaan at Havre last out in off going. Figures much the best of the others. Night Play showed good effort behind Distract.

Fifth race—Hi-Blaze has early foot and should take the top and never look back at this distance. His races at the big tracks will have him fit. Lady's Favor was consistent when she ran with this kind last summer and will be the one to beat. Toothpick is not outclassed but may need this race.

Sixth race—Dizzy Dame trounced Rissa and Billy Bee at Pimlico last week and stands out as the best bet of the day. Royal Business won over better grade platers in her last start and should be the runner-up. Cornwallis can better his poor recent races on the big tracks.

Seventh race—Sylvia G. failed under high weight in her last at Pimlico, but whipped a good field at Havre. Aufoin, idle since last year, was in the money in his last heats last winter and is reported fit for this event. Best Folley is not outmatched and should go well.

Eighth race—Last Scamp has been finishing close to the money in his recent races on the big tracks and drops down to meet a cheap field today. Pencader is an old campaigner that can be relied upon for honest effort. Counter Pass failed to threaten in his Pimlico races but rates a chance here.

Substitute race—Justa Jimmie was only out of the money once in his last eight starts last year. He moves up on a muddy track and is reported fit. Scoutallow likes the Charles Town course and should prove a contender. Tell It gets a good figure with this company and rates a chance.

Best bet—Dizzy Dame.

Warrenton Wins

Warrenton, Va., May 14.—In the Fauquier County League, Warrenton Wanderers beat Springs A. C., 7 to 5. Warrenton, 6 hits; Springs A. C., 7 hits.

Nats Beaten In 12th Inning By Red Sox, 5-4

Alexandra Hurls Well But Teammates Fail To Hit in Pinches

and stole second with one out, Alex was very much unruffled, escaping the situation nicely. And in the ninth after Buddy Lewis had booted lead-off man Rober Cramer's grounder, Alex fanned Joe Vosmik to escape trouble.

In the tenth, Alex appeared licked when Tabor doubled to start the inning, but Giuliani made a diving catch of Doerr's pop bunt and there was no more trouble. In the eleventh with Foxx on base, Alex disposed of Cronin on a force play.

But in the twelfth the old fellow was fading fast. Taft Wright speared Ted Williams' line drive against the fence for the first out, but the troublesome Tabor beat out a hit on which Lewis deserved no medal. Then in succession Doerr pounded a double to right, and DeSautels got a double when Welaj slipped in leftfield. That moved two runs across the plate and a third scored when Cramer singled to right.

Grove Potent

Old Mose Grove pitched a potent game after the third inning, by which time the Nats had two runs. Taft Wright drove Buddy Lewis across the plate in the first with a single, but with two men on the Nats fizzled on a bid for a big inning when Buddy Myer grounded into a double play.

George Case was the hero of the third-inning run. He pushed a clever bunt down the first base line with one out and beat it out. Then he stole second. Buddy Lewis ushered him home with a single to right.

But from that point, Grove was invincible. He pitched eighth consecutive scoreless innings at the Nats. There was a tentative bid for a run in the seventh, when Giuliani and Alexander singled in succession with two out, but it came to naught, and in the ninth, tenth and eleventh, the Nats didn't get a hit.

There was a bold bid to win the game in the eleventh despite no Washington hit. Johnny Welaj, who had walked with one out, stole second and was moved to third by a second out. Then Welaj attempted to steal home on Grove's wind-up. They don't do that sort of thing on old Mose. He threw Welaj out by a hlaf dozen feet.

Red Ruffing Beats A's for Yanks, 10-0

In the eighth Dahlgren blasted one of Parmalee's pitches into the left field stands with Selkirk on first for two more tallies. The Yanks scored again in the ninth on Crosetti's walk, Rolfe's single and Henrich's long sacrifice fly to Sam Chapman.

The first Yankee run came in the second when Selkirk singled, stole second and scored on Nagel's error of Gordon's easy bounder.

CHURCH'S SHOES

Accent on Elegance

"Summer shoes styled and made by Church of England" means—what? Granted that summer styles preferred in England and America look alike. But go below the surface, consider how they are made . . . right there is the difference. Church's are made better, to fit better and hold their smartness longer . . . that's why they are the choice of men who want the best in footwear.

Contract Bridge

By Lee Hazen.

Mr. Hazen, a member of the winning team in the Vanderbilt Cup Championships, is a guest columnist for Florence Osborn, who is on a short vacation.

"How does it feel to be a Vanderbilt Cup winner" That's the standard question that came with congratulations, and the answer is "Swell." It's still difficult to believe that I won't have to play any more boards, or that I won't look up and see my partner, Mel Alexander, trying to interpret some of the crazy bids made by me during the week.

I had fun playing in the tournament, but I enjoyed most these two hands I am about to show you.

♠A62
♡AK75
◇AQ9
♣843

This was the bidding up to a certain point:

Alexander Mattheys	Hezn	Beinecke
South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	Dbl	Pass
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	1 ♠
2 ◇	2 ♠	3 ◇	3 ♠
Pass	Pass	?

I felt certain that we could take at least eight tricks. My partner's second bid indicated at least five diamonds, including the king and jack, and from the bidding it seemed as though neither of the adversaries held five clubs. So I decided that it would be a good gamble to bid three no trump, which was promptly doubled.

A club was opened: Mattheys had only four, and as my partner turned up with a six-card diamond suit, we rolled in the contract. This was a tremendous psychological lift in our favor against one of the strongest teams of the tournament. Malowan played the hand at three diamonds, making three.

The other hand, shown in today's box, occurred against Ted Lightner and Mrs. S. W. Peck in the finals, and was a big factor in our last-quarter surge.

Alexander's voluntary raise to three clubs was a courageous and fine bid; his overcall had just about represented his maximum strength. But we had been in so many daring contracts all week that he felt justified in raising.

My failure to bid more than two clubs on the first round might seem timid, but for the fact that there was a strong possibility of a misfit. As it happened, six was made, but getting to game was a difficult job.

Robert McPherran and Wingate Bixby of the opposing team played the hand at three clubs. The slam was made by establishing a high spade, through trumping, for a diamond discard.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

Those insatiably curious Agriculture technicians have decided to find out how Joe Motorist behaves on the highways and have developed a fiendishly secret instrument for the purpose. It is simply a black rubber tube stretched across the road, looking like an expansion joint. Placed at 50-foot intervals, and hooked up to an electric circuit, the tubes will record each passing car, its speed, direction and behavior.

Bureau of Public Road experts plan to find out from a special study in which the tubes will be used just what happens as slow automobiles overtake the faster ones and how much of a straightaway is necessary for safe passing.

New officers elected by Labor Department Lodge 228, A. F. G. E., are George R. Hersey, vice president in the Secretary's Office; George E. Chapman, jr., vice president in the Public Contracts Section; Kenneth C. Bradley, vice president in the D. C. Employment Center; T. J. Mead, first vice president, representing the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and George L. Barnes, treasurer.

The lodge has petitioned the Secretary of Labor to allow space to be vacated by the Employment Service—removed from the Department by Reorganization Plan No. 1—to be occupied by employes now "exiled" in the garage annex at Fourteenth and Church streets northwest. They were moved to the garage last fall over the protests of three employe unions.

Roy Hendrickson, Agriculture personnel chief; E. W. Loveridge, assistant chief of the Forest Service, and Jacob Baker, U. F. W. A. president, will match wits in a round-table forum at 4:40 p. m. today in the Agriculture Auditorium. The subject is "The Department Hires a Hand," and will include discussion of efficiency ratings, promotions, civil service coverage and other personnel problems. The program is sponsored by Agriculture Local 2, U. F. W. A.

Progress toward solution of the long-troublesome quarters-subsistence-laundry deductions in the Veterans' Administration moved closer to solution recently, when Veterans' Administrator Hines declared that employes maintaining homes near the stations would be relieved of charges of nonhousekeeping quarters, at their option. Certain employes, he indicated in a letter to A. F. G. E. President Stengle, may be relieved of subsistence charges in future moves.

Senator O'Mahoney's bill, passed last session, bringing first, second and third class postmasters under civil service, has its disadvantages to politically minded incumbents, the Civil Service Commission implied the other day. Henceforth, those employes, from time immemorial active politicos, are banned from political activity by the same stringent rules which cover other civil-service workers.

The indefatigable I. D. R. A. has two more social events planned in the near future—a moonlight cruise on the S. S. Potomac at 8:45 p. m. May 23, and an old-fashioned family picnic at Fort Hunt, Va., on June 10.

Bob Burns Says—

Sometimes I get to feelin' mighty sorry for old folks. Seems like pret'near all of 'em have some ailment. My great-grandmother lived to be a hundred and ten years old, and from the time she was seventy she complained about the tough time she was havin' keepin' a permanent wave in her hair.

One night Grandpa Snazzy came home late and he complained about his back hurtin' him somethin' awful. Grandma said, "Well, Snazzy, you want me to get you some liniment?"

He said, "That won't solve the problem. I reckon I'll just hafta get stronger glasses. I'm gettin' too old to climb up them street lamps ever' time I want'ta see what street I'm on."

Mt. St. Mary's to Give 3 Honorary Degrees

Emmitsburg, Md., May 14.—Honorary degrees of doctor of laws will be conferred by Mount St. Mary's College here June 7 on the Right Rev. Eugene J. Connelly, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Washington; James J. Igoe, New York City, and Thomas Kirby, of Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

The Watterson prize for oratory will be awarded to Paul J. Taggart, Wilmington, Del.

Secrets in Love

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER VIII.

SYNOPSIS

Hewitt Gill—Ambitious salesman in same office, who aspires to a partnership in the firm, and who professes love for Peg.

Anthony Covington—State Department attache, home from the Orient.

Mrs. Demarest Polk—Wife of a Senator.

Aunt Mehalie—Maiden aunt of Peg, with whom Peg lives.

Duncan Patterson—United States Army Air Corps lieutenant and brother of Peg.

Peg, Anthony and Duncan have started for a reception at one of the foreign embassies. On the way Duncan stops to make a telephone call, and while in the car Anthony almost expresses his love for Peg. Duncan returns to the car very much perturbed, but says nothing. While dancing at the Embassy reception, Peg's attention is called to a man staring at her with intimate intensity. He is Count Paul Stranyan.

Peg was dancing with Anthony when she heard the click of heels, the rattle of a saber against boots. A gloved hand touched Anthony's arm and Anthony, smiling down into her eyes, turned quickly—and then wasn't smiling at all. Men very seldom smiled at Count Paul Stranyan. Paul Stanyan had given many a Washington man sleepless nights since taking over his duties at the embassy, what with their wives—sometimes in high place—and their sweethearts bending irresistibly to his desire as grass sways under the wind.

The young man bowed profoundly. "Count Paul Stranyan, first secretary . . . permit me, please." His heels clicked again. Anthony nodded his fair head slightly. He said: "Miss Patterson, Count Stranyan." Then he strode away and Peg was in Paul Stranyan's arms.

Stranyan was saying: "Forgive me, but I did so long to dance with you. I have followed you all evening. You spoke with no one I knew. I had no way to meet you—so I dared." He paused a moment. Looked at her in silence that was more eloquent than words. A silence that told her she was blondely lovely and shining to him, that there was a stir in his heart that hadn't been there for a very long time.

Hewitt was standing on the threshold of the ballroom. A slim dark girl had her arm linked through his

Then he said: "I'd like to tell you a superstition, if I may. One that all foreign diplomats in Washington know. You see, if a diplomat walks out the Highway Bridge till he reaches the very middle and from that point drips a dime into the Potomac, it is virtually certain that he will come back to Washington some time in the future. Four years ago I dropped my dime into the Potomac and now I know why I really wanted to come back. Not because Washington is one of the most beautiful, most glamorous, most exciting cities in the world, but because I must have known that you would be here when I got back. A very beautiful you."

It was true. She was hopelessly embarrassed. She had never thought that she possessed any beauty; not even prettiness, really! And tonight, among all these gowns she felt very homespun indeed. The torn skirt hadn't helped, either.

Another Guest

Count Paul Stranyan was still talking in that curiously musical voice. But all at once Peg wasn't hearing him. Suddenly she began to tremble violently and the classic ballroom spun around sickeningly. The crystal chandeliers swung out of focus and all the dancing couples seemed to recede until they were midgets around her.

Her blonde head went rigid; she closed her eyes briefly and then opened them wide. But the scene had not changed. Hewitt was still standing on the threshold of the ballroom. He was laughing as she had never seen Hewitt laugh. There was a slim, dark girl with him . . . a beautiful girl in petunia velvet with an infinitesimal ermine bow nestled in soot-black curls piled high on her head. A girl of wealth, who had never had to work, who would be a little bit patronizing to girls who did. Peg knew, without being told, that she was Thalia Polk. And she knew, with a sick, cold heart where tears were falling, that Hewitt had not gone to Baltimore tonight. That he hadn't even intended to.

Afterward Peg would never remember exactly what Paul Stranyan said. She knew that she had given him her telephone number. That she had said she'd love to go L'Escargot. "That's where all the attaches and diplomatic secretaries meet at noon for snails, isn't it?" Paul Stranyan had said yes, and Peg wondered how she could go on breathing when every breath was like inhaling threads of wool.

Over Stranyan's shoulder she watched Hewitt and Thalia. Hewitt throwing his dark head back and laughing at something Thalia said; Hewitt cantering with a group of uniformed men who surged up to take Thalia away and Thalia shaking her dark head in a definite little no. Hewitt sweeping Thalia out on the floor and holding her to him. Doing a little more than dancing. Holding her close. Too close.

Peg was like two people in that moment; one with an impulse to run; or to crawl off into some dark corner; another who went on dancing with Paul Stranyan, talking to him, even smiling. "I've never eaten a snail, but I suppose I could."

Putting on a Front

Peg's smile was dazzling when Hewitt first saw her. For the old Patterson line was proud, and whoever had buried them had not buried them deep. They still stirred the sod and sent grim emanations of pride up to put iron in the blood of their descendants. She was close to Hewitt in that moment, close enough to say, very brightly, "Well, hel-lo, there!" and then to recede among the dancing couples, gayly, as if Hewitt had been just any young man. But she hadn't missed his suddenly arched brows, the painful flush beneath his tan. He had been shocked to see her here; infinitely more shocked to find her in Stranyan's arms. And the dazzling smile had been disconcerting.

Not only to Hewitt Gill but to the stag line who suddenly became conscious of Peg. They began to cut in: Young men who said things about her blue-black eyes and her smile and her golden hair; young men who wanted to know what she was doing on Thursday, on Friday, on Sunday. "Will I see you at the Black and White Ball?"—"You'll be at Sulgrave on Friday, won't you?"—How about Chevy Chase Saturday night? Dated up, of course? . . . They didn't seem to notice that her dress wasn't a Patou, that the skirt was torn.

Nation Pays Its Tribute To Mothers

Capital Observance Highlighted by Service At Unknown's Tomb

It was her day and with music, prayer and wreaths, with personal gifts and public speeches, sons and daughters throughout the Nation demonstrated their love.

Washington's observance began at 8 a. m. when Catholic police and firemen attended special services at St. Patrick's Church, continued with services at the Young Men's Christian Association conducted by Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, went on through memorial exercises at the Unknown Soldier's Tomb at Arlington in the afternoon, by the American War Mothers, charitable teas and tributes to the mothers of women's suffrage; and ended in the evening with a celebration by Filipinos in Washington at the Young Women's Christian Association.

Meanwhile from every corner of the Nation telegrams from children arrived for Washington mothers. Those at home expressed their devotion with gifts of candy, perfume or flowers.

At Arlington some 500 mothers with their families gathered to remember reverently those who fell in the war and to hear Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, praise the greater courage of those who "stayed at home."

The soft light of a half-clouded sky fell on the flag-decked mable of the amphitheater as the Senator spoke of "the empty chair that remains, the harassing thoughts of danger, the hellishness of war, and the long and lonely hours of watching, waiting and praying," that begin for mothers when their son have gone to battle.

Music was provided by the United States Army Band, with solos by Mrs. May Hoerner and Miss Dorothy Reddish. Capt. Robert D. Workman, chief of chaplains, United States Navy, gave the invocation and benediction and William Tyler Page read "The American's Creed."

Then followed a procession of color guards of 22 patriotic societies, who laid wreaths on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. "Taps" was sounded by Sergt. Frank Witchey, U. S. A., retired.

At Alva Belmont House the National Woman's Party remembered the two great mothers of women's suffrage, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott. Guest of honor was Mrs. Stanton's daughter, Mrs. Harriet Blatch.

Besides the chairman, Mrs. Horace W. Pote, Mrs. George F. Halsey, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Miss Bertha Looker, Mrs. Arabel Clark and Mrs. Blatch spoke.

Friendship House celebrated the day with a tea at which girls from nursery to high schools age waited on their mothers.

Mrs. Clara Bernheimer and Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee arranged a tea and musical program at the Girls Club and Hospice of the Volunteers of America. Mrs. Alice Sutton read an original poem called "Mother." The Ladies Auxiliary of the Takoma Park Vlounteer Fire Department also entertained.

New York, May 14 (AP).—Three famous exponents of American womanhood, all in their eighties, participated in Mother's Day exercises here today.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, 84, mother of the President; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, 80, pioneer women's suffrage leader, and Mrs. Otelia Compton, 90, of Wooster, Ohio, the Golden Rule Foundation's "American Mother for 1939," joined in coast-to-coast broadcast greetings to other mothers.

3 Men, Woman Seized in 125 D. C. Robberies

$8,000 Loot Found; New Yorker Held As Fence for Gang

Three men and a woman suspected of more than 125 housebreakings in the Washington area were held by police last night after a three-week investigation by Detective Sergts. Harry Britton and Jack Baker and Precinct Detective William Fawcett. Loot amounting to $8,000 has been recovered detectives said.

John Martell, 27, of 2700 Thirteenth street northwest, and Elmer A. Macri, 25, of West Haven, Conn., were charged with 30 housebreakings. Held for investigation was a 22-year-old woman and a third man, 35. In New York, Attilio Garguilo, barber shop proprietor, was under $25,000 bond on a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with the case.

Martell and Macri, first arrested three weeks ago, were charged after the woman, previously released, was rearrested in the 5300 block of Fourth street northwest, early yesterday, also taken into custody yesterday was the third man.

Meanwhile, Bridgeport, Conn., police were returning to local police a package of jewelry intercepted by postal authorities there. The package is believed to contain jewelry sent from here to New York for sale and later transmitted to Bridgeport.

Other housebreakings reported yesterday included one in which goods and money valued at $101 was stolen from a lunchroom at Fourteenth street and Florida avenue northwest, operated by Albert Gougee.

Beauteous, Brainy Miss Sugnet Goes To N. Y. Friday

Mabel Sugnet, "Beauty with Brains" winner in the recent contest sponsored by The Post and the American Federation of Government Workers, will leave Friday for the New York World's Fair, where she will be the guest of the A. F. G. E. on U. S. Government employes day Saturday.

Every Government bureau and department is expected to be represented on the group that will accompany Miss Sugnet on the tour. A reception in her honor will be given at the Paradise Restaurant Friday evening and a special program will be presented at the fair at 11 a. m. Saturday. Mrs. Mabel Meeker, Internal Revenue, second place winner, and Miss Charlotte Whittington will be with the party.

All that Miss Sugnet sees and eats and does, and how she likes it, will be described for Post readers by Scott Hart, Post writer, who will accompany the tour.

Planned to Kill, Says D. C. Artist

Boston, May 14 (U.P.).—Saying he was wanted in Washington for attempted murder, a well-dressed young man surrendered to Boston police today because "my conscience is bothering me."

Identified as Paul Lane, 24, a Washington artist, he was held while police checked his statement that a warrant was issued for him after he borrowed a friend's gun, determined to shoot his wife and himself.

The friend, later suspecting his motive, disarmed him and Lane has been wandering through Atlantic Seaboard cities for the last few days, police said. He said his wife is an employe of the Department of Justice.

Ants in the Kitchen Cupboard?

Here's how to get rid of them. First, keep shelves and cupboards free of food particles, sugar, etc. That's what attracts ants. Second, get a can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. Sprinkle it on the cupboard floor, in corners and along the back edges of shelves; also back of and under the sink, stove and refrigerator. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build powder barriers between the ants' hiding places and the spots where they feed. Outside the house, sprinkle Bee Brand Powder around ant holes, wherever they are found. Repeat these directions regularly, and you'll soon be free of ants.

Bee Brand really kills ants, roaches and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use around the house. Insist on the genuine Bee Brand Insect Powder—in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. Three sizes: 10¢, 25¢, 50¢.

NOTE: You can also kill ants, roaches, as well as flies and mosquitoes, with Bee Brand Insect Spray. Read directions on can.
